SPANISH REBELS RENEW ATTACKS ON TERUEL FRONT

REPULSED NEAR STRATEGIC CITY

Government Reports Victory Near Granada While Insurgents Win at Another Point on That Line.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Feb. 5.—Generalissimo Francisco Franco's insurgents suddenly launched a powerful counter-offensive on the Teruel front today after weeks of inactivity.

The third insurgent attack to recapture the city in Eastern Spain was made about 30 miles north near Singra while insurgent air raids continued unabated against unfortified cities along Spain's Mediterranean coast.

A Government communique admitted the insurgents, striving to relieve Government flanking pressure on Singra, had captured Pancrudo, half-way between Teruel and Belchite.

At the same time there was heavy fighting on the sector around Teruel proper which the Government invested more than a month ago.

The Government reported its troops routed the enemy from positions on strategic Muela de Teruel Hill and then repulsed three determined counter attacks.

A Government communique asserted that the insurgents had taken Sierra Alcorcon on the southern Granada front, but only after three days' fighting and at the cost of many casualties.

Insurgent warplanes dropped more than 200 bombs on Alicante, Tarragona, Reus, Sagunto and other east coast cities during the day but the total casualties reported were only two killed and 30 injured.

Five insurgent planes and one Government craft were said to have been shot down during the raids.

Fighting Renewed on Granada Front After Several Months.

By the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, France, at the Spanish Frontier, Feb. 5.—Government sources declared today a successful attack on the Granada front had opened new possibilities for advances in Southern Spain where battle lines have remained unchanged for months.

In this attack Government forces captured Pena de la Mata, a dominating height 12 miles from Granada, an important city which they have tried to approach several times unsuccessfully.

The operation enabled the loyalists to effect a junction of their lines, one approaching along the road from Jaen, to the North, and the other from Murcia, to the East.

Government advices recognize a long hard campaign would be necessary to cover the intervening 12 miles to Granada, but say the capture of Pena de la Mata would facilitate further advances.

Other fronts were quiet.

A Barcelona dispatch reports an insurgent air raid on Alicante, Eastern coast city south of Valencia. Twenty persons were injured and the French-owned central power station was damaged. Three insurgent planes, said by the Defense Ministry to be German-made, dropped 40 bombs.

A Government communique says the power plant, which flew French flags and had a tri-color painted on the roof, apparently was the object of the raid.

POLICE TO START ARRESTING DRIVERS WITHOUT LICENSES

250 Officers to Open Drive Tomorrow and Continue Until 50,000 Delinquents Pay City Tax.

A drive to bring about the arrest of all St. Louis motorists operating automobiles without city driver's licenses, will begin tomorrow, Capt. James Mitchell of the Police Department's traffic division announced yesterday.

He said the division's full staff of 250 policemen would be stationed at busy intersections to stop motorists and require them to show licenses. Drivers whose licenses have expired and have not been renewed, and those without licenses will be arrested and required to give $500 bond for appearance in Police Court.

Capt. Mitchell said the drive would continue until it was shown sufficiently that all St. Louis drivers had complied with the ordinance.

Director of Streets and Sewers Frank J. McDevitt estimated recently that there were 50,000 St. Louis drivers without licenses. Most of them, he said, had failed to renew their licenses. The license costs 50 cents and runs for two years.

WEST POINT CADETS HUNT FOR PLANE THAT VANISHED

Police Report Finding Oil at Spot Where Flyer Is Said to Have Fallen Into Hudson.

By the Associated Press.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Feb. 5.—An airplane circled over the Hudson River near the Military Academy in a fog tonight then plunged into the water, State Police were notified.

Lieut. H. E. Gay of the State Police said a boat from Garrison, N. Y., across the river from West Point, reported finding the oil and detecting the odor of gasoline near where the craft was said to have disappeared.

Military police and cadets from West Point put out in boats but were hampered by ice, which Gay said was insufficient to support the plane.

Earlier, residents of Hudson River towns in the area reported an airplane circling low through the fog rising from the river, occasionally flashing its lights as if seeking a landing place.

$6,000,000 FOUND IN RUINS OF TERUEL BANK BUILDING

MADRID, Feb. 5. — Finding of currency and securities worth 100,000,000 pesetas (about $6,000,000) in the ruins of the Bank of Teruel was reported by official quarters today.

Almost every building in Teruel is in ruins as a result of the heavy fighting since Government forces occupied the city late in December.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OSCEOLA, Mo., Feb. 5.—Nearly 68 years after promoters persuaded the authorities of St. Clair County to issue bonds for financing a railroad that was never built, the County Treasurer yesterday paid off the last installment of the county's $585,000 bonded debt.

Because the county received no return on its investment, its people long resisted payment of the bonded obligation. In the '90s, members of the County Court, or administrative body, were sent to jail under a Federal Court decree for their refusal to take any action toward payment. The voters insisted that the County Court should continue this attitude, and at subsequent elections, men were elected to the County Court on the pledge that they would refuse to acknowledge the debt, and would go to jail if and when necessary—a pledge which was kept by several of these elected officials.

The original issue of county bonds was $250,000. It was in the midst of a railroad-building era that promoters prevailed on the County Court here, in 1870, to finance the promised construction of the Clinton branch of the proposed Tebo & Neosho railroad.

An order voted by the County Court June 21, 1870, stated that the county was purchasing 2500 shares of the capital stock of the Tebo & Neosho railroad, and for this purpose was issuing $250,000 bonds, bearing 10 per cent interest, and payable in 1882.

The bonds were duly sold, and the proceeds paid to the railroad promoters, who in 1871 began surveying and grading the projected branch. Then the work stopped, and the county authorities found that the bonds had been sold by the promoters to outside purchasers, who had no interest in fulfilling the promise of construction.

When the county suspended payment of interest, holders of the bonds began taking their claims to the courts. The first judgment, for a sum exceeding $30,000, was obtained by a bondholder in 1874.

Other judgments followed, the courts having no choice but to affirm the validity of the bonded indebtedness. As the claims against the county grew, the determination of its people not to pay was reflected in the attitude of their elected officials.

United States marshals, bearing court decrees, were sent to attend meetings of the St. Clair County Court, but could not find the members in the Courthouse. The County Court meetings were held, and their official acts voted, in farm houses or barn lofts.

Jailed for Resisting Debt.

J. E. Kincaid, former Sheriff, recalls that, as a 7-year-old boy, he happened upon a session of the County Court, in his father's barn, and that the members were at first alarmed, thinking the Federal agents had found their meeting place.

Imprisonment of two of the three County Court members, in 1898, followed the prolonged disregard of judicial orders. The voters approved, and at several elections, candidates for the court were required to pledge themselves not to weaken in the bond matter. Some of those elected had to serve time in various county jails, to which they were committed by Federal Court order. This experience was regarded as an honor.

The $250,000 obligation, with interest, grew until in 1904, a bondholders' committee deemed itself to be making a great concession, when it offered to settle for $400,000. Voters of the county overwhelmingly rejected the proposal.

By July 1, 1915, judgments had been obtained against the county for a total of $3,960,000. John B. Henderson Jr. held the largest individual judgment, for $1,267,000.

Settlement Offers Rejected.

Negotiations were renewed by the bondholders, and an offer to settle for $625,000 was made, only to be rejected almost as decisively as the earlier proposal.

Some of the leading men of the county took the view that a settlement should be reached, and meetings were held in schoolhouses throughout the county. A reduction of $40,000 to $585,000 was obtained from the bondholders. This was approved by the voters in 1917, the bonds were issued, and have been in regular course of payment since, until the final payoff this week.

How Courthouse Was Built.

During the bond litigation, the county was unable to borrow money for the building of a needed new Courthouse. A 5-cent tax levy was made for repairs on the old building, and the repairs were prolonged until the structure had been rebuilt throughout. The Osceola Courthouse is believed to be the only one in Missouri that has been built without a bond levy.

The railroad project for which the bonds were issued was merged into the line constructed in

TWO LONDES GET 5 YEARS; JUDGE DENOUNCES THEM

THEIR CREDITORS LOST $125,000

The brazen fashion in which the Londe brothers—Morris and Louis—looted their garment business just before it went bankrupt in 1936 with a loss of $125,000 to creditors, was denounced by United States District Judge George H. Moore yesterday in sentencing each of them to five years in a Federal prison.

Judge Moore said he found no redeeming feature in the conduct of the former owners of the Pearl Garment Co. They put the company in bankruptcy through purchases on credit of merchandise they unloaded within a few weeks before the crash at sacrifice prices. They sold for cash and kept the money for themselves, leaving creditors "holding the bag."

Louis' sentence was for concealing $76,000 from the creditors. Morris was sentenced for conspiracy, with Louis, to conceal the money, and for perjury at the hearings before the Referee in Bankruptcy. His perjury sentence, five years, is to run concurrently with the two-year sentence for the other offense.

Pleaded Guilty Jan. 26.

The brothers pleaded guilty Jan. 26, but sentence was deferred to permit them to arrange their affairs. In each instance the prison term assessed was the maximum. Judge Moore said they had "deliberately and flagrantly" defrauded their creditors.

"These men mapped their own course," Judge Moore said. "They gambled with the law and lost. The stories told by them do not even show a spirit of repentance. They have done everything but make a clean breast of the affair."

The defense attorney, urging leniency, had told Judge Moore the brothers had made a "clean breast" of their conduct, but the Judge had interrupted him to state his opinion that they had not.

The attorney for the trustee for their bankrupt firm pointed out in his remarks to the Court that an order directing the brothers to surrender the concealed $76,000 to the trustee had not been complied with.

The brothers were taken in charge by the United States Marshal after sentences had been passed. They will be held in City Jail until the prison in which are to serve their terms has been designated by the Department of Justice.

The Fictitious "Max Katz."

In presenting a detailed review of the case to Judge Moore, Assistant District Attorney Henry Morris said Government investigators had established, through the opinions of handwriting experts, that Louis Londe had opened a Chicago bank account in the name of "Max Katz," a fictitious personality who received $15,380 from the Londe firm, ostensibly in payment for furs, a few weeks before the bankruptcy proceedings were instituted.

The account was in the First National Bank of Chicago, Morris said, and that bank's records show that the telephone number given for "Katz" was the telephone number of Isaac Bernstein, a Chicago merchant who paid the Londes about $25,000 for merchandise purchased just before the bankruptcy. The address given at the bank for "Katz" Morris added, was 309 West Jackson boulevard, transposition of Bernstein's address, 903 West Jackson.

George C. Dyer, former Assistant District Attorney who appeared as counsel for the Londes, asked Judge Moore, in fixing sentence, to take account of the hardship which would be worked on their families. Morris Londe, Dyer said, was 37 years old, married and had three children, ranging in age from 2 to 15. Louis, 29, is unmarried, but until the bankruptcy, the attorney said, supported his mother, who now lives with Morris' family.

Alleged Payment for Parole.

Louis, the attorney said, took the money from the garment company. "He hasn't got it now," he added, "and can't state to the Court or to anyone else what was done with it." Why Louis couldn't was not explained. The attorney went on to relate that Morris and Louis had

JAPANESE REPORT ADVANCES ON BOTH SIDES OF SUCHOW

Forces Driving From North Said to Have Taken Chucheng and Mengyin in Shantung.

GAINS NEAR PENGPU IN SOUTH CLAIMED

Chinese Assert, However, They Have Checked Enemy There — Warships Again Bomb Canton Forts

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 5. — Japanese troops hammered both the north and south edges of the East-Central China front today while warships and planes harassed South China to prevent reinforcement of defenses in the vital corridor to the North.

Chinese reported their artillery had stopped the Japanese in the frozen bottomlands of the Hwai River near Pengpu, about 90 miles south of Suchow. The Japanese, however, contended they had crossed the Hwai and were driving on North against Kuchen, 30 miles farther north along the fiercely disputed Tientsin-Pukow railway.

West of Pengpu, recently captured railway city, the Japanese said they had driven Chinese out of Kwaiyuan, consolidating gains for the push against Suchow, junction of the Tientsin-Pukow railway and the East-West Lunghai line, center of Chinese resistance on this principal front.

Japanese Advance in Shantung.

In southeastern Shantung Province, on the Northern fringe of the East Central front, a Japanese column from Tsingtao occupied Chucheng while another, driven out of Mengyin by a Chinese counterstroke a week ago, recaptured the town. Chucheng and Mengyin are about 85 miles apart. Chinese sources said there were four Japanese divisions in Shantung Province for the push southward on the Lunghai railway.

Authorities of Kwangtung Province in South China had planned to dispatch fresh troops to the East Central front this week, it was disclosed, but instead they were rushed to defense positions along the Southern coast.

The Bocca Tigris Forts in the delta of the Pearl River below Canton withstood and returned the fire of Japanese warships trying to open the river gateway to the populous city. Bombing planes pounded at the forts and continued spreading destruction through Kwangtung Province.

More than 500 missionaries scattered through the province, outside of Canton, Macao and Hongkong, the British crown colony, wer eendangered by the sweep of the warthe British crown colony, were endangered were Americans.

A spokesman for civil and military authorities of Canton told of reports of an attempt to overthrow the Nationalist Government in Kwantung Province in favor of a Japanese-controlled government. He said the situation was well in hand and that martial law and the halting of river navigation between Canton and Hongkong were more of a precaution than a suppression of revolt. More than 100 suspected anti-Nationalist agitators were arrested.

Shanghai Customs Deadlock.

In Shanghai, the Japanese were still deadlocked with representatives of outside powers, including the United States, over the payment of customs and whether customs receipts should be deposited in Yokohama's specie bank until the issue is settled. The compromise proposal of consular officials that the customs collections be turned over to an international committee and deposited in banks of various nationalties was reported rejected by the Japanese.

The situation has become the subject of nearly daily conferences among United States Consul General Clarence E. Gauss, French Consul-General Paul Emil Naggiar, British Charge D'Affaires R. G. Howe and Japanese authorities.

The increasing number of Japanese ships docking without examination or customs payments—such as required of vessels of other nationalities—made the future of customs Shanghai's principal international problem.

Assurances requested by the United States as a condition of settlement were understood to embody the traditional "open door" policy—integrity of the customs service and equality of treatment—together with uninterrupted servicing of China's foreign loans and boxer indemnities.

Text of U. S. Note to Japan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.

1. The Japanese Government will be aware that under the London naval treaty, 1936, the American Government is precluded from constructing capital ships (i. e., vessels of more than 10,000 standard displacement or with a gun of more than eight inches), which exceed 35,000 tons or carry a gun of more than 16 inches, or which are of less than 17,500 tons or carry a gun of less than 10 inches. As regards cruisers (i. e., vessels of not more than 10,000 tons with gun of not more than eight inches) the American Government is limited to a maximum of 8000 tons with six-inch guns.

2. The Japanese Government has unfortunately not seen its way to subscribing to the London naval treaty nor has it hitherto felt able to give any assurances that treaty limits would in practice be adhered to by it.

3. As the Japanese Government will be aware, the naval treaty gives the American Government a right of escalation in the event of building not in conformity with treaty limits by a Power not a party thereto. There have for some time been persistent and cumulative reports, which, in the absence of explicit assurances from the Japanese Government that they are ill-founded, must be deemed to be authentic, that Japan has undertaken or intends to undertake construction of capital ships and cruisers not in conformity with the above-mentioned limits. The American Government has therefore decided that it will be necessary for it to exercise its right of escalation unless the Japanese Government can furnish the aforesaid assurances and can satisfy the American Government that it will not, prior to Jan. 1, 1943, lay down, complete or acquire any vessel which does not conform to the limits in question, without previously informing the American Government of its intention to do so and of tonnage and caliber of the largest gun of the vessel or vessels concerned.

4. In view of the forthcoming publication of naval estimates and necessity for giving other Treaty Powers information as to intended American construction, the American Government will be glad to receive a reply not later than Feb. 20 next. Should no reply be received by that date or should the reply be lacking in the desired information and assurances, it will be compelled to assume that the Japanese Government either is constructing or acquiring or has authorized the construction or acquisition of vessels not in conformity with the limits referred to. The American Government would thereupon be obliged in consultation with the other Naval Powers with which it is in treaty relations to resume full liberty of action. If, however, the Japanese Government, though engaged in, or intending to engage in, construction not in conformity with treaty limits, were willing to indicate forthwith the tonnages and calibers of guns of the vessels which it was constructing, or was intending to construct, the American Government for its part would be ready to discuss with the Japanese Government the question of the tonnages and gun calibers to be adhered to in future if Japan were now prepared to agree to some limitation. It would, however, be necessary that such consultation should be completed by May 1.

(The date of Jan. 1, 1943, mentioned in the note, refers to the limit of time, according to the Washington Naval Treaty of 1923, wherein the replacement of United States existing battleships by new ones should have been completed.)

SOVIET ARCTIC CAMPERS DRIFT FARTHER FROM GREENLAND

Temperature Drops, Heartening Rescue Crews, Who Have Feared Break-Up of Small Floe.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Feb. 5. — The four Soviet Arctic campers riding the ice from the North Pole tonight reported their 160 by 100-foot floe had drifted 20 miles farther from Greenland's east coast in 24 hours while the temperature continued to drop.

News of the falling temperature heartened rescue crews, who had feared the floe might break up before the campers could be reached if recent warmer weather should continue to prevail.

Magnetic disturbances interfered with radio communication last night and today but no alarm was felt for the men. They took refuge on the small floe when their larger camping site broke up. Commander Ivan Papanin, in charge of the scientific expedition, radioed the new position was 74.03 degrees north and 16.30 degrees west, about 120 miles east of Greenland and more than 1100 miles from the North Pole. He said the temperature was 8.6 degrees above zero (Fahrenheit).

The hydrographic steamer Murmanets reported she was skirting a great icefield in her effort to pick up the campers. She said she was about 350 miles southeast of their floe. Foggy weather in the Arctic Ocean east of Greenland somewhat delayed vessels proceeding to the aid of the party.

CHILD RUNS INTO CHARGED FENCE AND IS ELECTROCUTED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOBERLY, Mo., Feb. 5.—Bernice Ridgeway, 11 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ridgeway, was electrocuted this afternoon, when she ran into an electrically charged two-strand barbed wire stock fence in the yard of Willard E. McCune's home. McCune, a W P A worker, had equipped the fence for an 110-volt electric charge to keep his mules and goats from escaping. He was at work and his wife said she had thought the current was off.

The child was playing "cowboy and Indian" with other children when she ran into the fence. Her legs struck the bottom strand and she clutched the top strand with her hands. The ground was moist.

Billy Hudson, a playmate, called his father, A. M. Hudson, who found the girl had been electrocuted.

4 MEN ROB E. ST. LOUIS HOTEL CLERK OF $845

Broadview Auditor Forced Into Auto, Then Dumped in Ditch Near Millstadt, Ill.

Willard Christine, assistant auditor of the Broadview Hotel, East St. Louis, was robbed of $845 shortly after noon yesterday by four men who stopped him on the street a few blocks from the hotel and forced him at the point of a revolver to enter their automobile. They drove him to a point on a side road, near Millstadt, Ill., and pushed him out of the moving machine. He rolled into a ditch, but was not seriously injured and was able to walk to a farmhouse to telephone for help.

Christine was returning to the hotel from the First National Bank with money he had received for checks he cashed, more than $400 for the hotel and about $400 in checks for other employes. Frequently he carried larger sums on the weekly trip.

The robbers accosted him after stopping their automobile at the curb as he walked on Fourth street near Missouri avenue, he told Frank Lake, manager of the Broadview Hotel, who repeated his account to reporters.

One of the men in the machine called: "What road to Millstadt?" a town about 14 miles from East St. Louis. Christine walked to the side of the car. As he began to give directions, one of the occupants drew a revolver from beneath his coat and pressed it against Christine.

"Maybe you better get in and show us the way," he said, quietly. Christine took a back seat between two of the robbers and the driver started toward Millstadt. On the way, one of them opened the auditor's brief case, which contained the money.

"There ought to be more in here than this," he exclaimed after counting the contents. "There should be about $3700." The driver turned from the highway on the road which led through fields. He slowed the car, someone opened the door, and Christine was sent sprawling in the ditch, as the machine sped on. He was bruised and his face lacerated.

HULL TELLS JAPAN U. S. WILL KEEP PACE IN SHIPS

Asks in Note Whether It Is True Tokio Government Is Building War Craft Beyond 35,000-Ton London Treaty Limit.

INCLUDES OFFER TO DISCUSS LIMITATION

Secretary of State Requests Reply to Inquiry by Feb. 20 — Great Britain and France Make Similar Representations.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. — The United States, together with Great Britain and France, presented to Japan today a formal notice that it would build battleships bigger than 35,000 tons unless Japan says definitely it is not exceeding this limit.

In a formal note presented to the Japanese Government by Ambassador Grew at Tokio, the United States gave Japan until Feb. 20 to reply. Failure to reply will be construed officially as an admission that Japan is building or intends building battleships beyond 35,000 tons and cruisers beyond 8000 tons, and the United States will do likewise.

Consultation between the two countries for limitation of battleship sizes must be completed by May 1, the American note says. The 15-day limit for the Japanese reply was set because this Government must assemble its fleet estimates in time to communicate them to Great Britain and France, other signatories of the London Naval Treaty of 1936, before May 1.

'Persistent Reports.'

Apparently refusing to accept repeated statements of official Japanese spokesmen that Japan is not building or contemplating building bigger battleships, Secretary of State Hull told Japan:

"There have for some time been persistent and cumulative reports, which in the absence of explicit assurances from the Japanese Government that they are ill-founded, must be deemed to be authentic, that Japan has undertaken or intends to undertake construction of capital ships and cruisers not in conformity with the above-mentioned limits."

He referred to the limits of the London treaty of 1936, to which Japan never has adhered.

Some students of naval affairs called attention to the phrase of Secretary Hull's note saying that Japan's assurances, if given, must "satisfy the American Government that it will not, prior to Jan. 1, 1943, lay down, complete or acquire any vessel which does not conform to the limits in question."

They took this to mean that the United States might not be content with mere assurances, even though written, and might ask for permission for American naval attaches to visit Japanese shipyards.

Japan's 1932 Proposal.

Political observers felt Japan might reply with a counter-proposal such as it made at the Geneva disarmament conference of 1932, calling for the elimination of all battleships.

In any event, they thought that consultation between the two countries for limitation of battleship sizes might be the prelude to another naval disarmament conference. The consultation, they thought, might be joined by Great Britain and France, and the exchanges might lead to a preliminary conference for general limitations.

Dispatches from Tokio giving reaction of officials to the American note were not regarded here as encouraging.

Whether Japan replies or not, observers said, this country will know where it stands with regard to building battleships over 35,000 tons. The time limit of Feb. 20, means that the Japanese intentions, either explicitly or implicitly, will be known to this country in time for the Naval Affairs Committee of the House, which is at present hearing

ROLL OF DRUMS GREETS GOERING

Field Marshal and Other Officers Promoted Present Themselves to Reichsfuehrer.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—Fuehrer Hitler was ready to press his demands for German "rights" tonight after having put the Nazi party in control of the army and reorganized the foreign service.

With conservatives in the army and Foreign Ministry ousted for ardent Nazis, spokesmen began shouting the demands:

1. Return of Germany's "robbed" colonies;
2. Control of the Free City of Danzig;
3. German influence in Austria.

The German army appeared to have taken the drastic shake-up, suddenly imposing a new high command, with the same discipline with which it took the oath of allegiance to Hitler after the death of President Paul von Hindenburg in 1934.

How It Came About.

The series of decrees last night which liquidated the week-long Cabinet crisis gave Hitler no real increase of power; he had it already. The real significance of Der Fuehrer's move was the centralization of power in his own hands and those of his younger followers whose loyalty to Nazi ideals is unquestioned.

Hitler took direct control of the armed forces, promoting 46 high-ranking officers and retiring 18 "Christian" Generals; he handed the Foreign Ministry over to Joachim von Ribbentrop, his personal ambassador who once was known as Europe's best champagne salesman; he shuffled ambassadors.

And all of this, perhaps the most far-reaching move of the five years of German rule, because the conservative army generals objected to the War Minister's wedding to a woman they described as "socially impossible." They objected to Field Marshal Werner von Blomberg's marriage to his secretary, a carpenter's daughter; forced him out of office; and, feeling their success, demanded Hitler say whether Nazis or generals would rule the army. Der Fuehrer answer them: "Henceforth, I, personally, will exercise direct command over the armed establishment."

A brief announcement said Government ministers "expressed warm approval" of Hitler's measures tonight at a Cabinet meeting where preliminary outlines of future Nazi policies were discussed.

Roll of Drums for Goering.

All of the 33 army officers and 13 from the air force, who yesterday were promoted either in rank or to positions of greater responsibility, presented themselves to Hitler at the chancellory to report for duty.

The newly-created Field Marshal General, Hermann Wilhelm Goering, received a special roll of drums when he arrived and departed from thechancellery as well as a demonstration from curious crowds.

Marshal Goering in a brief speech opening an art exhibition, showed that return of Germany's pre-war colonial possessions is still uppermost in the Nazi mind.

Hint About Austria.

A broad hint Austria was being watched with particular interest by Hitler was contained in an editorial in Goering's newspaper Essener National Zeitung. Commenting on retirement of Franz von Papen as Ambassador to Austria, the paper said "the Vienna post is at this moment once again of greatest importance to the Reich."

From another quarter, the Free City of Danzig, came word the Danzig fuehrer, Albert Forster, last night told a meeting of sub-leaders Danzig "must stand before the world unmistakably as 100 per cent German and National Socialist." Danzig was made a free city by the Treaty of Versailles.

Nazi demands for better treatment of German minorities, especially in Czechoslovakia, have been emphasized lately. The Reichstag has been called in session for Feb. 20.

More Changes Expected.

The fact was apparent that Hitler considered it the moment for young understudies to take greater responsibility and replace older men whose assistance at first was indispensable.

It was considered almost certain two recalled German Ambassadors, Herbert von Dirksen from Tokio and Franz von Papen from Austria, would be retired and only Ulrich von Hassell, coming home from Rome, would continue in the Reich foreign service. Von Hassell's work in bringing Hitler and Mussolini together was said to be deeply appreciated by the Fuehrer.

The army took some satisfaction in that Gen. Walter von Reichenau, to whom the stigma of "political general" had been attached, was promoted to command of the Fourth Army Group at Leipzig rather than to succeed Gen. Werner von Fritsch as chief of staff.

A "regular" army man, Von Brauchitsch, succeeded Von Fritsch, whose open opposition to the recent marriage of Marshal Werner von Blofberg touched off the crisis.

Surprise Meeting by British Cabinet; Only Rome Pleased.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—European Chancelleries tonight attempted to analyze Hitler's startling Government changes with some fearful of Nazi expansion along lines long indicated.

British Cabinet members, remembering former Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's famous statement, "our frontier is on the Rhine," held a surprise meeting to review Britain's position in the new situation.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden had the benefit of a personal report from Britain's Ambassador to Berlin, Sir Nevile Henderson, whose sudden recall to London this week was understood to be primarily to give his own appraisal of events leading to the German cabinet crisis and the possible consequences.

Appointment of a new German Ambassador to Vienna, replacing Franz von Papen, was awaited as the next indication of the Reich's Nazi-controlled foreign policy and whether it would move toward Nazification of Austria.

In Rome alone there was official rejoicing though nervousness was not entirely absent concerning German internal developments.

Congratulations to Hitler on his assumption of control over Germany's war machine as "destined to reinforce the friendship between our two armed forces and the relations between our regimes" were telegraphed by Mussolini.

Moscow View: More Aggressive Nazi Leaders to Top.

MOSCOW, Feb. 5.—Adolf Hitler's assumption of the German army command and the drastic diplomatic shake-up is regarded here as an effort to make the more aggressive Nazi leaders masters of Germany's "war policy."

Some observers take the view Hitler is preparing for war. The appointment of Joachim von Ribbentrop, former Ambassador to London, as Foreign Minister, particularly, caused concern. Von Ribbentrop is considered a strong advocate of a close working arrangement between Germany and Japan.

MAN STRUCK, SERIOUSLY HURT BY AUTO; DRIVER SPEEDS ON

Clarence A. Du Rell, a clothing salesman, 3501 Victor street, was seriously injured last night when he was struck by an automobile which failed to stop. His skull was fractured.

Emmett Cloyd, 5427 Manchester avenue, told police he was parking his car in the 1500 block of South Broadway when he heard a crash and Du Rell was hurled against the fender of his machine. A black sedan, which had apparently struck Du Rell, was proceeding south in Broadway at high speed, Cloyd said.

Police searched the street in vain for glass or parts which might have been knocked off the car by the impact.

Du Rell, 50 years old, was about t call for his wife at a furniture store at 1510 South Broadway, where she is employed, to escort her home. She heard the crash in the street, but did not investigate. Du Rell, who is employed by the Weil Clothing Co., 801 Washington avenue, was taken to City Hospital.

testimony from naval officials, to revise the proposed naval building program.

Text of State Department Statement on Its Note.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The text of the State Department's statement on its note to Japan, follows:

"Since Dec. 31, 1936, when the Washington Naval Treaty of 1922 and the London Naval Treaty of 1930 expired, as a result of denunciation by Japan, there has been no quantitative naval limitation, that is, a limit on the number of ships which a nation may build.

"There has been qualitative limitation, that is, a limit on the types of ships which a nation may build. This limitation has been in effect between the signatories of the London Naval Treaty of 1936 — the United States, Great Britain and France—and between Great Britain on the one hand, and Germany and the Soviet Union on the other.

"Japan took part in the early stages of the London naval conference of 1935-1936, but withdrew when the other participants were unable to accept the Japanese demand for a common upper limit, which meant that Japan would have naval equality in principle with the United States and Great Britain.

"Subsequently, in 1936, Japan was approached by the British Government and asked if it would not give assurances that the treaty limits on types of ships would in practice be adhered to by it even though it could not see its way to subscribing to the London Naval Treaty.

"This Government took up with Japan the limit of the size of guns on capital ships. Under Article 4 of the London Naval Treaty, 1936, it is provided that 14 inches should be the limit of the caliber of guns on capital ships; however, if any of the parties to the Washington Naval Treaty of Feb. 6, 1922, should fail to accept this limit by April 1, 1937, 16 inches would become the treaty limit of guns carried on capital ships.

"Despite the efforts of this Government, Japan declined to accept the limit of 14 inches, and, as a consequence of the Japanese refusal, the limit of the guns on capital ships rose to 16 inches.

"Recently, reports have been recurrent that Japan not only is exceeding the limits provided in the London Naval Treaty, 1936, on the size of guns of cruisers and capital ships, but is building, or is planning to build, above the limit of types of ships as well.

"The question arises, therefore, whether these reports are correct and if so whether it will be necessary for the parties to the London Naval Treaty, 1936, to escalate, in accordance with the provision of the naval treaty which gives a signatory the right of escalation in the event of building not in conformity with the treaty limits by a Power not a party thereto. Before the parties to the treaty can escalate, under its provisions they must consult. A preliminary consultation has taken place and the British, French and American Governments have decided to approach the Japanese Government with a request for information.

"In the following note to be delivered to the Japanese Government by the American Ambassador to Tokio, Mr. Joseph C. Grew, on Feb. 5, it is suggested that the United States, as a party to the London Naval Treaty, will be glad to receive a reply to the inquiry with regard to the size and armament of Japanese capital ships and cruisers not later than Feb. 20 next. The reason for fixing Feb. 20 is that it is incumbent upon this Government, under the London Naval Treaty, to furnish information with regard to its naval program to the Treaty Powers within the first four months of the calendar year and that in order to prepare its estimates and have them ready for communication to the other Naval Powers parties to the London Naval Treaty, it is essential that the facts upon which the estimates are based be wholly assembled at the latest by the end of February. The hope is, therefore, expressed that a reply will be received from the Japanese Government by Feb. 20, in order that the exchange of information may be completed by the final date referred to in the note, that is, May 1."

Official Says It Would Be Step Back for Japan to Limit Navy.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Feb. 5.—The American and British notes were presented to Foreign Minister Koki Hirota today by United States Ambassador Grew and Sir Robert Craigie, the British envoy. France addressed a similar note.

The Foreign Office acknowledged receipts with a brief statement describing the notes as a request for information on Japan's position concerning the tonnage and gun calibers for warships.

At a meeting of the Subcommittee on Naval Affairs, Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, the Naval Minister, described Japan's program as one of watchful waiting but he added: "We cannot waste time indefinitely with this attitude."

He said the British and American policies seemed to be based on "the idea of sounding out Japan's naval intentions."

Invasion of Japanese waters, he said, would mean immediate retaliation. A spokesman hastened to explain that the Admiral did not refer to friendly visits of foreign fleets, which would be as welcome as always.

At the same time Foreign Minister Hirota indicated to Parliament his concern over the attitude of the United States toward Japan's undeclared war against China. He said the China "incident" was not war either from an internal or an international point of view.

"The two nations now are in a state of war but it is not international warfare," he said, adding emphatically "we especially do not claim rights as belligerents."

In answer to questions from members on steps taken to better American relations, Hirota said:

"It is most necessary for Japan to improve her relations with the United States, which is not a member of the League of Nations but is contributing much to the cause of world peace and is maintaining a 'good neighbor policy.'"

VIEWS OF SENATORS ON ARMAMENT POLICY

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. — The Government's armament program indicates the United States is "going to take the offense and probably join hands with England and France," Senator Wheeler (Dem.), Montana, declared today.

"I'm opposed to this huge naval program that's being undertaken," he said, in an interview concerning the President's request that Congress authorize an $800,000,000 expansion of the fleet.

"I'm perfectly willing to build a navy for defensive purposes, but I'm opposed to building a navy for offensive purposes."

An assertion that the nation had entered a rearmament race "towards national and world bankruptcy" came from Senator Thomas, (Dem.), Utah, member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and a supporter of most administration policies. Thomas called in a radio address for mutual faith among nations to end the world's "fear complex."

Replying to a request that he support a boycott of Japanese goods, Thomas said a boycott of one nation against another was a mistake and never could bring lasting or effective results. "A boycott, to be effective, must be one of the many against the few, or one," he said.

Senator Bone (Dem.), Washington, a member of the Senate's mandatory neutrality bloc, declared the time had come for a broad statement of American foreign policy.

It would not be necessary for such a statement to give details of military and naval plans, the Senator suggested, but it could notify the world "we're not again going to try to police the world but will protect our own fireside."

Senator Holt (Dem.), Virginia, commented: "President Roosevelt has always had two hobbies — boats and stamp collecting. It would be cheaper for the country if he would confine himself to stamp collecting and drop his other hobby."

BRITAIN TO DEMAND FRANCO PAY FOR SHIP

Drafts Note Calling on Spanish Rebels to Stop Attacks on Neutral Vessels.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The British Foreign Office drafted a note to the Spanish insurgents today demanding immediate cessation of attacks on neutral shipping and compensation for the freighter Alcira, sunk by aerial bombs about 20 miles off Barcelona yesterday.

It was understood Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden also would inform Gen. Francisco Franco, head of the insurgent government, that the Mediterranean patrol had been strengthened and had orders to sink on sight any submarine found lurking in the shipping lanes.

This phase of the note referred particularly to the sinking last Monday off the Spanish coast of the British freighter Endymion. It was torpedoed by an unidentified submarine, according to British information.

Aerial attacks on British shipping, such as the sinking of the Alcira, concerned Eden because of the difficulty encountered by warships in operating against planes preying on isolated vessels. These planes are thought to be based at Palma, Mallorca and there have been proposals that action be taken against this insurgent stronghold.

In Barcelona, Capt. Hugh MacCracken of the Alcira, nursing a headache and in an ugly mood over the loss of his ship, demanded to know "Whose war is this?"

"I've lost my ship and my job—even my hat was blown off," Capt. MacCracken said. He and several other members of the crew were suffering from concussion.

There was mounting indignation in Britain in which members of Parliament took the lead. It was said Eden was prepared to outline fully on Monday in the House of Commons the steps planned or effected to stop ship attacks.

Gen. Franco announced some time ago that he was setting up a blockade against all supplies for the Barcelona Government, Britain refused to recognize it and contended there was no evidence of its effectiveness, an essential condition under international law for acceptance of a blockade.

TEXTILE UNION ACCEPTS PAY CUT UNDER PROTEST

FALL RIVER, Mass., Feb. 5.—Assailing what it called "unfair practice leading to chaos," the Textile Workers Organizing Committee accepted "under protest" today a 12½ per cent weekly wage cut declared by mill owners this week.

The T W O C, a Committee for Industrial Organization affiliate, claims a majority of the 15,000 mill workers in this Massachusetts cotton textile center as members.

"Inasmuch as we are in the middle of a vicious wage-cutting cycle, and recognizing those circumstances," declared Mariano Bishop, T W O C leader, "we must submit temporarily to such tactics of employers which we consider improper and most unfair."

KOKI HIROTA ON WAR THAT IS NOT A WAR

Foreign Minister of Japan Essays to Explain Status in China.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Feb. 5.—Foreign Minister Koki Hirota told the Diet today the China "incident" is not a war either from the internal or international viewpoint.

"The two nations now are in a state of war, but it is not international warfare," Hirota said in answering a questioner, explaining "We especially do not claim rights as belligerents." Hirota earlier this week had said that a "state of war" existed between the two nations, although Japan has not formally declared war.

Asked what Japan was doing concerning relations with the United States, Hirota replied: "It is most necessary for Japan to improve her relations with the United States, which is not a member of the League of Nations, but is contributing much to the cause of world peace and is maintaining a 'good neighbor policy.'"

He answered a question on Japanese steps to protect commercial interests abroad: "It is important, both from the military and financial viewpoints, to promote overseas trade. Japan needs materials from abroad at present. Japan has been suffering inconvenience because of the exchange control ordinance. We shall do our best to obtain importation of necessary materials."

TWO REPORTS LIST OLDER ST. LOUIS SCHOOLS' DEFECTS

Most of Them Are Below Modern Fireproofing Requirements, Superintendent Gerling Says.

FREQUENT, COSTLY REPAIRS NEEDED

Building Commissioner Lists 47, or a Third of System, as Over 40 Years Old.

Most of the older public school buildings of St. Louis do not qualify under present-day fireproofing requirements, although there probably is little danger of a serious fire hazard, Superintendent of Instruction Henry J. Gerling has reported to the Board of Education.

However, he pointed out that for the last 40 years the board has been committed to the policy of erecting fireproof schools, which, if rigorously applied, would require replacement of nearly all the older buildings.

In a separate report, Building Commissioner George W. Sanger listed 47 school buildings more than 40 years old, or nearly one-third of all in the system. Thirty-three are more than 50 years, the oldest being about 73 years.

"They have one characteristic in common," said Sanger, "they are all partially fireproofed, third-class buildings, except the small branch building at the Ames School and the Special School No. 7 building, which are straight third-class buildings. After the Collinwood (O.) school fire disaster had awakened the country to the dangers from fire and panic inherent in the old non-fireproof school buildings, the corridor floors, stairs and ceilings of the boiler and coal rooms of all of the above buildings, except the two mentioned, were reconstructed of fireproof materials.

"The stairways were also enclosed with metal and wire-glass partitions. This provides the equivalent of inside fire escapes in the enclosed and fireproofed stairs. However, a fire hazard still remains in the wood-joist floors in the classrooms. A fire originating in a classroom can be transmitted to rooms above and below and fire and smoke from this source will penetrate the corridors through the classroom doors."

List of Old Schools.

Old schools in this category listed by Sanger are, in order of age: L'Ouverture, Clinton, Penrose, Clinton branch, Lincoln branch, Carr Lane, O'Fallon, Pestalozzi, Riddick, Carondelet, Irving, Dessalines, Divoll, Jefferson, Peabody, Waring, Ames, Banneker, Adams, Crow, Arlington, Blair, Gratiot, Hodgen, Dozier, Bryan Hill branch, Special No. 7, Hodgen branch, Longfellow, Benton, Chouteau, Grant, Marquette, Washington, Howard, Charless, Froebel, Wheatley, Harrison, Fremont and Mason branch.

The only building money the board has is a bond issue balance for one Negro grade school and general funds earmarked for a new Negro teachers' college. There has been no indication that general income of the board would yield enough to spare for an appreciable amount of construction. If the proposal to retain a maximum school tax rate of 85 cents per $100 valuation should fail at the special election April 5, the board would have to revert to a 60-cent rate.

"These buildings," Sanger went on, in the discussion of the old structures, "have been kept in good repair and are as safe as it is possible to make them without replacing the entire floor construction. Because of their age, the advisability of such complete reconstruction might be questioned, particularly since they have many other inherent defects and lack many of the facilities of our modern buildings.

"In general they are poorly planned. The classrooms are not the size and shape now considered most desirable. Due to construction of additions at various times, many of them are rambling in plan instead of compact units, and corridors and stairways are incorrectly placed for convenient circulation. The wire-glass enclosures at stairwells, which are not necessary in fireproof buildings, obstruct circulation. The windows in classrooms are generally placed on two sides of the room. It is frequently found that shades are drawn on the windows at the rear or front of the room to eliminate glare in the teachers' or pupils' eyes and the electric lights used to supplement the remaining inadequate natural light.

Many Lack Recreation Rooms.

"Many of them are without indoor playrooms or gymnasiums, and in others the space for such activities is restricted or unsuitable for many purposes because of low ceilings, column obstructions and exposed piping. Facilities for meetings of parent-teacher organizations and other groups privileged to use the schools are sadly lacking. Wardrobe accommodations generally are poor. Few of these buildings have adequate facilities for the visiting doctor or nurse or rest rooms for teachers.

"Playground space in this group of buildings is generally limited. Almost all have less than 100 square feet of playground space per pupil, and more than half of them have less than 50 square feet. The mechanical equipment of these buildings is of various types and deficient in provisions for ventilation. The heating systems are so sluggish that many hours are spent daily in bringing the rooms up to temperature in normal weather and reasonable room temperatures can only be maintained in severe weather by operating the plants 24 hours per day. These conditions result not only in the custodians having to put in long hours, but also in a considerable waste of fuel."

Few of the buildings have the safety electrical switches and switchboards now required, the commissioner related, and the inadequate lighting could not be replaced without complete rewiring.

Frequent and Costly Repair.

"Frequently," he continued, "major improvements must be made in order to maintain the buildings in a usable condition. Many of the older buildings have overhanging wood cornices which require costly inspection and repairs to avoid the hazards of falling pieces which may have come loose due to gradual decay.

"It would be impractical to attempt to replace all of these 47 buildings in a very short time, due to the policy of this board in paying for school buildings out of current revenue. It should be considered, however,, that there is an urgent need for new school buildings as long as any of these buildings remain in service. During the 15 years following 1898, the board authorized construction of 46 buildings, or an average of three per year. A similar program during the next 15 years would establish St. Louis as a city without a nonfireproof school."

Sanger also outlined various other deficiencies of the old structures.

Dr. Gerling's Findings.

Dr. Gerling's report, listing substantially the same group of old schools, noted a variety of objections to these buildings. Among these were: Grouping of several obsolescent structures in one yard, dark and uninviting buildings, steep stairways, insufficient blackboard space, poor toilet arrangements.

The superintendent called attention to such factors in planning school construction as increase or decrease of the neighborhood population, convenience of operation, location of old schools on heavily traveled streets or in districts of changed character, effect of surrounding industry, and desirability of replacing two old schools with one centrally located.

He suggested amalgamation of the Grant and Charless schools and of the Peabody and Clinton branch; removal of the L'Ouverture from the vicinity of railroad tracks, probable abandonment within the next decade of the Dessalines, Jefferson and Peabody, and the need to retain a school such as the Rock Spring until the future character of its district could be determined. He urged provision of a new open-air school to replace the unsatisfactory Taussig and Porter, in a more suitable site out of the smoke zone.

promised their father, on his deathbed, to do all they could to help their brother Isador, a former Egan gangster, who was then in the Michigan penitentiary serving a term for robbery.

A payment for the parole was the explanation Morris offered at the bankruptcy hearings for the large withdrawals he and Louis made from the garment company in the two months before its bankruptcy. The day after he had first testified to that he returned to the stand and said Louis had told him the night before, for the first time, that he had used the money, not for the parole, but for "gambling and women."

Morris' pleas of guilty were to one of three counts in the perjury indictment against him and to the conspiracy count in the concealment indictment. The charge of concealment against him was dismissed by the Government, with leave to reinstate. Louis pleaded guilty to the concealment count and the conspiracy count against him was dismissed, with leave to reinstate.

Perjury Admitted.

The perjury charges against Morris were based on the testimony he gave at hearings before the Referee in Bankruptcy in which he told of payments made by the garment company to the mysterious "Max Katz" of Chicago. The perjury count to which he pleaded guilty related to his testimony describing the appearance of "Max Katz," and conversations he said he had with Katz.

The two perjury counts dismissed with leave to reinstate related to a check for $4626, drawn on the account of the Pearl Garment Co. a few days before it entered bankruptcy in August, 1936, and cashed with the indorsement of "Max Katz."

One of these counts alleged Morris Londe perjured himself in testifying that this check was issued in payment for furs purchased from "Katz." The other count alleged perjury in his testimony that he had thought Louis cashed the check, without paying "Katz" and used the money to help pay for the parole their brother, Isador, had received from the Michigan State penitentiary the previous March.

Morris has appealed from the order to surrender the concealed $76,000, and Louis has been cited for contempt in failing to obey it. The brothers have taken the position Morris cleared himself by testifying Louis got the money, and that Louis cleared himself by admitting he owed it to the bankrupt firm but couldn't pay it.

Bureau of Air Commerce Says Line Does Not Obey Rules on Maintenance of Planes.

SUPREME COURT STOP ORDER ON INSURANCE FEES

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 5.—State Superintendent of Insurance George S. Robertson and Attorney-General Roy McKittrick asked the Missouri Supreme Court today to prohibit Circuit Judge Nike G. Sevier from paying any more fees to custodians and attorneys from $2,750,000 in impounded excess insurance premiums.

The tribunal issued a stop order at once, directing Judge Sevier to take no further action until after the application for the writ of prohibition had been ruled on.

Judge Sevier approved Thursday a report of L. H. Cook and H. P. Lauf, Jefferson City attorneys, who were named as custodians and commissioners of the fund.

Fees and Allowances.

The report disclosed that about $88,000 of the impounded funds had been returned to policyholders at a total cost of about $235,000. The cost of making the refunds included about $60,000 each in fees paid to Cook and Lauf and about $37,000 authorized in fees for Gilbert Lamb, their attorney. The remainder represented office expenses and clerical help.

Judge Sevier has also approved allowances of $137,500 each to three Kansas City attorneys—Floyd E. Jacobs, John T. Baker and Glenn C. Weatherby—for services in the 10 per cent fire insurance rate reduction case in which the funds were impounded.

The petition filed by Robertson and McKittrick pointed out that all of the allowances had been appealed by the Attorney General to the Supreme Court.

The high court was asked to direct Judge Sevier to make no further allowances to Cook, Lauf, Lamb, Jacobs, Baker and Weatherby.

Sevier's Authority Questioned.

The petition asserted the superintendent of insurance was the lawful custodian of the impounded funds and that Judge Sevier had no authority to name custodians or authorize fees.

"Judge Sevier is exceeding his jurisdiction and threatening to act in excess of his jurisdiction and without authority of law, to deplete further and diminish said excess collections, illegally received by insurance companies, and now in custody of said Circuit Court," the petition alleged.

The impounded money is an outgrowth of a 10 per cent rate reduction ordered in 1922. The companies fought the order but lost in 1929 in the United States Supreme Court.

About $13,000,000 had been collected in excess premiums between 1922 and 1929. The companies repaid all but $2,750,000 of this. The Cole County Circuit Court took jurisdiction of this latter sum and named Cook and Lauf to attempt to make the refunds.

ARMY PLANS TO CLEAR ALTON DAM LAKE SITE DESPITE UNION

"Government Property" Signs to Be Posted on Tract; Pickets Halted Work Friday.

The Army Engineer Corps will make another attempt to begin the work of clearing trees and brush from the Alton dam lake site Wednesday, Maj. E. P. Ketchum of the St. Louis District Engineers' office announces.

Maj. Ketchum said that to prevent another interruption of the work by picketing members of the Hodcarriers', Building Construction and Common Laborers' Union of St. Charles County, signs saying "Government Property—No Trespassing" would be posted conspicuously on the roads and trails of the 2645-acre area, across the Mississippi River from Alton, and trespassers will be prosecuted.

Sixty-one St. Charles County residents were sworn in as special deputy sheriffs yesterday by Circuit Judge Edgar B. Woolfolk, who told them to hold themselves ready to aid the sheriff in the event of violence on the lake site.

Wilbert Scheffer, business agent of the laborers' union, said more than 200 pickets would be posted on roads leading to the area when work is resumed. Unionists, protesting against the Government wage of 44 cents an hour, appeared on the scene Friday when 300 men reported for work, and operations were suspended. The union scale is 67½ cents an hour.

TWO ROBBERS TAKE $250 IN PINE LAWN STORE HOLDUP

Arthur Hughes of M. & H. Market Checking Day's Business When Pair Entered.

Arthur Hughes, co-proprietor of the M. & H. Market, 6509 Oxford lane, Pine Lawn, was robbed of $250 by two young men at 9:15 o'clock last night, shortly before closing time.

The robbers walked in as Hughes was checking Saturday business, one of them asking for cigarettes. As he turned to make change for the purchase, the man said, "This is a holdup," and held his hand in his pocket as if fingering a pistol. The other robber took the money from the cash register and the pair fled on foot, warning Hughes not to call police for five minutes.

GIRL, 5, KEPT HIDDEN IN ATTIC SINCE INFANCY

Child Crippled and Undernourished—'Punishment' for Farmer's Daughter.

By the Associated Press.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Feb. 5. — Humane agencies investigated today the case of a 5-year-old girl who, they cahrged, had been hidden in upstairs rooms of a farmer's home since infancy.

E. M. Smith of the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society said the child, crippled and undernourished, had been found tied to a chair in a storage room in the home of David Harris, about 17 miles from Uniontown.

Smith filed charges of neglect of a minor against Harris and his daughter, Martha. Both will have a hearing Monday before a Justice of the Peace.

Smith quoted Harris as saying the child was illegitimate and had been kept in the room as "a sort of punishment" for his daughter's "second sin."

Woman's Club Complained.

The humane officer reported he found the child after a complaint had ben received from the woman's club of Star Junction, nearby. He said the child was wedged into the chair, which was tilted backwards to rest on a coal bucket, her arms tied above her head. She was unable to talk or move, he said.

Reports had been made, Smith said, that a child was hidden in the home, but it never was seen by neighbors or visitors to the house.

He said the girl had been imprisoned in an attic, without windows or ventilation for two years, then kept for three years in the storage room on the second floor. Martha Harris, he reported, said she fed and cared for the child.

"The child was dressed in a dirty shirt and napkin," Smith said. "Her hands, arms and legs were just about bone with skin drawn over them, so frail she couldn't use them. She never had enough nourishment. She never grew normally and the chair, on which she lay, half-reclining and half sitting, was so small the child had to double her legs partly under her."

Suffering From Rickets.

Dr. J. F. Kerr and Dr. D. F. Newell said the child was undernourished, that the bones in her legs were softened and twisted out of normal shape and that she was suffering from rickets.

Smith and Mrs. Helen Reagan, a probation officer, quoted Harris as saying: "I made her (his daughter) keep it up there, care for it and feed it as a sort of punishment. I forgave her first sin, but not the second."

Martha Harris is 27. The investigators said she told them:

"My father wouldn't let me bring it (the girl) downstairs. He said he didn't want to see it around. I had to run up and down, up and down, to feed and take care of it. It was awfully hard."

The mother said the child's father was a well-to-do farmer. She said the baby was born March 1, 1932, in the home of a private nurse.

Harris, a tall, well-built man, told the investigator he had not seen the child since it had been in the house.

Carl Morrison, Arrested in Tavern, Says He Has Been Threatened as Result of Strike.

Carl Morrison, a foreman in the enameling department of the Ford Motor Co. assembly plant, was arrested last night in a tavern at 813 Academy avenue when police found a loaded revolver in his coat pocket and a tape-wrapped billy in his car.

Morrison, who lives at 5927 Arsenal street, said he had been threatened several times as a result of the strike now in progress at the Ford plant, and that he was carrying the weapons for his protection. A warrant will be sought tomorrow.

9-CENT BREAD CAMPAIGN

New York Market Director Seeks Cut In Price From 11 Cents.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5. — William F. Morgan Jr., Commissioner of Markets, announced today a campaign to cut the retail price of bread in New York from 11 to 9 cents because of the reduced cost of all necessary ingredients.

The first step, he said, will be introduction of a city ordinance requiring bakers to produce bread in half pound and pound units, Morgan cited the sale of bread at 8 cents a loaf by chain stores as evidence that bakers could sell at 9 cents instead of 11 and still make a profit.

CARL STIFEL SETTLES ACCOUNTING SUIT

Brewing Company President Buys All of Stock of Relatives in Firm.

The litigation involving profits of the Otto F. Stifel Union Brewing Co. has been settled by Carl G. Stifel, its president, buying the interest of relatives who filed an accounting suit against him. The settlement was disclosed yesterday in the filing in Circuit Court of a stipulation by which the suit was dismissed.

Milton Yawitz, attorney for Stifel, and Theodore Rassieur, representing the other litigants, said Stifel had acquired all of the 1200 shares of stock of his relatives. This stock has a par value of $120,000 but the attorneys declined to reveal the price paid by Stifel.

Plaintiffs in the suit were Mrs. Louise Conrades; her son, Paul E. Conrades, and the Stifel Estate Co. Mrs. Conrades is a sister of the late Otto F. Stifel, former president of the brewing company and father of Carl G. Stifel.

Last March Circuit Judge John W. Joynt rendered a decree against Stifel for $53,327, due the corporation under a personal agreement made when Stifel leased the company's plant, 3126 Gravois avenue, to the Falstaff Brewing Corporation in 1933.

By the lease the Union company was to receive $1.25 a barrel for beer produced in its plant the first year and $1 a barrel the second year. Falstaff agreed to pay Stifel an additional 75 cents a barrel for his services in rehabilitating the plant. The plaintiffs who were stockholders in the brewery asserted that the company was entitled to the extra compensation.

Under the terms of the settlement Judge Joynt sustained Stifel's motion for a new trial, in which motion Stifel contended the court had erred. The stipulation provided for a realignment of parties whereby the brewing company became plaintiff and the original plaintiffs withdrew from the suit, which was then dismissed.

U. S. OFFICIAL TO SEE WOMAN HELD IN RUSSIA

Permission for Visit to Mrs. Rubens Indicates Spy Inquiry Is Completed.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Feb. 5.—A representative of the United States Embassy will visit Mrs. Ruth Marie Rubens Monday, it was disclosed today, in the hope of solving the mystery of her trip to Russia and subsequent arrest.

Mrs. Rubens, an American citizen, has been held incommunicado since she was arrested Dec. 9 on suspicion of espionage. Soviet authorities agreed today to let a United States diplomatic representative talk to her, but the visit could not be arranged before Monday because of the Sunday holiday.

The fact permission was given for the interview was interpreted as indicating the investigation of Mrs. Rubens has been completed, since the Foreign Office had ruled that American officials could not see her until the inquiry was finished.

Whether she would be held for trial was not disclosed, but circles which have been kept informed of the developments believed she would be tried with the man who entered the country with her as her husband. Their passports gave their names as "Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Robinson" of New York.

COMPTROLLER'S POST RUMORED FOR WEST

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The recent raid of Secretary of the Interior Ickes upon the office force of his under-secretary, Charles West, may result in West being transferred to the higher-salaried post of Comptroller of the Currency, usually informed persons said today.

This possibility was discussed after officials had reported that President Roosevelt was trying to bring peace in his governmental family by transferring West, who is known generally as his contact man with Congress.

The officials said the President also was giving full support to Ickes, who conferred with him today and afterward observed smilingly to reporters: "I have control of the people in my department, and like to see that they earn their salaries."

Ickes said, however, that he discussed only "odds and ends" with the President and that West's name was not mentioned.

Last week Ickes summarily dismantled West's office force in the latter's absence from Washington. Other Interior Department officials said Ickes disliked West's long absences from his office and transferred his Civil Service employes back to the General Land office "so they would have something to do." At the same time, he dismissed from Government service James A. Rohrer, West's brother-in-law and administrative assistant.

West was scheduled to spend the week-end in Lebanon, O., returning to the capital next Tuesday. Associates said he "had his eye on" a place on the National Bituminous Coal Commission a short time ago, but that he probably would prefer becoming Comptroller.

Mr. Roosevelt appointed the former Ohio Congressman in 1935 to be Under-secretary at a salary of $10,000 a year. The post had been created by Congress a short time before.

If appointed Comptroller of the Currency, West would succeed J. F. T. O'Connor, who resigned recently to become a Democratic candidate for Governor of California. The latter, now en route to California, intended to continue in office until April, at the President's request.

1937 STATE JOB INSURANCE TAX TO YIELD $13,500,000

Estimate Revised Upward on Basis of Collections; $17,155,000 Now in Fund.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 5.—The State Unemployment Compensation Commission's first estimate of an $11,000,000 collection on 1937 payrolls for its pooled fund was revised today to $13,500,000. The fund, from which benefit payments to those thrown out of work will begin in 1939, contained $17,155,134.

Of this amount, $4,500,000 was collected by the Federal Government on 1936 payrolls in Missouri and credited to the State. The remaining $12,655,134 was the amount collected to date by the State from its 1.8 per cent tax on 1937 payrolls of employers hiring eight or more persons.

Of the 11,501 contributions due, 9928 had been made on wages of 613,813 employes totaling $70,761,854, leaving 1573 contributions yet to be made.

STRIKES PREVENT PRINTING OF THREE TEXAS DAILIES

By the Associated Press.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Feb. 5.—Three daily newspapers of the Valley Publishing Co., at McAllen, Harlingen and Brownsville, were at a standstill today because of strikes.

Striking printers and sympathizers picketed the Brownsville Herald plant when the management declined to sign a closed shop contract with the International Typographical Union. Earlier this week printers quit at the McAllen Monitor and Harlingen Morning Star plants for the same reason.

Limited editions of the three dailies have been published at the Herald plant here until today, with the help of a few printers who returned to their jobs and with outside aid.

Picketing began here yesterday afternoon when work was about to start on the Harlingen paper's edition. After the union press crew, not striking, went to lunch the pickets denied them re-entrance to the building. The paper was not published. No violence was reported.

STRICKEN BOY, 14, RALLIES AFTER BLOOD TRANSFUSION

Claude Robertson, 14 years old, 3522 Oregon avenue, is recovering at Barnes Hospital from streptococcus viridans infection, usually fatal, following a blood transfusion given by a Granite City woman who had herself recovered from a similar infection.

The transfusion was arranged after the boy's physician, Dr. Walter E. Frank, got in touch with Mrs. Frieda Ralson, 2554 Iowa avenue, Granite City, who possessed the type of blood needed because she had suffered from the infection, volunteered to furnish a pint of blood.

Following the transfusion two weeks ago the boy's condition has shown improvement and he can move his left leg, which had become paralyzed. Dr. Frank said that, until the transfusion was made, physicians had despaired of saving the boy's life. The boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Robertson.

WPA TO CUT ROLLS UNLESS MORE FUNDS ARE ALLOTTED

Mayor Dickmann Says They May Have to Be Decreased 21 Pct. March 1, 11 Pct. April 1.

Unless the nation-wide W P A appropriation is augmented by the Federal Government, the W P A rolls in St. Louis and St. Louis County will have to be decreased 21 per cent by March 1 and a further 11 per cent by April 1, Mayor Dickmann said yesterday on his return from Chicago, where he attended the conference of Mayors of 11 Middle Western cities.

Mayor Dickmann said he and R. M. Bristol, his W P A contact man, were told that by Howard Hunter, W P A director for the 13-state region of which Missouri is a part. As there are now 21,500 persons employed on W P A projects in St. Louis and the county, the decrease would be 4515 on March 1 and 1868 on April 1, Bristol said.

St. Louis, with 32,000 relief cases, including individuals and families, and 17,500 W P A workers, apparently is in a better position than most of the other cities represented at the conference, the Mayor said.

RARE DISEASE DECREASES MAN'S HEIGHT BY 7 INCHES

Clarence Meagher Has Lost 30 Pounds and Growth Has Developed on Head.

Victim of a rare ailment, thought to be Paget's disease, Clarence Meagher, a mechanic, has become seven inches shorter in the last three years and has lost 30 pounds, his wife said to a Post-Dispatch reporter last night. In addition, he has developed on his head a growth the size of a grapefruit.

Forty-four years old, he is now 5 feet 3 inches tall and weighs 140 pounds. He returrned to his home at 6617A Dale avenue, last Sunday, following treatment at Barnes Hospital. Previously he was treated also at Desloge Hospital, Mrs. Meagher said.

He has not worked since Nov. 3. An older brother in Detroit has had a similar ailment for 10 years and was forced to retire from the contracting business, Mrs. Meagher said.

Meagher hopes his case will come to the attention of research workers so that more information may be obtained about his condition. The cause of Paget's disease, a bone disorder first described by Sir James Paget (1814-1899), is unknown.

CHARGES FILED AGAINST TWO IN ST. CHARLES BRIDGE CLASH

Laborers Accused of Assault After Man Is Beaten; Auto License Traced.

Informations filed in Circuit Court at St. Charles yesterday charged two St. Louis laborers with common assault growing out of a clash last Thursday between union pickets and workmen employed on the St. Louis County approach to the Missouri River bridge at St. Charles.

Shields Hickman, 4181 Delmar boulevard, and William Love, 4229 Arco avenue, are charged in the informations with beating Samuel Rowe, a laborer, at his home in St. Charles, Friday afternoon. Rowe furnished police with the license number of the assailants' automobile and Hickman and Love were arrested later while riding in the machine in St. Louis County. They are held at St. Charles pending a preliminary hearing.

Prosecuting Attorney Joseph Wentker said the pair belong to the Hodcarriers', Building Construction and Common Laborers' Union, which demanded a closed shop on the bridge job. Twelve workmen were escorted from the bridge Thursday afternoon by police after 200 union pickets threatened to beat the men.

FORD NON-STRIKER AT NLRB HEARING TELLS OF BEATING

Testifies He Was 'Knocked Into 'Loop' by Assailant After C I O Men Had Upbraided Him.

New testimony linking members of the C I O-affiliated United Automobile Workers with intimidation and violence against non-striking employes of the Ford Motor Co. was introduced yesterday at a National Labor Relations Board hearing.

Testifying that C I O men had accused him of "scabbing," Clarence Blessing, a metal finisher, declared he was severely beaten Dec. 4, about 10 days after a strike had been called at the company's St. Louis assembly plant. The witness said he had been "knocked into a complete loop by a rough-looking large fellow."

In meeting objections from counsel for the N L R B, Daniel Bartlett, Ford attorney, declared a Chevrolet employe had assaulted Blessing. He asserted also that the testimony of a Ford striker had established that the latter had "put the finger on Blessing."

Visited at His Home.

On Jan. 1, Blessing continued, thre members of the C I O union, one of them the Ford striker, called at his home and asked if he wasn't "afraid that something was going to happen." Blessing said the men informed him that the union had decided to allow the plant to remain open one more week, after which employes' automobiles "might be blown up."

Blessing said his car had been sprayed with acid and that on another occasion the air was let out of his tires. Asked if he had seen blackjacks in the Ford assembly plant, at 4100 Forest Park avenue, the witness declared he had not observed more than three of the weapons. Asked then if he carried a blackjack, Blessing replied simply, "No, I had a gun."

When arrested on charges of carrying concealed weapons, the witness said, he was released on a bail bond furnished by Bert Gantner, factory service head. He quoted Gantner as remarking, "I can't blame you for carrying a gun." The witness said he informed the factory service head that he "would rather spend six months in jail than two months in a hospital."

"Loyalty Pledges" Again.

Further attempts by N L R B attorneys to establish the origin and disposition of "loyalty pledges" which were circulated at the plant last November proved fruitless in the cross-examaniation of another witness.

Roy W. Clifford, former C I O union member, testified he found a petition containing several signatures on a steel table in the plant. The petition, stating that the signers approved of the labor policies and working conditions prevailing at the plant, met with his hearty approval, he declared.

Clifford said he signed the petition and carried it to the home of another Ford worker who also signed. When asked on cross-examination if he believed the management was responsible for the document, he said: "I was in hopes that ti would go to the home office of the Ford Motor Co. at Detroit. It looked good to me and I wanted some of it. Not only that, but I fixed up one of my own and signed it."

Urged Men to Return.

Fearing that failure of men to return to their jobs when the plant opened for production of new models in November would endanger his job, the witness said he urged two men to return. He added: "I felt that the only way the company would feel safe in snipping in stock would be to know that there would be enough men available to run the plant."

Clifford said he was arrested several weeks ago on charges of carrying a concealed weapon. He testified that police, in searching his lunch box, had found a revolver which he obtained in a trade for a studio couch.

The witness said he joined the C I O union last spring after "I was called a lot of names." He declared that Frank Gruswitz, financial secretary of the local, had called him a "rat and a stool pigeon" when he hesitated in joining. "I gathered that they didn't exactly like me," he said.

When the hearing was adjourned yesterday, after the thirty-sixth day of testimony, court reporters estimated that about 1,600,000 words had been recorded since the inquiry began. Company attorneys said several additional weeks would be required for presentation of defense testimony.

George F. Shaw of Plover, Ia., an insurance broker, died yesterday at the home of a cousin, Dr. J. P. Marshall, 28 West Jackson avenue, Webster Groves, of injuries suffered in an automobile accident. He was 60 years old.

His automobile turned over following a collision with a truck July 19 near Pocahontas, Ia. Shaw suffered a crushed chest, fractured ribs and internal injuries. After apparently recovering from his injuries, he started to drive to Texas, became ill en route and stopped at the home of his cousin. He died of internal hemorrhages. Surviving are his wife, two daughters and a son.

She Does Not Contest Decree and Dismisses Breach of Promise Action.

William Lowis, Overland painting contractor, obtained an uncontested divorce from Mrs. Nellie Thurman Lowis in Circuit Judge John J. Wolfe's court at Clayton yesterday. Immediately afterward Mrs. Lowis dismissed a $20,000 breach of promise suit which she had brought against the contractor.

The first trial last November of the breach of promise suit, in which she described herself as "Mrs. Nellie Thurman," resulted in a hung jury and the case was scheduled for a new trial at Clayton Monday. They were married Feb. 18, 1933, and separated a month later. A month after that, she obtained a divorce from Frank Thurman to whom she had already been married when she and Lowis went through a ceremony. In the breach of promise suit she charged Lowis had agreed to re-marry her after the divorce and failed to do so. Lowis denied at the trial that he had asked her to re-marry him.

In the divorce suit, Lowis charged desertion. Her attorney said she dismissed the breach of promise suit because she was unwilling to go through another trial of the case.

AGAINST CITY'S BUYING OF GEN. ELECTRIC LAND

Park Commissioner Opposes Proposal Because Seven Acres Are in County.

Disapproval of the purchase of 27 acres of land from the General Electric Co. for use as a city park, as proposed in an ordinance pending in the Board of Aldermen, was expressed to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday by Park Commissioner Joseph J. Mestres.

Mestres objected to the site, west of Goodfellow avenue and south of Stratford avenue, because seven of the 27 acres were in St. Louis County, creating a problem in policing. He suggested that residents of the Twenty-seventh Ward who had asked for a park would be better served by purchase of several blocks for playgrounds at various parts of the district.

The ordinance, introduced by Emmett Golden, Twenty-seventh Ward Alderman, would appropriate $160,000 for the purchase, or $5925 an acre. Deputy Comptroller Charles L. Cunningham said he had found the portion of the property in the city was assessed at $2000 an acre and that in the county at $1500 an acre. The bill must be approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment and the Board of Public Service before it is acted upon by the Aldermen.

At the time the bill was introduced, Alderman Golden said the General Electric Co. would sell the property at $6000 an acre. It is part of a 155-acre tract bought by it more than 12 years ago for an average of about $3225 an acre for the whole area.

The appropriation provision of $160,000 was included in the bill, Alderman Golden said, because this was approximately the price sought by the company. After looking over the district, he added, he decided the 27 acres was the only site of sufficient size available. Samuel W. Fordyce, former Democratic National Committeeman for Missouri, as attorney for the company, told him it expected to make use of the property for a factory site in the future but that it was for sale at $6000 an acre, Alderman Golden said.

Mayor Dickmann approved establishment of a park in the district but did not commit himself to the proposed site. Comptroller Louis Nolte said he would make a personal inspection of the property before considering the proposal as a member of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

PROSECUTOR SAYS WOMAN ADMITS POISONING HUSBAND

Farm Wife Near Roosevelt, Mo., Quoted as Saying He Was Mean to Her.

By the Associated Press.

AVA, Mo., Feb. 5.—Prosecuting Attorney Willis H. Mitchell said today Mrs. Ellen Johnson, 33 years old, held without bond in jail here, would be given a preliminary hearing Feb. 16 on a first-degree murder charge that she poisoned her husband, George, 44, who died in January.

Mitchell said he had an oral confession. He quoted Mrs. Johnson as saying her husband had been mean to her. Mitchell said a chemist at the State highway patrol headquarters at Jefferson City found poison in fatal quantity in the man's viscera.

The family, living on a farm near Roosevelt, has been on relief, the Prosecutor said.

SHELL CORPORATION FILES EXCEPTIONS TO N L R B REPORT

Contends 3 Men Were Not Fired at Wood River Refinery for Union Activity.

Exceptions to the report of Trial Examiner William P. Webb, who recommended reinstatement of three discharged members of the International Union of Operating Engineers, were sent to the National Labor Relations Board at Washington yesterday by the Shell Petroleum Corporation.

The men, employed at the company's Wood River refinery, were not discharged for union activity, the company contends in its exceptions, but because they had violated Illinois laws by illegal seizure of property in a sit-down strike last May.

The men, described as leaders in the strike, were William O'Dell, F. C. Werner and W. C. Eades.

NO MORE RELIEF IF CLIENTS SPEND MONEY FOR AUTO TAGS

Those Who Maintain Cars Should Not Expect Aid, Official Rules.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Feb. 5.—Purchase of new automobile licenses will make Crawford County relief clients ineligible for further county welfare aid.

W. W. Courtwright, director, said the Welfare Department felt that general assistance clients with sufficient money to buy tags, gasoline, oil and tires should not expect to receive groceries and fuel from the county. He previously had warned that relief would be withheld from clients using automobiles excessively, but said this warning "was ignored."

REORGANIZATION PLAN SUBMITTED FOR COTTON BELT

I. C. C. Examiner Proposes Big Reduction in Holdings of Preferred and Common Stock.

FAVORS UNITING NINE PROPERTIES

All But One in System in Suggested Consolidation —Southern Pacific Would Own 49 Pct.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. — Holdings of both preferred and common stockholders would be sharply reduced under a re-organization plan proposed today for the St. Louis Southwestern Railroad (Cotton Belt).

J. V. Walsh, an Interstate Commerce Commission finance examiner, suggested holders of $19,893,600 of preferred stock receive 20 per cent of the face value of their securities in new common stock, and holders of $17,186,100 of common stock 10 per cent in new common.

He recommended that nine properties in the Cotton Belt system be merged with a total capitalization of $81,050,439 compared with the present capitalization of $107,634,678. Capitalization of the new company, however, would be increased to $97,792,002 if claims of bondholders in Holland for payment in guilders instead of dollars should be allowed by the courts.

Cut in Fixed Charges Proposed.

Walsh recommended reduction of fixed charges from $4,305,175 to $1,327,270. The new company would have a funded debt of $32,725,250.

The examiner advised that preferred stock have voting rights in the new company because the common stock "appears to represent proportionately so small an interest in the probable earnings in the new company." The entire control of the property, he contended, should "not be in the hands of those not having a substantial proportion of the entire value of the property."

Consolidation Advised.

Walsh proposed consolidation of the Cotton Belt, the Cotton Belt of Texas, Central Arkansas & Eastern Railroad Co., Stephenville North & South Texas Railway Co., Gray's Point Terminal Railway Co., Paragould Southeastern Railway Co., Pine Bluff Arkansas River Railway, Shreveport Bridge & Terminal Co., and the Dallas Terminal Railway & Union Depot Co., only one company in the present system, the Valley Terminal Railway, would not be included in the new company.

Common stock totaling $22,909,542 and preferred stock amounting to $25,425,647 would increase the capitalization of the company to $81,060,439.

The Southern Pacific Co., which owns 87 per cent of the capital stock of the Cotton Belt, would have 49 per cent of the preferred stock under Walsh's plan.

C. A. FERNALD JR. SUES AUNT FOR ACCOUNTING ON ESTATE

He Questions Amount Received by Mrs. J. B. Myers of Kirkwood as His Guardian.

Suit for an accounting from Mr. and Mrs. John B. Myers of Kirkwood was filed in United States District Court yesterday by her nephew, Charles A. Fernald Jr. of Columbus, O., who alleges that, as guardian of his estate until he reached his majority in 1933, Mrs. Myers obtained credits for about $20,000 more than the amount which should have been spent in his behalf.

Mrs. Myers, the petition recites, was appointed guardian of the person and estate of Fernald by Probate Court at Clayton in 1926 after his father, who died in 1925, left his estate in trust with Mrs. Myers until the son, as beneficiary, reached the age of 21. The mother of Fernald, who was then 13 years old, had died previously.

Although Mrs. Myers filed her final settlement in the Probate Court in September, 1934, Fernald did not obtain the information on which his allegations are based until several months ago, his petition says. The petition was drawn by Edward A. Haid, Fernald's attorney in St. Louis.

An effort to communicate with Mr. and Mrs. Myers for their comment was unsuccessful. Fernald lived with them in Kirkwood for several years and attended Western Military Academy at Alton and the University of Missouri.

Road Engineers Elect C. W. Brown.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5. — Chief Engineer C. W. Brown of the Missouri State Highway Department was elected president of the Mississippi Valley Conference of State Highway Departments today. He succeeds M. R. Keefe, chief engineer of the Indiana Highway Commission. More than 200 highway officials from 18 states attended the association's thirtieth annual convention. Brown, formerly secretary of the association, was succeeded in that office by A. C. Tilley, Nebraska highway engineer.

COURT APPROVES RECEIVER'S SALE OF GAST STORE ASSETS

Sale of merchandise, fixtures and furniture of the Gast Department Store, 2501 North Grand boulevard, for $4719 by Samuel White, receiver, was approved yesterday by United States District Judge George H. Moore. The sale was held Friday. An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed against Isidore A. Gascovitz, owner of the store, by three creditors Jan. 25.

At a hearing in Bankruptcy Court last Monday, Gascovitz testified that a financial "memorandum" given creditors, listing his firm's assets at $34,137 as of Jan. 1, 1937, was inaccurate. He said he did not know what the company's financial conditon was at that time.

REDUCTION IN EGG PRICES

Eggs were purchased from truckers at the St. Louis Butter, Egg and Poultry Exchange at 14¼ cents a dozen, 6 cents less than the price a year ago. On Jan. 3, the price for Missouri No. 1 grade eggs had gone up to 22½ cents, but the market declined because of increased shipments.

The eggs are sold to retailers at an advance of 1 to 1½ cents a dozen, and the cost to the consumer varies accordingly. Purchases by "breakers," those engaged in the business of preserving shelled eggs for use later by bakers and other quantity consumers, have declined because of oversupply. Reduced storage rates are not in effect until March 1, and the surplus is not being absorbed in that manner.

TWO KILLED IN EARTHQUAKE

Buildings Damaged in Manizales, City in Colombia, South America.

By the Associated Press.

QUITO, Ecuador, Feb. 5.—Delayed dispatches from the southern part of Colombia reported today that a severe earthquake shook the City of Manizales and the surrounding region late last night, causing at least two deaths.

Numerous buildings were damaged, lamp posts were thrown into the street and a wireless tower fell down. The situation was made worst by violent rains which inundated the city's streets and threatened to undermine the damaged buildings.

FALLEN 'HONEYMOON BRIDGE' BLOWN APART WITH DYNAMITE

By the Associated Press.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Feb. 5.—A half-ton of dynamite, fired all at once, chopped American's fallen "Honeymoon Bridge" into four sections today and loosened the ice jam on which the wreckage lay.

Wide fissures opened in the ice, and these, together with today's weather, threatened to start the ice moving soon toward Lake Ontario with the wreckage.

Although the 1000-foot steel bridge scarcely budged when the dynamite went off, engineers said the explosion had achieved the intended purpose of cutting it into short segments which could be easily sunk or carried away on the floes when the record ice breaks up. It had been feared the great mass might be thrown against power plants on the Niagara River bank or become an obstruction to navigation in the lower river.

RED TAPE HIDES 1025 W P A JOBS IN TRI-CITIES

Funds have been available for placing of 1400 heads of families on W P A work in Granite City, Nameoki and Venice Townships, although only 375 have been at work in recent weeks, A. D. Hovey, downstate representative of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission, told a committee of 20 Granite City business men and civic leaders yesterday.

The announcement was welcomed as an important means of improving the acute relief situation, particularly in Granite City and Nameoki Townships, which developed last week when relief allowances for about 2000 families were cut 50 per cent.

Louis Romann, relief supervisor for Granite City, said the misunderstanding as to W P A jobs available grew out of conflicting orders from the State office. He said he had understood that W P A work could be given only to heads of families on relief 30 days or more. This order is in effect generally in the State but had been revoked by the State Commission in the Tri-City area.

It was brought out at the meeting that about 3200 families are on relief in the area, or about a fourth of the population, with applications still being filed. Two-thirds of the cases have been added in the last 60 days because of the sharp industrial slump. Figures were cited at the meeting showing that industrial employment in the area dropped from 11,000 persons last June to about 5000 at present.

Preliminary to assignment of men to WPA jobs, Hovey said, there will be an immediate reinvestigation of all relief cases by representatives of the State Commission, with a view of purging the rolls of undeserving cases. At the same time, investigators will have authority to assign men to WPA work as fast as individual investigations are completed. Romann's staff will begin investigation of several hundred cases added in the last few days.

Hovey suggested that the city governments of Granite City, Venice, Madison and Nameoki plan additional projects suitable for WP A workers, to augment those on which workers are now engaged.

The relief situation came to a head Thursday when 300 persons demonstrated at the Granite City City Hall against the cut in food, clothing and fuel allowances. Later in the day, grocers agreed to accept food orders of relief clients for the next week without guarantee of payment.

DETECTIVE, WOUNDED IN RAID ON OHIO BANK ROBBERS, DIES

Two Suspects Killed at Columbus; Two Others to Be Charged With Murder.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 5.—Prosecutor Ralph Bartlett said tonight he would ask a grand jury to indict two bank robbery suspects for the murder of Detective Robert Cline in a police raid on their hideout late yesterday.

Two suspects, Vincent Grinkowicz of Cleveland and an unidentified man, were shot to death in the fight. Another, Carl Boettcher, 24, of Cleveland, is in a hospital with bullet wounds. Boettcher is charged with wounding Detectives William Danner and Leo Phillips. Stephen Figuli, the fourth suspect, is in jail.

Cline died about 12 hours after the shooting, despite blood transfusions.

A strange story was told by Figuli to explain his presence in the gang which is alleged to have robbed a branch bank of $3500 in cash a few hours before yesterday's shooting.

"The only thing I cared about was getting Vincent (Grinkowicz)," he asserted. "I wanted to kill him. That's the reason I joined the gang.

At Cleveland, police said Figuli told them Grinkowicz shot him four times last October when he suspected Figuli of turning informer.

Mrs. Viola Watring, resident of the house where the shooting occurred, also was wounded.

FORMER POLICEMAN ARRESTED

Walter Nichols, Lebanon, Ill., Accused of Passing Bad Checks.

Walter Nichols, Lebanon, Ill., former Illinois State highway patrolman, was arrested by East St. Louis police yesterday on a warrant charging passage of a worthless check. Following his arrest, other warrants were issued in Belleville charging Nichols with passing three additional worthless checks.

The warrant on which he was arrested, issued by Justice of the Peace W. T. Gilbert of Cahokia, Ill., charged the former officer with giving a bogus check for $7 to a Cahokia merchant. The other warrants, issued by Justice of the Peace A. H. Schoenberger, alleged he gave worthless checks for small amounts to two Belleville tavern proprietors and a grocer. Nichols lost his job as highway patrolman with the change of State administration in 1928.

GETS 30 DAYS, $300 FINE ON THREE DRIVING CHARGES

Owner of Auto Found Against Light Standard to Appeal; License Suspended.

Edward W. Traylor, automobile salesman, 4166 McRee avenue, was sentenced to 30 days in the Workhouse, fined $300 and deprived of his driver's license for six months by Police Judge James F. Nangle yesterday on charges of careless driving, leaving the scene of an accident and destruction of city property.

Police testified they found Traylor's car against a damaged light standard at 5101 Manchester avenue about 4 a. m., Jan. 20. Later, they said, when Traylor appeared they arrested him. Traylor denied the charges, saying he had been at a pool hall in the 7200 block of Manchester avenue, and that his car was missing when he left at 6:30 a. m. He said he had just found his car when arrested. The manager of the pool hall testified he thought Traylor left the place about 4 a. m. Traylor said he would appeal.

BUSINESS DIP HALTED, RESERVE BOARD SAYS

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. — The Federal Reserve Board reported tonight that business halted its decline during January and was now no worse, at least, than it was in December.

In discussing in its monthly bulletin the recession which, in about four months, wiped out the gains in industrial production of three years, the board made no predictions.

The index of industrial production, based on 1923-25 as 100, stayed at the December level of 84 during January. Retail sales, as measured by department store business, also held up to December levels, considering seasonal differences between the months.

In the industrial field, there was a slightly higher output in January than in December for steel, automobiles and shoes. Textile production showed little change. Mineral production declined.

No January figures were available on factory employment and payrolls.

President Roosevelt has appointed 17 citizens as members of the commission, one of the oldest institutions in the Government. One silver coin of every 2000 delivered from the coining room of each mint must, under the law, be submitted for tests to the commission.

EGRO CUTS STANDARD MURCHISON SET IN 1923

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—World in-oor records were cracked in three vents tonight as Glenn Cunningam, the celebrated "Iron Horse," alloped off with a decisive Wanaaker mile triumph for the fifth ime in six years in the thirty-first nnual Millrose A. A. meet at Madon Square Garden.

Cunningham equalled the meet ecord of 4:11, for the second time, n beating his fellow Kansan, rchie San Romani, by a dozen ards, but the world record shatering honors of the night went to usky Ben Johnson, Columbia hampion and sprint ace.

Johnson, in the best form of his reer, shot off the marks like a ck-rabbit to equal and then twice urpass the long-standing indoor ark of 6.2 seconds for the 60-yard ash. He was clocked in 6.1 secnds in his semifinal and then treaked to the tape in six secnds flat in the final to carve a pot for himself in the sprinting all of fame.

The mark of 6.2 which Loren Murchison set in 1923 had successfully withstood the 15-year attacks f most of the world's speed merhants, including Jesse Owens.

Forrest (Spec) Towns of Georgia, inner of the 60-yard low hurdles, twice touched new record time of 7.4 seconds after Allan Tolmich of Wayne University cut the former world indoor mark to this figure in his first trial heat. Tolmich was beaten by Towns in a brisk final brush. The former record was 7.5 seconds.

North Texas Teachers' medley relayers, comprising the Brown and Rideout twins, lowered the world indoor mark to 7:27.5 in a thrilling victory over Indiana. The distance was one mile and seven eighths but the race was decided in the stretch, where Blaine Rideout came up fast to beat Indiana's Jimmy Smith.

Jimmy Herbert, dusky New York University sophomore, turned in wo smashing performances. He won the classic Millrose 600-yard special for the second straight year, in 1:12,6, and anchored the victorious New York University quartet that set a new track mark cf 3:20.2 for the mile relay.

Herbert ran the anchor leg in 48.4 seconds as New York University clipped two-tenths of a second from the mark set just a few minutes earlier by Manhattan.

San Romani was spiked in the right ankle in a mixup during the handicap mile relay for club teams. The damage was such that he may e put out of cempetition for a week, if not longer.

Indiana's Don Lash, the world record-holder, came back in the two-mile run to overhaul Joe McCluskey of the New York A. C. in the stretch and win by two yards in 9:06, a new meet record but eight seconds short of Lash's own indoor standard.

Lash's closing spurt was too much for the veteran ex-Fordahm runner. Don overtook and passed Joe in the last dozen strides. Tommy Deckard of Indiana, who paced the first time in 4:30, finished third and Floyd Lochner of Norman, Okla., and St. Louis, fourth.

The summaries:

Pitchers Benge and Guy Bush Obtained by the Cardinals

RAY BENGE and Guy Bush, veteran pitchers, have been obtained by the Cardinals, Branch Rickey of the Redbirds announced last night. Benge was signed as a free agent, while Bush was obtained from the Boston Bees. Details of the Bush deal were not disclosed.

Benge, who served with the Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Boston clubs, refused to report to the St. Paul club of the American Association in the spring of 1937 and was suspended. He was inactive during the season, but was declared a free agent this winter.

Bush had his best years with the Chicago Cubs. He was traded to the Pirates and subsequently transferred to the Boston Club.

Johnny Mize's contract discussion with Rickey has been postponed until Wednesday.

Zevson paid $5.40 for $2 in the mutuels to win, $3.40 to place and $2.60 to show.

In the sprint feature at six furlongs Mrs. A. M. Creech's strapping gelding Reaping equalled the track record of 1:11 1-5 held by Biff since 1936. Reaping raced under 119 pounds, while Biff packed only 115 in his jaunt two years ago. Buster Boy was second to Reaping today and Yule Star third. Reaping paid $4.40, $2.80 and $2.40.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Look Out for the Stick!

BETTING on horse races in California is still sky-rocketing; but the boys who pull long faces already are shouting "Look out for the stick!" Talk of a referendum and the repeal of legalized betting already is heard. Knocks are being voiced on all sides. Racing publications are filled with complaints and objections.

The reason? Opponents contend that promoters are killing the goose that lays the golden egg. They believe that the public spending surplus is being frittered away rapidly. They point to the fact that business and banking houses in racing communities are bitterly complaining of the falling off of purchases, bill payments and savings. They point out that Texas repealed its betting law when conditions became unbearable to the merchants.

They direct an accusing finger at Santa Anita racetrack, which already has had two Saturdays when the mutuel handle passed the million-dollar mark; they note that the daily mutuel total is over half a million average; that the track and State take out more than 12 per cent of the mutuel funds, and that track profits for 56 days' racing will run again over 100 per cent of the $2,300,000 investment, despite remarkable payments to officers—over $142,000 to the president, for example. They say that besides the mutuel profits, the track takes in fabulous sums in paid admissions, more than 37,000 paid having been recorded in one day during the current meeting.

Whether the murmuring will, as in the case of Texas, result in a repeal of racing is mere conjecture. It certainly has been followed by a tremendous roar from those who have been hurt and also from those who haven't been able to cut in on the pie.

To make matters worse, a new racetrack, surpassing even the Santa Anita course, is under construction at Inglewood, which will be allotted more racing dates and will drag out still more cash from the cupboards of the thrifty.

* * *

NEW ENGLAND is getting a taste of the same thing at Narragansett track, the surprising dividends of which amazed the country for several seasons. The situation there has become a political one, and the fight so far has resulted in the abandonment of last fall's meeting.

Narragansett's troubles it is anticipated will soon extend to Suffolk Downs, where another golden goose has been laying golden eggs the size of the fabled roc's.

Too much big money, too easily obtained, explains the troubles racing now is confronting. The terrific money "take" of big tracks could and should be scaled down.

The capacity of the mutuel's voracious maw is not appreciated by most bettors. In California, where the track takes 8 per cent, the State 3 per cent and breakage another 1 per cent, the public bank roll is literally more than half devoured.

Suppose, for example, that the public starts with $100,000 and plays it all on the first race. Taking out 12 per cent, the mutuels pay back $88,000. If this is all bet back, the mutuel returns to the winners of the second race only $77,500. If the same procedure were followed right down through the card of eight races, the mutuels would pay back to the winners of their last race only $36,000!

Betting, of course, is not conducted on any such fixed bank roll basis, nor is it all that is wagered back on each succeeding race. More is added to the total bank roll after each race, as the day progresses. Nevertheless, the figures above still reveal the devouring power of the mutuel toll.

And, in spite of it all, there are

RIGGS DEFEATS COOKE; TO PLAY KOVACS TODAY

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 5.—Top-seeded Bobby Riggs of Chicago advanced to the final round of the Surf Club Tennis Tournament today by defeating Elwood Cooke of Portland, Ore., but he had to go four sets to do it.

The scores were 6-2, 6-3, 4-6, 7-5.

Riggs and 18-year-old Frank Kovacs of Oakland, Cal., will meet tomorrow in the final. Kovacs, upset quarterfinal victor over Bitsy Grant of Atlanta, played his semifinal match yesterday.

After being all but swept from the court in the first two sets, Cooke borrowed a page from Grant's book and kept hitting the ball back to Riggs until his opponent made an error. Taking the third set by these tactics, Cooke continued in the fourth to run up a 5-4 lead but wilted when Riggs laid down a barrage of smashes to run out the last three games.

From the start Riggs has encountered the toughest sort of opposition from players expected to give him little trouble but who apparently were pointed for an upset.

Riggs returned to the court after a brief rest and teamed with Wayne Sabin of Hollywood, Cal., to win the doubles final from Martin Buxby of Miami and Charles Harris of West Palm Beach, Fla., 6-2, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3.

It was a battle of placements, with both sides playing hard, crisp shots. Sabin, frequently mentioned as possible Davis Cup doubles partner for Donald Budge, was particularly impressive.

Billikens Beaten, 31-29, by De Paul in Rough Game

By James M. Gould.

St. Louis University's basketball Billikens forgot to fade, as has been their custom this season, in last night's game with the Blue Demons of DePaul University but, after a sensational game, they were forced to accept defeat by a score of 31 to 29.

It was the fifteenth defeat in 19 games for the Billikens and their eleventh consecutive reverse. How close the game was is indicated by the half-time score of 17-16, De Paul leading, and the victory margin of two points.

Captain Sid Mudd of the Billikins was top man for his team with 12 points and this was high for both teams, Norris leading the Demons with 10.

Play at times was exceedingly rough and 24 fouls were called during the proceedings. It would have surprised no one if the number had been 44 for both teams fought every minute of the way and the lead constantly changed hands.

About 1000 witnessed the game, which showed the Billikens in their best form of the season. In their last meeting, De Paul won by a 46-19 score.

Close All the Way.

Early in the first period, the teams exchanged free throws and DePaul took a 2-1 lead by this method. Other tactics brought field goals to Hasser of the Billikens and Neu of DePaul. A second free throw by Bill Cochran tied it at 4-4 at the four-minute mark.

This tie was broken by Neu's free throw and the same gentleman followed up with a field goal, but at the nine-minute point, the Billikens led, 8-7, on successive field goals by O'Sullivan and Sid Mudd. Cleland put DePaul ahead with one from the side but Bill Cochran matched this with a one-handed shot. It was 10-10 on Cleland's free thorw after Brooks' foul.

Two free throws put the Billikens on top but these were nullified when O'Sullivan sank one from the floor. Then, Sid Mudd put one in and St. Louis had a two-point advantage at 14-12 with five minutes of play remaining.

The lead changed again on four free throws by DePaul, three of them by Howlett. With a minute to go, Cleland got in another free toss and Sid Mudd's long field goal from the side made the count 17-16, DePaul at the half.

Bills Score and Game Gets Rough.

Beginning the second period, only a point apart, the two teams alternated in futile shots at the basket until O'Sullivan's field goal sent the Billikens ahead for the sixth time in the game. They held a point advantage after five minutes of play, 18-17. Brooks added two points with a field goal and play began to get rough.

The Billikens were three points ahead when Al Dudenhoeffer made good on two free throws and four after O'Sullivan got in a similar point.

With 12 minutes of play remaining, Norris counted for DePaul on a nice shot and O'Sullivan followed with a free throw, the Billikens holding a three-point lead with 10 minutes gone. This was cut to a single point on Neu's field-basket.

Norris Saves DePaul.

Norris' field goal put the DePaul team a point to the good but Sid Mudd sank two free throws only to have Norris cage a long one from the side. Captain Mudd scored at the 14-minute mark and Norris sank another long one to make the count 29-28, DePaul, with five minutes of play remaining. The lead changed, it seemed, every few seconds.

Crowley put in a short sleeper to give DePaul a three-point advantage. In a mix-up, O'Sullivan stepped on Neu while the DePaul guard was down and the visitors protested. From the side lines, it looked unintentional.

Two minutes remained and DePaul started to stall to protect the short lead. Both teams were roughing it at this point and Howlett, the DePaul captain, was ousted on a fourth foul. Sid Mudd counted a free throw with a minute left. With 10 seconds remaining. Neu missed a free throw and the Billikens called time out with one and one-half seconds left.

There was a jump ball and the game ended after the toss-up.

SAM HARSHANY SIGNS CONTRACT WITH BROWNS

The signed contract of Sam Harshany, catcher, was received at the Browns' office yesterday. Harshany was bought by the Browns in September last year from San Antonio.

Harshany started out at San Antonio as a third baseman in 1934. He was converted into a catcher during the 1936 season and has been working behind the bat since then. The fact that he hit .300 or better each year he was in the Texas League speaks for his batting ability. Last season he finished with a .310 batting mark, and a .976 fielding average. He handled more chances than any other catcher in the league in 1937.

The 26-year-old receiver was born in Madison, Ill., where he resides during the off season. He played football, basketball and baseball during the three years he spent at Shurtleff College in Alton.

Bowman Signs Contract.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 5.—Joe Bowman, the righthander whose pitching slump in mid-summer last year helped depress the Pittsburgh Pirates, returned his signed contract today with the announcement his physical condition was much improved.

President William E. Benswanger said Bowman wrote that he had had his tonsils removed and believed illness which handicapped him last season would not recur.

Red Sox Sign Pair.

BOSTON, Feb. 5.—Signed contracts of Pitchers Jose Gonzales, Los Angeles, and Byron Humphreys, Iberia, Mo., were in the hands of Red Sox officials today.

SCORES HIS 4TH STRAIGHT VICTORY AT SANTA ANITA

Beats Stablemate, Legal Light, in a Drive, Carrying 125 Pounds Over a Slow Track.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 5.—It was Sun Egret again today, winning his third straight major engagement at Santa Anita Park and placing himself as the candidate to beat in the $50,000 Santa Anita Derby Feb. 22.

The son of Sun Briar, piloted by Jockey Alfred Shelhammer and owned by A. C. Compton, won the $5000 San Vincente Handicap over a field of 13 three-year-olds, virtually all of whom are nominees for the coming Derby.

Ral Parr's Legal Light, coupled with Sun Egret as an entry, finished second in the seven-furlong feature event of the day, a neck behind, and Tony Pelletri's Sir Raleigh was third in another close finish.

Sun Egret won the $5000 San Pasqual at seven furlongs last Saturday, the $5000 Santa Maria early in January and packed top weight of 125 pounds today. His time was 1:25.2 over a slow track.

Sun Egret paid $6.80, $6.80 and $4.20 across the board; Legal Light paid $6.80 and $4.20, and Sir Raleigh $7.

Jockey Shelhammer kept Sun Egret up near the leaders and brought him into the lead as the pack pounded into the stretch. The colt, overtaking the pace-setting Short Notice and Specify, nosed into the lead just before they reached the wire.

Thirty-five thousand fans turned out for the program, and wagered $155,618 on the San Vincente.

In addition to the three $5000 races, Sun Egret won an overnight event at the current meeting, and looms as a standout candidate for the Derby. His closest rival is Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Tiger, which has yet to race this year.

By Dent McSkimming.

Soccer fans who are attracted only by big names may choose to pass up today's second round national cup match at Sportsman's Park between the Burkes and the South Sides, but the game really has many of the elements which make for a thrilling contest. It may not be filled with fancy footwork but it should be crammed with excitement. The winner goes on to represent St. Louis in the inter-city cup matches which lead to the United States championship; the loser keeps his peace, outside. Two local clubs have already been knocked out: the St. Matthews and the St. Patricks. The Shamrocks were entered in the tournament but forfeited their first round match to Sparta of Chicago.

Six of the players who helped win national honors for the Shamrocks will be in the lineup of the South Sides today. Tom Erbe and Hugh Davidson will pair at fullback; Ray Egan and Eddie Begley will be at halfback, and Alec McNab and Werner Nilsen will form the right wing. Of the five others making up the starting eleven, Joe Dumas, goaltender, is perhaps best known. He is generally regarded as one of the best in the west. The others are comin the west.

Corbett to Start.

In defeating the St. Matthews, 5-4 last Sunday, the Burke club so completely satisfied Manager Emil Cueto that he will make only one certain change. He will start Bobby Corbett at inside left and possibly Vic Kiecilinski at left halfback. Neither was eligible to play last Sunday against the Matthews. He will have Ebinger, Stahl, Delaney, Welcher and Wyorstek in reserve. Two substitutes may be used under cup rules.

Sam Dueker will referee today's game, starting at 2:30 p. m. The general admission charge will be 75 cents.

Canadian Sets New Record in Meet at Sydney

By the Associated Press.

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 5.—Although winning only one of six titles decided, Australia's track and field forces took a commanding lead today in the first day's competition of the British Empire games.

Five meet records were set, among them a 52.9 second performance for the 440-yard hurdles by husky Johnny Loaring of Windsor, Ontario, and an 11.1 second time for Decima Norman of Australia in the women's 100-yard dash, just one-tenth of a second off the world record.

Competition was also begun in the swimming championships, with England taking two of the three finals. The English 330-yard medley relay team of Michael Taylor, John Davies and Frederick Dove won its final in 3:28.2, with Canada second, and Doris Storey of England took the women's 220-yard breast stroke in 3:30.6. The only other final races—the women's 440-yard relay—was won by Canada's quartet of Florence Humble, Dot Lyon, Noel Oxenbury and Phyllis Dewar, in 4:48.3, with Australia second.

On a basis of 10-5-4-3-2-1 points for the first six places, Australia's forces held a lead of 63 points to 33 for Canada for the first day's track and field competition, with South Africa showing 19 points, England 18 and New Zealand 17.

Loaring's mark in the hurdles was only three-tenths of a second away from the 1927 world record set by A. A. Gibson of the United States.

In addition to Loaring and Miss Norman, the record breakers were Ed Thacker of South Africa, with a creditable 6 feet, 5⅛ inches in winning the high jump; C. H. Matthews of New Zealand, who took the three-mile run in 13 minutes, 59.6 seconds, and V. P. Boot, another New Zealander, with a fast 1:52.3 in one heat of the 880.

Thesz Meets Dusek Tuesday.

Louis Thesz, 21-year-old St. Louis claimant to the world heavyweight wrestling championship, has returned from a down-State hunting trip to begin workouts today for his next "title" defense against Ernie Dusek at the Auditorium Tuesday. They will work at the Business Men's Gymnasium, Thesz at 1:30 and Dusek at 3 o'clock.

really some of us who think we have a good chance to beat the races! Well, it has been done; but most of the pari-mutuel money eventually winds up in the state treasury or in the pockets of promoters.

* * *

It Will Be a Race.

SEABISCUIT AND War Admiral will not meet to decide that national supremacy supposed to rest between them. At least, they'll not be rivals for the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap one month from today.

But a race that will be almost as good is sure to develop between Seabiscuit and Pompoon, last year's disappointment among the three-year-olds. Seabiscuit's quality is known; his condition, which the stable tried to conceal in recent weeks, has been proved to be satisfactory in recent workouts. An outstanding early favorite, it was believed he had the race at his mercy until Pompoon showed such amazing form in workouts and in his first race at seven furlongs. Now the question is, will Seabiscuit at his best be able to beat this great comeback of the son of Pompey?

An observer at Santa Anita writes us: "The horse (Pompoon) is much heavier than before, is sound as can be and in his workouts and his only race has looked the part of a champion. The long rest given Pompoon has helped him immensely. Trainer Loftus says he is a far better horse than he was in the spring of 1937 (when he was winter favorite for the Kentucky Derby). There seems to be no stable doubt of his ability to carry on strongly at the full distance of one and one-fourth miles."

Pompoon will have some advantage over his rival. He at this time is in better condition than Seabiscuit. He will have had the advantage of at least two races before the big event; and he will be receiving about nine pounds weight concession (10 pounds actual) according to weight for age scale.

No wonder he is a 4 to 1 favorite, having been backed from above 20 to 1 in the winter books. Only one other horse has received liberal play and that is Sceneshifter. Unless he has improved, Sceneshifter will have to be benefited greatly by the weight to have a chance.

What's the Answer?

The officials, headed by Joseph Widener, are men devoted to racing as a sport and interested in keeping it on the up-and-up. And yet, the current meeting records show that only 28 per cent of the favorites there had won, up to Wednesday last.

On the other hand at Santa Anita for the first 152 races run during the present meeting, 61 public choices or 40 per cent of the favorites finished first!

What's the answer? No explanation has been advanced by authorities. The track is almost perfect—can't be that. Nor can it be the racing of two-year-olds too early in the season, for the same thing happens at Santa Anita. Certainly one can't believe that there is more cheating at Hialeah than on the Pacific Coast. So what?

The answer seems to be: Don't wager on Hialeah races.

You Can't Beat 'Em!

AT FAIR GROUNDS midway between the East and West coast rivals, the winning favorites are still running below par with only 30 per cent scoring in 385 races.

AT FAIR GROUNDS—A loss of $108.10.

AT HIALEAH—Loss of $30.10.

AT SANTA ANITA—An $8.80 loss.

However, had as many races been run at Hialeah as at New Orleans, the loss of the Hialeah bettor would have him $187.60!

If you are a favorite follower, you will now know what to do about it—leave them all alone.

Allison, Former U. S. Tennis Champion, to Attempt a Comeback

DALLAS, Tex., Feb. 5.—Wilmer Allison, the tall Texan who won the national singles title three years ago and retired from big-time tennis, is coming back.

One more try at the title he tossed to the youngsters in 1935, and another shot at the doubles laurels he shared for years with John Van Ryn, is the plan of the willowy old Davis Cup hero.

"I'll play in the national—singles and doubles—this season, unless the old legs buckle up or something else goes wrong. My game doesn't worry me now. Haven't played since last July, but I've been practicing a bit recently and the shots are still there."

Apparently in fine physical condition, the Austin (Tex.) cotton broker said he planned to start his comeback campaign at the Longwood Bowl tournament early in July.

REVOLTA TAKES GOLF LEAD AT SACRAMENTO

By the Associated Press.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 5. — Old man par, floored four times in the opening round, got off his back today to score an easy decision over the field in the second eighteen of the $3000 Sacramento Open golf tournament.

The mythical gent had plenty of assistance on his side. Not one of the nearly 90 starters could equal standard figures.

Rain drenched the course and the players most of the day. Fairways were flooded, greens were spotted with puddles and a chill, brisk wind added to the woes of the golfers.

Revolta One Over Par.

When the firing was over and the half-way mark of the 72-hole event reached, Johnny Revolta, Evanston, Ill., led the parade. Revolta was one of four men to come even close to the par 36-36-72 requirements of the long municipal links.

His 73, a 37-36, gave him a 36-hole standing of 145. It put him in the lead by one shot, just ahead of Horton Smith of Chicago, who coupled a 75 with his first round 71.

Revolta, winner of the $10,000 Miami-Biltmore Open last December and present leading money winner for the winter tournament swing, said he never had played a round under more difficult conditions than today.

John Bulla of Chicago, stopped in third place with a 147. He duplicated Revolta's feat in shooting a 73, as did Tex Mann of Fort Worth, Tex., and John Dawson, Chicago amateur.

Thomson Has 149.

Mann tied at 148 with Tony Penna, Dayton, O., and Ben Hogan, Fort Worth. At 149, Dawson tied with Jimmy Thomson, Shawnee on the Delaware, Pa., pro who opened as the tournament favorite; Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J.; Frank Toronto, Sacramento amateur, and Fry brothers, Earl of Alameda and Mark of Oakland. Earl Fry led the field at the end of the opening round with a 70.

Other pre-tournament favorites who encountered trouble included Harry Cooper of Chicopee, Mass., whose 77 put him in a six-way tie which also numbered Jimmy Hines of Garden City, N. Y. Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., was stationed at 150, through a 77 today, along with two others while Sam Snead of West Virginia finished with a top-heavy 81 and a total 155.

Harold McSpaden of Winchester, Mass., and Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., were far back with 156's. McSpaden taking a 79 and Runyan a 77. Craig Wood of Rumson, N. J., withdrew from competition after a miserable start.

UNITED STATES TEAM TAKES YACHT SERIES

HAVANA, Feb. 5.—The United States completed its sweep of the International Star Class Yacht Regatta today by defeating Cuba in a team race. Previously, Harry G. Nye Jr., had won the Bacardi Cup with the Southern Lake Michigan fleet entry, Gale, and Harold Halstead had accounted for the Cuba trophy with Chuckle from the Moriches Bay fleet.

The invading yachtsmen outscored the Cuban representatives 25 to 12 with Adrain Iselin II sailing ace of the Western Long Island Sound fleet into first place.

Nye finished second with Gale and Paul H. Smart, from the Central Long Island Sound fleet, took third with Melody. The Cuban yacht, Santoy, skippered by Eddy Smith, prevented the United States from making a clean sweep by finishing fourth in front of Halstead's Chuckle. Three Cuban boats—Ariel II, Kurush and Jibaro—brought up the rear.

McKENDREE DEFEATS CENTRAL WESLEYAN

LEBANON, Ill., Feb. 5.—The McKendree College basketball team rallied in the last minutes to defeat the Central Missouri Wesleyan quintet of Warrenton here tonight, 33 to 31. Wesleyan was ahead, 31-29, with two minutes remaining to be played, when John Harmon of McKendree scored the tying field goal. A minute later Roy Jaeckel shot the winning basket for the Bearcats.

Central Wesleyan was ahead, 19-18, at the half. Wayne Bise of McKendree was high scorer with 12 points, while Collins led the Missouri team with 10.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Feb. 5.—Holding their opponents to five field goals and dominating play throughout, Notre Dame tonight overwhelmed Pittsburgh, 51-17, for its sixteenth consecutive basketball victory at home and its thirteenth of the season. It was the final game of the Pitt-Notre Dame series which began back in 1926, the Panthers winning 11 and the Irish 10.

So They Kidnaped Dizzy Dean — Or Did They?

By John Kieran.

A Dizzy Dream.

SO that fellow never got around to kidnaping Dizzy Dean. Just imagine! Yes, sir, just imagine to wit, viz, i. e. and as follows:

Bradenton, Fla.: Jerome Herman (the Great) Dean disappeared from his filling station today under mysterious circumstances. He was delivering gas as usual when last seen. The police have a clew and an arrest is expected momentarily. The town is strangely quiet.

St. Louis, Mo.: Upon being informed that Dizzy Dean was missing from his Florida filling station under mysterious circumstances Branch Rickey, general manager of the St. Louis Cardinal club and associated chain gangs, said in part:

"When in the course of human events it becomes necessary to take a firm stand on problems affecting the welfare of the youth of the nation, it behooves all of us to remember the pioneer spirit of our forefathers and fight the good battle that the boys of today shall have what is their inalienable guarantee under the Constitution of the United States, the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. This is a Cardinal principle, if I may say so, and I would be derelict in my duty to our club, our city and our nation did I flinch from boldly asserting it and defending it."

New Rochelle, N. Y.: Onkel Franz Frisch, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, was at breakfast when informed that his star pitcher, Dizzy Dean, had disappeared from his Florida filling station under mysterious circumstances. Onkel Franz went on eating his breakfast.

Formal Notice.

St. Louis, Mo.: Mr. Singing Sam Breadon, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, admitted today that he had received a letter from a person purporting to be the kidnaper of Dizzy Dean and demanding the sum of $100,000 for his release unharmed. Mr. Breadon refused to comment further than to say that the kidnap note was not in Dean's handwriting.

New York: The report here is that the kidnaper of Dizzy Dean tried to force him to sign a note addressed to Sam Breadon, owner of the Cardinals, and asking Mr. Breadon to pay the ransom immediately to save him from torture. Despite a threat to gag him, Dean is supposed to have said: "I ain't signin' nothin'!" This report was carried to Mr. Ford C. Frick, president of the National League, who immediately swooned.

Memphis, Tenn.: Upon being informed that Dizzy Dean was being held for ransom William H. Terry, manager of the New York Giants, said: "I hope nobody lets go!"

New Rochelle, N. Y.: Onkel Franz Frisch, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, was at lunch today when informed that the kidnapers of Dizzy Dean had sent a formal demand for the sum of $100,000 for the release of Ol' Dizz unharmed. Onkel Franz said: "Pass that roast pork this way again, it's good."

RANSOM NOTE $50,000
A.W.

A Great Reduction.

St. Petersburg, Fla.: There was considerable excitement here today as the police reported a car sighted supposedly containing Dizzy Dean and his kidnaper. Attention was directed to the car by the speed and the wild way it was swerving along the road. Two men were in the car, the alleged kidnaper in the driver's seat and Dizzy Dean beside him. Dizzy appeared to be talking. The swerving of the car seemed to be due to the fact that the kidnaper-driver, instead of holding the wheel, had both hands clapped over his ears.

St. Louis, Mo.: Two more ransom notes were received by Mr. Singing Sam Breadon, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, today. The first one ran:

The second note ran:

"Make it $10,000. Will take promissory note. Am getting desperate. Hurry!"

Mr. Breadon had no comment to make except that he was going to get a haircut. Mr. Branch Rickey, upon being informed of the latest development in L'Affaire Dean, spoke before various civic organizations on the development of ideals in athletics and applied physiological psychology in baseball dugouts.

New Rochelle, N. Y.: Upon being informed that the kidnaper of Dizzy Dean was getting desperate and threatened that Ol' Dizz never would be seen again, Onkel Franz Frisch, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, said: "I know just how he feels."

No Compromise.

Clearwater, Fla.: Police here today gave out a story of two cars speeding through town and apparently linked with the kidnaping case of the great Dizzy Dean. One car appeared to be chasing the other. From the description given, the alleged kidnaper, traveling along at high speed, was alone in the first car. The man positively identified by many local citizens as Ol' Dizz himself was in the second car and gaining rapidly.

St. Louis, Mo.: Mr. Singing Sam Breadon, owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, today displayed another note he had received from the kidnaper of the St. Louis star pitcher, Dizzy Dean. The note read:

"Dizzy Dean released outright. Please forward expenses of $76.34. I am a changed man and would like to lead a better life."

"I expect to hear further," said Mr. Breadon enigmatically.

Upon being informed that Dean had been released outright, Mr. Branch Rickey went to a Chamber of Commerce luncheon and spoke rapidly on the topic: The Outright Release of Emotional Content Through Physical Exertion With Turnstile Accessories.

The Return.

Brunswick, Ga.: The great Dizzy Dean kidnaping case came to an end here today in a touching scene. Laborers on Champney Island who were working the plantation owned and operated by Col. Tillinghast L'Hommedieu Huston, former half-owner of the New York Yankees, reported two cars racing along the adjacent highway. As they watched, one car overtook the other and forced it into the ditch. The tall, dark-haired driver of the pursuing car, who was immediately identified as Ol' Dizz himself, jumped out and began talking to the driver of the pursued machine. As the laborers approached Dizzy was laughingly addressing the man identified as his kidnaper.

The laborers heard the kidnaper pleading and actually saw tears in his eyes. He offered Ol" Dizz his wallet and the contents of all his pockets, which Dean refused. The kidnaper tossed the wallet out of the car. As Dizzy bent over to pick it up and return it to him the kidnaper suddenly started up his car again and made his escape. Dizzy Dean appeared to be much chagrined. He said he was disgusted with the fellow and abandoned further pursuit. Mr. Dean added that he would return to Bradenton, Fla., by easy stages and resume his business of distributing gas at his filling station.

Washington, D. C.: Edgar Hoover of the Department of Justice said today that the Dizzy Dean case would be a dreadful lesson to kidnapers.

Figures Don't What?

"I WAS interested in your statistics about our shortstop and second base problem," said Bill DeWitt of the Browns, "but there's an angle to the thing that you may have overlooked."

Bill was talking about the figures, taken from the official fielding averages of 1937, showing that the Brownie infielders guarding the middle sector of the diamond finished with almost as good a daily average of chances accepted as did the more highly regarded infielders, such as Charley Gehringer of the Tigers, the American League's most valuable player of the year, and the Yankee combination of Crosetti and Lazzeri.

When the figures were presented, it was explained that perhaps fielding records were as deceptive as those dealing with earned runs, and DeWitt agrees with that suggestion.

"You overlook one important point," Bill continued. "That is the fundamental fact that even under the new rules, a side isn't retired until three men have been retired. I mean that there will be a certain number of grounders hit through the infield in any ball game. They don't become chances accepted until a fielder stops them and throws out the batters. He may barely miss a grounder that Gehringer or Lazzeri or Crosetti or Cronin or Travis would have stopped. Failure to stop those grounders gives the batting team a chance to drive clean hits through the infield, drives that nobody could stop. Up goes the earned-run record, but the infielder still has a chance to stop a grounder that may be hit straight to him and so in the course of a game, he'll get his average of four, five or six chances accepted."

Score One for Bill.

THERE is much in what DeWitt says. As a matter of fact long association with baseball teaches you that managers don't consider a man's fielding average too seriously. They can estimate a man's value and trade for him intelligently without ever seeing the official figures. They know how far a man can go to his right and to his left. In other words they know whether he is mediocre, highly skilled or very weak.

"You can discount many things in the fielding records," DeWitt continued. "Take for instance the errors charged to outfielders. You'll find that Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees was charged with 17 errors during the 1937 season. Does that mean that Joe was a poor fielder? I'll say it doesn't. Most of those errors were charged on throws. Joe has one of the best throwing arms in the business and he's not afraid to throw. Whenever a throw takes a bad bounce—and Joe's throws have plenty on them and are inclined to bounce away occasionally—he is charged with an error. They are technical errors, mostly. In contrast, the outfielder with a poor throwing arm doesn't try to stop runners and so he finishes with an apparently better record than a DiMaggio."

Bill certainly has presented excellent testimony and until somebody brings in a better story, we'll probably have to agree that there was something rotten in the Denmark that was the Browns' combination around the middle of the diamond.

Our Side Department.

The following gem, brought into the sports room anonymously and rescued from the limbo of crumpled waste paper by the discerning eye of L. A. McMaster, is presented "as was" and as McMaster quipped, "Who said interest in the national game was waning?"

"The St. Louis Drifters, a semi-pro baseball club, was voted one of the best managed clubs to visit the east side from Missouri during the season of '37 by a group of semi-pro team managers of Illinois at a meeting held at East St. Louis, Feb. 2, 1938. Manager Gray of the Drifters was praised highly for his coolness and considered to show smartness as a manager. The Drifters was made up of young looking men and we consider if they stick together that they will go places."

Hurrah for our side.

Classic League Idle.

The Classic Traveling Bowling League will not be in session tonight in the regular Sunday night play as the entire league is competing in the annual Central Illinois State Tournament at Springfield, Ill. The league will resume its schedule next Sunday at the Del-Mar Alleys.

MEXICO, Mo., Feb. 5.—The Missouri Military Academy put on an extra burst of speed in the final quarter of its basketball game with University City High tonight to defeat the Indians, 34 to 32. University City led until the final two minutes.

The failure of the Indians to make free tosses cost them the game, as they missed 10 out of 18 of them.

The Beltmars, leading the Sherman Park group by a full game, conclude their regular schedule in opposing the St. Edwards at Sherman Park this afternoon, starting at 2 p. m. A victory or tie score will win the pennant for Beltmars. Gonsalves, at center halfback, has been a dominating factor in the success of his team.

Other Muny games are scheduled at Carondelet and Fairground Park but the group races at both places have been decided. Play-offs will start Feb. 20.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TULSA, Ok., Feb. 5.—Only a last-minute poke by Walter Brenneman, the Flyer's new center, saved St. Louis' American Hockey Association leaders from a white-washing here tonight as the Tulsa Oilers found new scoring punch to pound out a 3-to-1 victory. A crowd of [illegible] saw the Oilers break a seven-game losing streak.

A new forward line Coach Freddie Gordon uncovered was the big surprise in Tulsa's offense maneuvers. It consisted of Sonny Wakeford, Lloyd Gross and Les Whittles. This trio had a hand in all the Oiler tallies. Gross smashed in two counters and Wakeford one, and Gross assisted on that one.

Flyers Short Handed.

Three times during the first period the Flyers were left short-handed because of penalties, but the Oilers were unable to cash in on the opportunities. Joe Matte left the ice first when he sent Gross bouncing into the boards.

Bill Kendall went next when he sent Yip Radley sprawling in center ice with no other players near and then "Bouncer" Taylor went to the cooler, but his time may have been well spent, for he drew the assessment for spilling Sonny Wakeford and breaking up the best scoring chance Tulsa had during the period.

Wakeford got the puck in the open and almost directly in front of the St. Louis net. He sprinted in and none of the visitors were close enough to check him, but Taylor managed to get his stick between Sonny's legs, tripping the Oiler but at the same time spoiling the scoring chance.

St. Louis missed one of its best opportunities when Jack Riley of the Oilers went off early in the second period for tripping "Fido" Purpur. The visitors furnished a thrilling rally but brilliant defensive play by Andy Bellemer prevented scoring.

Two Quick Goals.

There were only 46 seconds of play remaining in the second period when the Tulsans started an effective offensive that produced two rapid fire goals.

Wakeford scored the first counter at 19:14 on assists by Gross and Les Whittles. Carbol, off the ice for spilling Walt Creasey, stepped out of the box just as Gross got the puck inside the Flyers blue line. He circled in back of the net and blasted at Goalie Nelson. Nelson saved the shot, but Wakeford standing directly in front of the opening, fired the rubber back before the net minder could shift.

They reversed the order for the next tally, which came 44 seconds later. Gross took a pass from Wakeford near the net and as Nelson came out, he fired the disc between his legs to increase the Oilers' lead to 2-0.

Gross broke through again late in the third period for another goal. He sped behind the St. Louis cage and just did succeed in poking the disc in from the side.

Walter Brenneman prevented the Oilers from making it a shutout triumph when he poked in a counter for the Flyers at 19:22 on a play on which Kendall got an assist.

Flyers to Play Millers Tonight.

Heading into the home stretch, the Flyers have three American Association hockey games scheduled in the next eight days, all at home. They will play Minneapolis at the Arena tonight, oppose Kansas City Thursday night and meet Wichita next Sunday night.

LAVENGRO IS EASY WINNER AT HIALEAH

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 5. — Taking the lead right at the break, Norman W. Church's Lavengro went on today to defeat eight other three-year-olds in the sixth running of the $5000 Bahamas Handicap at Hialeah Park here.

With 124 pounds in the saddle, the son of Diavolo stepped off the seven furlongs in 1:25 2-5 and drove home a length in front of Birt Friend's Co-Sport. W. J. (Buddy) Hirsch's lightly-weighted Sketchbook was third, another half-length back.

Lawrin, carrying the silks of Herbert M. Woolf's Woolford Farm and heretofore advance favorite for the $20,000 Flamingo Stakes, failed to show his usual steady effort under top weight of 126 pounds. Although an easy winner of the recent Hialeah Stakes, Lawrin wound up with only one horse behind him after being well placed behind the early pace.

Lavengro, winner of three of his five 1937 starts, including the California Breeders' Handicap and Nursery Stakes at Bay Meadows, was making his first public appearance since beating Lawrin by a head at Bowie last fall. With Vere Thompson in the saddle, the California-owned gelding paid $14.40 for $2 and moved into the favorite's position for the Flamingo, which will be renewed Feb. 26. The race was worth $4370 to the owner.

Although away in front, Lavengro never was able to steal a big advantage. He first disposed of Townsend B. Martin's Galapas and Mrs. C. S. Bromley's Roar and had enough to stave off the stretch challenge of the game closing Co-Sport. Sketchbook, outrun early in the race, came fast at the end to beat out Roar for third place in a photo finish.

NEW RIFLE RANGE FOR WASHINGTON U. TEAM

A new, modern rifle range for use by the Washington University R. O. T. C. unit, is being constructed on the third floor of Cupples II on the campus. It will supplant an improvised shooting gallery in Francis Gymnasium.

The range will be 50 feet wide and 120 feet long, and will be equipped for both rifle and pistol shooting. Eleven firing points have already been installed, and provision has been made for two more. Individual mats have been provided for each firing point. Target carriers are of a new gravity operated type, so that the participant can easily pull his target back and forth. Another feature is a special lighting system which illuminates the targets clearly against a dark background.

Bowling Match Today.

The Hesselberg Team of the German House Monday Night League will meet the Kline's of Highland, Ill., in a return match at the German House Recreation this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Highland beat the Hesselberg's 2940 to 2900 at Highland two weeks ago.

Tunney Declares Armstrong Is Greatest Fighter in Ring Today

By W. J. McGoogan.

Gene Tunney retired undefeated from boxing 10 years ago but he finds it hard to get away from talking about the game in which he rose to the heavyweight championship of the world.

He finds his views as to boxing are much more sought than his theories as to the marketing of whisky, in which he is at present interested.

Gene spent the day here yesterday as part of a tour of the country he is making to acquire first-hand knowledge of the new business in which he is engaged but found in most of his conversations that boxing was the big topic.

It was in St. Louis that Gene signed the contract for his second bout with Jack Dempsey.

Looking fit and trim, he bears few marks of his ring battles. A little scar over the left eye and a slightly thickened ear are the only visible reminders that he fought in the light-heavyweight and the heavyweight divisions when those two classes were full of good men.

Gene lives now in Stamford, Conn., with his wife and three sons and, approaching 40 years of age, keeps his waist line down with roadwork and games of squash.

He plays golf but according to his own admission, he is a rank in-and-outer on the links.

"I did make a hole in one last year," he laughed, "and Stanley Reed, recently appointed to the Supreme Court, was a member of the foursome. Which makes the hole in one much more important."

In speaking of great fighters, Tunney remarked that Henry Armstrong, St. Louis Negro, featherweight champion, is probably the greatest in the ring today, pound for pound.

"Heavies Today Below Par."

Tunney thinks the heavyweight class today is not up to par, due in a measure to the fact that managers push their fighters along too fast, and he also believes that Louis has been something of a disappointment as champion.

"When I saw Louis first he was fighting Carnera," Tunney said, "and at that time I thought he was the greatest 21-year-old fighter I had ever seen and terribly destructive. But I wanted to see him in a tough spot. I did. Against Schmeling. And he fell down. He showed that he lacked ring experience and there is nothing which will make up for that.

"I believe that Schmeling took something out of Louis that night and Joe will never get over it. So I think, at this long range, that Schmeling will defeat Louis again."

Still Likes Buddy Baer.

Tunney has held for some time that Buddy Baer, younger brother of Max, is a great prospect, and still says so.

"Buddy has the physique. His mental equipment is a little slow, but he punches fast and can take a punch. He may reach the top.

"But you take this Nathan Mann, the next opponent for Louis. Nathan is a good prospect. He can punch, and with a puncher anything may happen. Still, I don't believe he should be rushed into a match with Louis at this time. Perhaps in another year. That's where a manager is at fault. He only sees the immediate large purse."

Asked if, with an opportunity to do over again, he would have pursued a boxing career, he said:

"I should say I would. I can't think of anything which would have returned me the dividends I got out of boxing."

And that brought up some of his own experiences in the ring. He told of his first fight with Harry Greb when Tunney suffered bad cuts over the eyes and his nose was broken in the first round.

"My face was swollen and discolored out of recognition after that fight," he said, "and that was the hardest battle I ever had. Pound for pound, I think Greb was the greatest fighter I ever saw. Weighing only 162 or 163 pounds, Harry beat men weighing 220 pounds."

"Braddock Smart in Retiring."

Asked if he considered Jim Braddock had done the wise thing in retiring, Tunney said he thought so.

"I thought Jim would stick around and pick up what money he could, but he probably felt he had taken enough punishment and was becoming a little afraid of punch drunkenness, so he quit.

"That's where some boxers make a mistake. They stay too long after they start going down hill and they suffer serious injury.

"Yet, look at Jack Dempsey. He had some hard fights and was punched quite a bit, but he's perfectly all right. So is Tom Gibbons —and many others. Perhaps boxing gets blamed for a lot of injuries which are not entirely the result of the game itself. I mean by that, there may be illnesses which contribute to a fighter's decline along with the wear and tear of the ring. But in the end boxing is blamed for it all."

SCENESHIFTER AND SEABISCUIT HEAVILY PLAYED FOR HANDICAP

All the play last week for the Santa Anita handicap, to be run March 5, was on Seabiscuit and Sceneshifter, in the book of James J. Carroll, St. Louis commissioner. Pompoon, unquoted in the Carroll book, and Seabiscuit are the "high horses" on Carroll's sheet; he doesn't want any more Pompoon money and has slashed Sceneshifter down to 10 to 1.

Carroll took a fall out of Pompoon at 15 to 1, figuring that he would get a play on Heelfly, Rosemont, Eagle Pass, Calumet Dick, Aneroid, Sceneshifter and the South American horses, Amor Brujo, Sabuesco, Cascabelito II, Ligarito, Limpion and Olimpo. But Heelfly trained off; Rosemont went lame and the South American flyers (all but Ligarito) turned out false alarms.

ADMITS SENDING EXTORTION NOTE TO OIL FIELD OPERATOR

An attempt to extort $2600 from a Clinton County (Ill.) farmer resulted yesterday in the arrest of a man who, authorities said, admitted mailing a letter demanding the money. Department of Justice agents, called by Sheriff B. J. Timmermann of Clinton County, said they would seek a Federal warrant charging use of the mails in an attempt to extort money.

The letter was received Jan. 23 by William Steinmann, farmer and president of the Santa Fe Petroleum Corporation, which is developing Clinton County oil fields. The letted, crudely printed by hand and signed "Our Gang," instructed Steinmann to leave the money in a binder in a shed on an adjoining farm, under threat of killing Steinmann's wife. Steinmann turned the letter over to the Sheriff, and, at the latter's instruction, placed a note in the binder last Monday, suggesting that another spot be selected in which to leave the money.

Officers watched the shed and saw the man take Steinmann's letter from the binder. Friday night this man was summoned to the Sheriff's office and questioned. He denied having written to Steinmann, but admitted early yesterday after being shown samples of his own printing which were similar to that in the extortion letter.

PLAN TO STAGE BANK SCENE AT SWINDLE TRIAL

GRAHAM AND McKAY TO TAKE THE STAND

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Defense attorneys at the trial of five alleged conspirators in a Reno (Nev.) swindling ring are preparing to set up in court a reproduction of a bank cash vault, in an effort to refute testimony of a Government witness.

At the close of the second week of the trial, United States Attorney William P. Maloney said another half hour's testimony on Monday would complete the Government's case. The central figures, William J. Graham and James C. McKay, Reno sportsmen and night club operators, are accused of mail fraud and conspiracy in allegedly operating a "clearing house" for bunko-steerers in the Nevada city.

Swindled Out of $177,000.

Defense Attorney John Taaffe of San Francisco is preparing to attack the testimony of a key Federal witness, Joseph M. Feutsch, who was assistant cashier of the now defunct Riverside Bank of Reno. Feutsch has sworn that he saw McKay, an officer of the bank, bring $110,500 into the bank on Dec. 8, 1930, the day on which Miss Kathryn Beeson, an elderly steel heiress of Pittsburgh, Pa., was paid cash for her securities—shortly before she was swindled out of $177,000. Under cross-examination, Feutsch has insisted he saw McKay with the money in the vault.

Taaffe said tonight that, if Justice Willis Van Devanter will consent, he will set up a reproduction of the cash vault in the courtroom Monday and attempt to show that Feutsch could not possibly have seen McKay inside the vault from his position behind the cashier's cage.

Carpenters were working in the basement of the Federal Building today to complete the reproduction—a big gray and black door, complete in detail. White lines on the floor of the "stage" indicate the partitions of the cashier's cages.

Case's Unsolved Mystery.

Expected testimony involving one of the mysteries in the case — the unsolved disappearance of Roy J. Frisch, cashier of the Riverside Bank—failed to materialize today, when the prosecution canceled plans to call John Paul Chase, now serving a life term at Alcatraz Island Prison and one-time confederate of the late "Baby Face" Nelson. Brought here under guard from the island prison in California, Chase had been slated to testify about Frisch's disappearance.

The prosecution has asserted that Chase and Nelson took Frisch for a "ride" because he knew too much about the alleged Reno pay-off racket. Prosecutor Maloney announced, however, that he had decided against calling Chase because his testimony would be limited by court rules.

Both Graham and McKay have said they will testify when the trial is resumed next week.

Theodore Borgmann Pleads Guilty of Stealing Three Sewing Machines.

Theodore Borgmann was sentenced to a year and a day in a Federal penitentiary by United States District Judge George H. Moore yesterday when he pleaded guilty of stealing three sewing machines from an interstate shipment handled by his former employer, the Acme Fast Freight, Inc., a trucking concern.

Assistant United States Attorney David Robinson told the Court that when police arrested Borgmann they found in his room in a house in the 6200 block of Julian avenue "enough merchandise to open a general store." Theft of the sewing machines occurred in 1936.

Paul Hansen pleaded guilty of transporting a stolen automobile from Long Beach, Cal., to St. Louis and was sentenced to two years in a Federal penitentiary. He told the Court he surrendered in Florida "to get it off my mind" and because he wanted a chance to do something for his two small children. Before he surrendered, he was arrested in Sikeston, Mo., last July, but was released when he convinced authorities he was the owner of the car which had been stolen.

Raymond Duvall, a Negro, got 18 months for transporting a stolen automobile from University City to Illinois.

U. S. BIGGEST GAINER IN RISE OF CANADA'S IMPORT TRADE

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 5.—A 27.4 per cent rise in imports was shown today in figures covering the nine months ended Dec. 31, released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The United States supplied Canada with more than half its imported goods while the United Kingdom and other Empire countries supplied a little less than one-quarter.

Topping the list of countries from which Canada bought $637,342,835 worth of goods in the nine months, the United States provided $380,892,440 worth, boosting its trade 34.1 per cent in comparison with the like period of the previous fiscal year.

Imports from empire countries rose 25.1 per cent at $191,514,649. Those from the United Kingdom, worth $115,859,495, were up 18.1 per cent.

Second among non-British countries exporting to Canada was Germany which shipped goods worth $9,499,747, an increase of 3.3 per cent.

LANDON ON CHURCH'S STAKE IN DEMOCRACY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—Former Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas asserted today that "Christianity has a great stake in the preservation of democracy." The 1936 Republican presidential candidate, addressing the closing session of the United Methodist Council, representing the three great branches of the church soon to be formally consolidated, then declared that "only by a vigorous and prophetic church may we retain democracy."

Landon said that "today the ancient theory of absolute government is abroad in the world. Not only does it threaten democratic and representative government, it threatens the church itself."

He called for an awareness of events abroad, adding: "We cannot live on a high plateau, above and away from all other nations. Even if our conscience would permit us to take such a stand, it would not be practical, in a world that is made small by modern methods of communication and transportation."

Discussing problems within the church, Landon advised the ministry to think in "practical, every-day terms," called upon the church to "restore something of the former close contact with the home and members of the family," and suggested it "show a high regard for its own obligations" in financial matters.

He commended the union of the three branches of Methodism, and said the "consolidation movement should be carried even farther." He recommended that the General Conference have a committee study the problem with a view to a long-time program based on population trends, growth of cities and city planning.

Landon proposed that, as "one of its first tasks," the uniting conference should "properly safeguard the use of the name 'Methodist'." He urged that any institution using the name be under the control of the conference and church authorities.

The council session drew more than 4000 ministers and laymen from the three branches— the Methodist Episcopal Church, Methodist Episcopal Church South and the Methodist Protestant Church.

Following Landon's address, the meeting adopted a committee report calling for "a nation freed from the licensed liquor traffic," "defeat of the gambling evil," organization of "economic justice," an end to race prejudice, and a "warless world."

To reach those ends the meeting proposed as "immedate goals," a "more vital, informed and devoted ministry," and more intense programs for Christian education and constructive evangelism.

AUDITING & ACCOUNTING

A PLAN OF SUCCESS

Would you like to quickly enter the most profitable and least crowded profession in America today? Which would you prefer—actually being a success in the business world and enjoying the comforts and luxuries of life—or just going on wishing and longing for them?

New legislation enacted in the past few years and business operating on a small margin of profit, in order to cope with rapidly increasing competition, has created such a demand for full and adequate records, that business large and small is paying, and is willing to pay, handsomely for trained accountants.

If you feel your ambition and ability justifies a larger income and the progress you are now making is not satisfactory, then the AMERICAN ACADEMY OF ACCOUNTANCY can and will help you quickly prepare for a high salaried position in the growing field of accountancy.

PLEASE NOTE:—The AMERICAN ACADEMY OF ACCOUNTANCY is not a correspondence school. It is not necessary for you to attend classes. You are brought face to face with a certified public accountant who gives you the benefit of his personal and individual instruction, unlimited advise and consultation throughout your training.

The AMERICAN ACADEMY OF ACCOUNTANCY'S modern plan of training will not interfere with your employment or social schedules. Previous experience is not necessary—whether you are in an office or a factory, if you wish to provide the better things of life for yourself and your loved ones, then the AMERICAN ACADEMY OF ACCOUNTANCY, can and will help you quickly qualify for one of the many waiting opportunities in the uncrowded field of accountancy. Regardless of your present finances, and the best assurance of what this training will do for you is to judge what it has done for others.

What our customers say about our O. K. Used Cars:

A St. Louis Chauffeur with the Brashear Trucking Co., writes:

"A year ago I purchased through your Mr. Grover Hess a reconditioned Chevrolet coach. I have driven this car 9000 miles and my only expense for repairs has been $1.00 for adjusting brakes. I am so well pleased that I heartily recommend your reconditioned OK used cars to all my friends." (Signed) CLARDY MOSS, 3532 Bamberger.

You, too, can enjoy the satisfaction of driving one of our thoroughly reconditioned used cars. Come in and pick one of these O. K. Used Cars at any of our FOUR LOCATIONS AT GRAND AND GRAVOIS.

GROUP OF 40 BUNGALOWS UNDER MASS PRODUCTION

With setup plans closely adjusted to regulations governing Federal aid in financing modest yet modern homes, costing not more than $6000 each, steps toward constructing at least 40 such homes on Chippewa Hills have already been taken, and the pace will slacken only when weather is prohibitive of building activities. This was announced yesterday by William Cole, in charge of that branch of development, and David P. Leahy, an active figure in the enterprise. Employing the mass method of construction, it is expected to transpose much of the project into reality by the end of the approaching summer.

The tract to be thus rapidly made a definite community of home owners had a total area of 30 acres. A portion of it has already been converted into home sites, but the remainder is more than ample for the number of units embraced in the current year's building program, with lots on which each of them is to be erected affording breathing space in line with demands for modern dwelling places.

Cole stated that all the homes are to be of the bungalow type, constructed in the most approved architectural design and interior space arrangements into five rooms, all on one floor, with materials of the most enduring and fireproof type.

REALTY SALESMEN HEAR TWO INSPIRING ADDRESSES

Much of the enthusiasm engendered by the annual social session, held in January, when the attendance ran into unprecedented proportions, remained when members of the North St Louis Real Estate Salesmen's Association came together for the monthly business meeting last Wednesday evening in the Northwestern Hotel. The attendance was convincing of strongly maintained interest throughout the membership, active and honorary. Following the enjoyment of the customary excellent menu there were two inspiring addresses. One of these was by the guest speaker, William Bryan, in which successful salesmanship was discussed, and the other by John C. Greulich, who spoke on the slum housing problem with which the city must deal.

NEW A. & P. SUPER-MARKET TO BE OPENED THIS WEEK

The A. & P. will open a new super-market in the warehouse and office building, 4507 Scott avenue, this week. This new super-market is said to be the first of its kind in the Middle West where food is sold directly from the warehouse to the consumer.

The new store, located on the main floor of the warehouse, occupies a space of approximately 10,000 square feet. Bins which place the merchandise within easy reach have been built and an electric refrigeration system has been installed. With the exception of meats and coffee, the store will be entirely self-service, with gliders furnished to facilitate shopping.

The Warehouse Food Mart will be open for service on Wednesday.

JANUARY BUILDING PERMITS SMALL ON PERIOD AVERAGE

Figures for new construction and alterations of existing buildings, given in applications for building permits in St. Louis in January, total $374,005. New buildings provide accommodations for 26 families, few of the homes showing large cost. In the period from 1915 to the current year, there were only six initial months for which the total was smaller, the range for the period being from $3,481,167, in 1924, to $124,335, in 1933. Eleven of the 24 months in comparison ran above the million mark, from the 1924 January aggregate to $1,094,673, in 1915.

CLAVERACH PARK HOME AMONG SALES LAST WEEK

Purchase of the residential property at 39 Ridgemoor, in Claverach Park, by Dr. Albert E. Auer was announced last week by the Apex Realty Co. It is just north of Clayton road, in the original part of the Moorlands, now known as Claverach Park. The residence occupies a lot fronting 75 feet with a depth of 180 feet. It is a clear example of English architecture, contains center entrance hall to a living room 24 feet long, with a large fireplace at one end, and a screened porch opening off it. There is also a dining room, breakfast room and powder room on the first floor, while on the second there are four bedrooms and two baths. There is a built-in two car garage. The grounds are handsomely landscaped. This home was owned by Frank H. Robertson, of note in flying service, who now resides in Arizona. Col. Lindbergh was a frequent guest of the Robertsons prior to his transcontinental flight. The seller, also Dr. Auer, was represented in the negotiations by the Apex Realty Co.

OPENING OF JENNINGS TRACT IS ANNOUNCED

The Carl G. Stifel Realty Co., through its Pasadena Hills office, announced yesterday the opening of Petrova Court, at Cozzen's and Summit avenues in Jennings. All lots are 60 and 65 feet wide, giving a fine setting to the landscape. This tract is part of the original John Bromelsick homestead. Perry Ballman and wife, the latter daughter of Bromelsick, have lived there for 20 years. A number of new brick bungalows have already been built. High and grade schools are within two blocks.

BRIDGE & BEACH ANNOUNCE PLANS FOR THIS YEAR

Sale of the plant erected for and occupied by the Bridge & Beach Manufacturing Co. for more than 20 years, as reported in the Post-Dispatch on Sunday, Jan. 30, was a real estate transaction in which the company was in no wise concerned. The property involved, while once a part of its holding, passed to the Union Boulevard Holding Co. some years ago.

Since the transfer of ownership took place the Bridge & Beach company has continued occupancy of that section of the plant having to do with its business of manufacturing and marketing stoves and ranges for cooking and heating purposes. Certainly the recent sale referred to did not, even remotely, mark an epoch in the history of the company, now in its 101st year, unless it be in its preparation for what is designed to be the most far-reaching and energetic business expansion movement in its history, it was declared yesterday by Mr. George L. Bridge, president of the company, the statement being expanded by Mr. Edwin C. Hoffmann, vice-president.

Record Year Plans Made.

"I have on my desk," the latter official stated, "proof sheets of a coast-to-coast advertising campaign, which will be inaugurated as soon as the plan has been checked and approved in its every detail. For this forward movement we have lines of cooking and heating stoves well in advance of many of those products even as recent as 1937."

Referring to the erroneous conclusion from sale of the plant as reported in the Post-Dispatch, Mr. Bridge declared that facilities for production and marketing of superior stoves did not hinge upon impressive quarters, but upon knowledge of their manufacture, in adequate quarters, and modern methods in conduct of the business, in conjunction with intelligent regard for keeping in perfect pace with progressive development as opportunities arise.

Success Demands Uppermost.

All these demands have been uppermost with the company since its founding, in 1837, sacredly passed along as vital to each succeeding administration, and were never more in force and effect than at this turn into the first year of its second century, which it is determined shall also mark the most successful in its long and progressive history.

The Bridge & Beach company has labeled its stoves "Superior" almost from the outset of its career in that industry. After several years of its use the name was registered as its exclusive trademark, this being done many years ago. It was inadvertently stated in the plant sale report that its product was known as "Charter Oak," the manufacture of which by an old and well-established institution still lends notable fame to the stove industry in St. Louis.

Charter Oak stoves and ranges have never been and are not now products of the Bridge & Beach Co., but of a company that had its beginning in St. Louis only 10 years later than that organization. It is among the larger companies of the country which manufactures everything having a part in its output except steel sheets. It operates a plant the site of which is in excess of 16 acres, half of them under roof, the whole being linked with the Terminal Railway by a spur track built by the Charter Oak Stove & Range Co., at 7800 North Broadway.

The Charter Oak Stove & Range Co. moved into its present home, planned by and constructed under its own supervision, in 1911. For

MODERN IDEAS PREVAIL IN LARGE NEW APARTMENT

A 15-family apartment building, on which finishing touches were given last week, apparently lacks nothing in the way of modern arrangement, architectural design and modern construction skill. It is of three floors, permitting ample room size, and extends over a broad site, convincing in every respect as to its home-like qualities. There are three 4-room apartments, nine 5-room and three 6-room apartments, each of the latter having two baths. The location is convenient to transportation and schools, at 7532-36 York drive.

The interiors have been carried out in distinctive pastel shades; the room arrangement having exceptional utility and closets more than ample for average family needs. There is indirect lighting in living and dining rooms. Unique treatment of glass blocks in the building adds to attractiveness of the exterior, as well as supplying extra interior light.

The first floor and foundation construction is of rock and concrete, the basement being used as garage accommodating 22 cars, entrance doors to which are operated by electric control. The building is of of semi-fireproof construction. The Anderson-Stocke-Buerman Real Estate Co. financed the building. The John P. Dolan Realty Co. has been appointed property manager, with Howard S. Bergen, Elmer Carlisle and Arthur Winklemeyer as consulting agents.

RENTS 5 TO 10 PCT. HIGHER, SURVEY OF 250 CITIES SHOWS

DWELLING SHORTAGE IN 52 PCT. OF THEM

Sustained but Balanced Absorption of Residential and Business Space Is Found.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5. — Residential rents have increased 5 or 10 per cent the past year in most districts, a survey of conditions in 260 cities by the National Association of Real Estate Boards disclosed today.

Rents for apartments are up in 66 per cent of the cities and down in only 3 per cent. Rents for single family dwellings are up in 67 per cent of the cities reporting and down in only 6 per cent.

The association said new building appeared to have been sufficient, considering the extent of general business recovery, to hold a "balanced situation" with respect to space absorption and rent increases. This balance, it said, would seem to open the way to gradual rather than violent adjustment in housing supply and demand as the general busines situation changed.

Supply and Demand.

A undersupply of single family dwellings exists in 52 per cent of the cities reporting and a prospective shortage of an additional 6 per cent is reported. An oversupply exists in 5 per cent of the cities surveyed. An undersupply was reported in 72 per cent of the cities a year ago.

An undersupply of apartments was reported in 40 per cent of the cities with a prospective shortage in an additional 4 per cent and an oversupply in only 6 per cent. A year ago an undersupply was reported in 55 per cent of the cities.

Construction during the year averaged a little more than one new apartment unit for every 233 families in the cities. New home building averaged one detached house for every 115 families.

The association said the semiannual survey reflected "a very healthy condition in the great underlying factors that affect the prospect of real estate advance."

The survey showed a sustained but balanced absorption of residential and business space, increased earning power for every type of real estate property, with capital seeking mortgage investment and interest rates either steady or declining.

Real Estate Prices Rise.

Although in the last few months market activity receded and in most cities was lower than a year ago, sale prices of real estate were predominantly higher, with a 10 per cent rise reported most frequently.

The survey disclosed the greater percentage of cities reporting a rise in apartment rents was in the larger population groups. The largest proportion of cities showing an uptrend in business and office rentals was in the group of from 100,000 to 500,000 population but not a single city among those with more than 500,000 population reported any downtrend in rents of any type of property. Not a city of more than 500,000 population has any remaining oversupply of residential space.

many years prior to that time its plant covered approximately four blocks at Main street and Cass avenue. This site became too valuable for use as a factory the location of which did not require it, and was acquired for railway terminals. President Leslie Dana has as associate on the executive staff Walter Ph. Stoffel as secretary and vice-president, who has actively participated in the development of the company for many years and is widely known as a master of the stove-making science.

While active in lending Federal funds to home owners for only a few years, The Home Owners' Loan Corporation, brought into being by Congress as a means of promoting recovery from a business slump, put out approximately three billion dollars in the country as a whole. This operation continued until about three years ago, but even before the flow of Federal cash in that endeavor ceased there had been defaults in repayment that served to indicate the certainty of need for collection activities. The percentage of such failures has continued to swell, but the high tide of them is believed to have passed.

The Corporation in charge of loans in Missouri has approximately $35,000,000 on its records, and is running about the average in defaults. Since the lending was discontinued that agency has turned its attention to getting the money back into national coffers by whatever legal means may be required, following the prescribed foreclosure proceeding. It has accumulated a considerable number of properties, more than a few of these in St. Louis and vicinity.

"In bringing these into line for recovery of the unpaid loans, we are offering no bargains," it was declared yesterday by Sylvester Judge, in charge of the St. Louis office. "Regard must, we believe, be had for value of realty on the regular market, and that is our policy. Should we sell a property for, say, $1000 below the legitimate value of adjacent realty of much the same type, it would depress the latter value accordingly and serious harm be inflicted."

13-ACRE TRACT IN COUNTY TO BE DEVELOPED IN SPRING

The first appearance of evidence that winter is definitely on its way out will be the signal for start on development of a 13-acre tract divided in location between Kirkwood and Glendale, in St. Louis County. Plans to this end have been completed by Chomeau & Jaudon, realtors of the former city, it was announced yesterday by the latter partner.

Near the center of the tract is what is believed to be the oldest dwelling in the county, its age being 130 years. Until it becomes necessary to spread from the group of homes contemplated at this time, this structure will not be molested. It stands on the highest ground in the generally elevated and wooded area, and around it a broad roadway is to be constructed, so located that when expansion takes place it will serve as front entrance to the inner group of dwellings. This view from the entire community will embrace one of the highly attractive spots in that vicinity, known as Kirkwood Gardens.

The ground is part of what once was a large acreage belonging to the Armstrong estate, sales from which have reduced it to 46 acres. Of this total, 26 acres are held by Dr. John H. Armstrong of Kirkwood, these adjoining the section to be developed next spring by the realtors named.

SEVERAL BUSINESS LEASES CLOSED DURING WEEK

Ad-Craft, Inc., entire second floor and south one-half of first floor of the three-story building at 1624-26 Delmar avenue for use as office, sample room and factory. This gives the firm double the space formerly occupied. Zellinger Shoe Co., two-story and basement building at 1400 Washington avenue. Alton Garment Co., entire seventh floor in the Gould building, 1324 Washington avenue, to be used as factory, office and stockroom. Nat Agruss, first floor at 703 South Broadway. J. E. Mays, storeroom at 525 N. Vandeventer avenue. All parties in these transactions were represented by Mullin-Walters.

COUNTRY LIFE ACRES HOME RECENTLY COMPLETED

An attractive colonial residence, American style of architecture, at 5 Country Life Acres, has just been completed. It has nine rooms and three baths including four master bedrooms and maid's room, all on the second floor. The building is of semi-fireproof construction, situated on a two-acre tract. It was erected under supervision of Arthur E. Jones. Dimmitt-Rickhoff-Bayer, R. E. Co., Inc., are agents for Country Life Acres.

COUNTY REALTY BOARD HEARS TALK ON TAXES

The St. Louis County Real Estate Board held its monthly meeting in the Claymo Hotel, Clayton, last Wednesday. Comptroller Edward Harper of St. Louis County was the guest of honor and gave a talk on the financial affairs of the county government, including a discussion of taxes which affect real estate and real estate owners. Charles D. Jost, the board's new president, presided at the meeting.

Duplex House Maintains Character of Residence

·SECOND FLOOR·

DUPLEX dwellings are of interest to prospective home builders for a number of reasons. Well planned and well built, they have a solid dignity which the small house sometimes lacks. As income property they have replaced the two-family dwellings of a dec[illegible] or two ago which were rather [illegible]sightly rectangles with protuberant front porches.

The house shown here is a good example of what can be done with a duplex dwelling without destroying either unity or character while still maintaining privacy for both families. It is adapted from the popular Colonial style of architecture and has been built in the Moorlands on Wellington Way.

Each side has been planned to give a first and second floor and there are separate entrances [illegible] harmonize sufficiently to keep [illegible] house in its character of single-family residence. Each entry has a guest closet. A stairway to the second floor has simple newel and wood balusters and opens on the living room. The fireplace is of simple Colonial design with brick facing painted white. There are windows on either side. Dining room and kitchen follow en suite and a small rear hall gives access to the basement and to a lavatory.

The second floor has three bedrooms and a bath. The two larger bedrooms have two exposures which should give enough air circulation in summer. A screened porch with dividing wall opens off the master bedroom. Hall space on the second floor has been kept to a minimum and the architect [illegible] used the dividing wall to good advantage by placing the closets here. In this way there are two closets in the larger bedrooms and two storage closets, one cedar lined, in the hall. The smaller bedroom which may be used as a maid's room has a good-sized closet and a double window. The bathroom has a linen closet and the tub has been recessed.

THE house is of brick construction and the colors chosen were red verging on salmon. The roof is of slate in a color to harmon[illegible] with the exterior brick and white painted wood trim. The dividing well in the house is of conder block, chosen for its sound-deadening effects. The foundation is a double wall of concrete masonry, with an air space between the two walls.

A four-car garage has been placed in the basement, and for this purpose the drive has been excavated with a rock retaining wall. A rathskeller occupies the space under the living room in the left hand unit. It has a fireplace with a knotty pine wall. The remaining walls have been painted with white cement paint and marble dust which gives an iridescen effect and is washable.

Space under the living room the other side is occupied by the heating plant, which is forced hot water. There are individual heating controls which may be set at will in either portion. An individual air conditioning unit washes and humidifies the air.

The rooms have papered walls in Colonial print paper which is in keeping with the character of the house. The wood trim is painted an off-white and the floors are hardwood. The finish hardware is of pewter and brass. The bath [illegible] a tile wainscot. Kitchen walls [illegible] cabinets are painted. One kitchen has light cream walls and cabinets with buff, red and black linoleum floor with a black border; the other has walls painted a light green with cream trim and gray hexagonal patterned linoleum floor.

Each basement has a separate laundry while a disappearing stairway gives access to the storage space in the attic. The house is furnished in keeping with Colonial traditions, and there are Venetian blinds throughout. The house faces north and has been built on a 6[illegible]-foot plot. Cubage has been estimated at 56,000 feet, and the cost is 27 cents per cubic foot. The house was designed by John Loren[illegible] member of the St. Louis Chapte[illegible] Institute of Architects.

SIXTEEN PROPERTIES SOLD FOR HOME OWNERS' LOAN

The O. J. McCawley Realty Co., contract sales and management representative of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, reports these sales made for it:

JANUARY SALES TOTAL ANNOUNCED AS $140,505

A group of stores in the new business section of Hampton boulevard, corner of Itaska street, was one of the noteworthy transactions reported in January by Dimmitt-Rickhoff-Bayer Real Estate Co., Inc. The building is of modernistic design, contains five stores, three of which are 75 feet in depth, and is in the heart of the business section being developed in St. Louis Hills.

Sales for the month aggregated $140,505.00, which included a bungalow at 6333 Alamo avenue, and also the following residences: 7419 Stratford avenue, in the newly developed subdivision opposite Villa Duchesne, at Spoede and Conway roads, and 450 Somerset drive in Sherwood Forest, Webster Groves.

Nursery Space

Two little boys who shared a room had many games to play, and two regular beds left little space for toys. Wall beds which folded up and were completely out of the way in the daytime were installed. The doors which hid them were painted a pastel color, and animals were drawn on the panels.

Winter Centerpiece

Decorative Note

If your living room is of the older vintage and is beginning to look a bit jaded and monostonous, pep it up with a few touches of ivory or of white. A lamp shade, a vase and a set of ash trays offer a good start in the brightening process.

QUESTIONS BEFORE THE HOUSE

Q. My kitchen had linoleum all over the floor. Now I have a rug over that. I want to paint the sides a plain color. Will paint hold o. this and what can I do to make it hold? MRS. L. G.

A. Any good floor paint or enamel should cover your old linoleum. See that the old surface is free of grease or wax by washing it with a washing soda. Let dry thoroughly before painting. Two coats should cover all colors.

Q. I have just bought a house and although it is new I find that the white plastered walls above the tile in the kitchen need painting. I decided to give them a coat or two of some good enamel but someone told me cold water paint would be best as this would still give them that new appearance. Please give me your opinion and also how to apply both, whether I'd have to give them an undercoat of some kind. AN ARDENT READER.

A. If you are contemplating painting your kitchen walls at some later time it would be inadvisable to use a cold water paint now as much of this must be removed for a good paint job. Unfortunately white plaster walls do not stay that way long in this locality and there is nothing you can do to clean them. Plaster walls should be allowed six months to season properly. Cracks or holes should be plastered and the surface should be free of dust. Three coats are necessary, a priming coat, a second or body coat, and a finishing coat. These may all be purchased ready mixed. Each coat of paint should be allowed to dry thoroughly before applying the next.

Thank you for your letter of appreciation.

Q. We have a bungalow with five rooms and are having some trouble keeping a fire in the furnace. We have had the flues looked at and the furnace cleaned, but when the weather is raw the fire will not burn. On fair days there is no trouble at all. What is the cause for this? J. M.

A. Your chimney is probably too low to give a good draft. If you will have this done you should have no trouble keeping a fire no matter what the weather.

Q. I am planning to do over the hardwood floors in my home, first scraping them and then using a filler and wax rather than varnish or shellac. Is this a good treatment for a new floor? ED. C.

A. Put a coat of high-grade varnish on the floor after the filler has dried properly. A floor like this makes a better job. Wax should be applied at regular intervals after that.

Q. I find that my refrigerator has an odor which I do not seem able to eliminate. I am at a loss as to what to do about it and am wondering if there is anything that I can get in the stores which will do away with this odor. MRS. F. W.

A. A container of treated charcoal which you may buy at any department or hardware store is very effective in absorbing odors. Usually one will do the trick, or, where the odor persists, two.

Q. We painted a border around the linoleum on our kitchen floor, but find that every foot mark shows. Is there any kind of paint or preparation that can be used so they will not show? MRS. E. L.

A. Any plain surface will show foot prints if the color is dark. Try using a dark background with a stippling in a lighter tone. This does not show foot prints as easily.

FOR BETTER LIVING

The fireplace has once again become an integral part of the American home and gadgets for it are very much in order. To keep logs from rolling out or sparks from burning holes in your best rug you may now have a built-in firescreen. These screens are push-up and are made in corrosion resisting metals. They do not interfere with your enjoyment of the fireplace because they are quite unobtrusive and may be pushed up into the chimney breast when not in use.

• • •

And speaking of fireplaces: The modern fireplace is completely air conditioned, having a three-way action. Fresh air is drawn in from the outside and dispensed above the fireplace opening while the stale air is carried out through the chimney. The heat is circulated through the room and there is no alternate roasting and freezing any longer.

• • •

Going south for the winter? Don't forget to have a plumber shut off the water in your house and drain all of the plumbing and heating pipes as well as all the plumbing traps and the water heater.

• • •

Woods such as oak, walnut, chestnut and mahogany contain open pores which require filling with paste wood filler in order to make the surface level and prevent the varnish or other finish from sinking in and resulting in an uneven effect. In applying paste wood filler, the filler should be thinned to a creamy consistency with turpentine. Apply the thinned filler over a few square feet at a time and let it become partially "set" (10-20 minutes). Then wipe off by rubbing across the grain with a piece of burlap or coarse cloth. Let dry for 24-48 hours before proceeding.

Livable Homes

DUMB WAITERS were an English invention of the Eighteenth Century which consisted of tiers or trays affixed to a central support on a tripod base. They were usually placed diagonally at the corners of the dining table so that diners might help themselves after the servants had departed. One of Chippendale's early [illegible] mentions "two mahogany Du[illegible] Waiters" on casters which were supplied to Kensington Palace.

These tiered tables are reproduced today for use not only in the dining room but in the living room as well. They may serve as lamp tables, or to hold flower bowls, bits of interesting glass and bric-a-brac, or for various other purposes.

The breakfront book case is an excellent piece of furniture to lend dignity and interest to a room. Because of its height and its architectural character, it may well serve as the focus for a room which lacks a fireplace and become the outstanding piece about which other furniture is grouped.

SOLVE THE HOME SHORTAGE AND RISING RENT PROBLEM

THERE are many reasons why you should build or buy now. St. Louis is facing a serious housing shortage. Good vacancies are scarce and rents are pyramiding.

A home of your own is not only cheaper to live in. It is a splendid investment. Records prove that nothing is safer or surer than real estate. Regardless of fluctuation in other industries, your home will save you money and pay you dividends in utility and comfort through the years.

As a contribution to your pride and joy in living, few satisfactions equal that of placing your family in a permanent residence where they can enjoy the social stability that comes with being a permanent member of the community.

When you build or buy, assure yourself of permanent satisfaction by insisting on Goodfellow Pre-Shrunk Stabilized Lumber. This lumber is thoroughly seasoned. It will not shrink and cause trouble after the house is built. It is guaranteed to give your home a stable, rigid inner structure that will last for more than 100 years!

ACT NOW

Everything is favorable to the man who will ACT NOW. Interest rates for home financing are less than they've been in years. Building costs are still low. Real estate values are on the upgrade. For security, happiness—and as a straight business investment—a new home deserves first place in your consideration.

Everything Hangs on the Frame
Lath, flooring, finish, doors and windows—all are attached to the frame. If the frame has been built with wet (green) lumber it will shrink and MOVE after the house has been built, causing havoc with plaster, floors, and joints.

Thousands of Truck Loads Rejected

EVERY PIECE INSPECTED
Goodfellow Lumber is dry (seasoned). It will not shrink excessively and cause the damage associated with wet lumber. How can we know this is true? Because every piece of Goodfellow Lumber is tested with the moisture meter. Nothing off-grade is accepted.

WATERPROOF GUNPOWDER DEVELOPED FOR U. S. ARMY

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—War Department and civilian experts after many months of research have developed a waterproof gunpowder which works as well after a wetting as before. Details are secret "for military reasons." Major M. E. Barker, writing a non-technical description in The Reserve Officer, a magazine, says:

"The Ordnance Department has succeeded in making a powder that is flashless, smokeless, and non-hygroscopic (waterproof). Such a powder is used in trench mortars. You can carry it around in a bucket of water until you need it, then flip the water off and it shoots quite all right."

In a demonstration, a ring of the propellant made for trench mortar use—resembling a thin black gasket about four inches in diameter—was dropped into a glass of water. It remained there for 30 minutes. Then it was removed and laid beside a similar ring which had not been wetted. Both were touched off by a match, and burned side by side, normally. There was no spluttering, fizzling delayed ignition such as occurs with normal types of powder when damp or wet.

FATHER BADLY BURNED SAVING SIX OF SEVEN CHILDREN

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—Harold Adams, 31 years old, was seriously burned in rescuing six of his seven children from their blazing home today. Adams dashed through smoke and flame three times to carry the children to safety. He collapsed on the fourth attempt and two-year-old Patrick Adams, whom he sought to reach, was burned to death. The eldest child, Mary Ann, 8 years old, was treated for burns in a hospital.

The family was asleep on the second floor of the brick dwelling. Mrs. Adams was awakened at about 8 a. m. by the smell of smoke. Her husband found the fire had blocked escape by the rear stairway. While he was rescuing the children, Mrs. Adams leaped to the roof of an adjoining building and was removed to safety by firemen.

DR. GUSTAVE W. SIEVING DIES

Funeral of Retired Physician to Be Held Tuesday.

Dr. Gustave W. Sieving, physician who practiced in Maxville, Mo., for many years before retiring about three years ago, died last night at his home, 8633 Rosalie avenue, Brentwood, where he had lived for only two weeks since coming here from Maxville. He had been in ill health since he suffered a paralytic stroke which caused his retirement. He was 66 years old.

A native of St. Louis, Dr. Sieving was a graduate of the old Marion Sims Medical College. He was a pharmacist as well as a physician, and operated a drug store at Miami street and Jefferson avenue as a young man. After practicing medicine here for several years he established an office in Maxville, Jefferson County.

Surviving are his wife, three sisters and two brothers. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Beiderwieden Mortuary, 3620 Chippewa street.

SAFE IS ROBBED OF $596

The safe of the National House Furnishing Co., 132 Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, was forced open some time Friday night and $596 stolen.

Police were unable to determine how entrance was gained to the building, as an electric burglar alarm connecting with all doors and windows in the place was not sounded.

Two Youths Shot by Neighbor.

Two 19-year-old Negroes, Dorsey Warford, 4007 Piggott avenue, East St. Louis, and Alfred Phipps, 4036 Piggott, were shot Friday night by Lonnie Perryman, Negro, who told police he fired at five youths who were trying to drag an automobile motor from the yard of his home, 3902 Piggott. Warford was treated at St. Mary's Hospital for a head wound, Phipps for a shattered right arm. In earlier editions of today's Post-Dispatch it was erroneously stated that Perryman was arrested.

Mrs. W. G. Burroughs Dies.

Mrs. Maude Burroughs, wife of W. G. Burroughs, United States Commissioner at Edwardsville, died yesterday at Clearwater, Fla., following an intestinal operation. She was 60 years old. She and her husband were in Florida on vacation. Burial will be in Edwardsville.

ZERWECK TO REINSTATE BERNIE SHELTON CHARGE

A charge of attempted murder against Bernie Shelton, member of the notorious East St. Louis family which headed a gang bearing their name, will be reinstated immediately, a Post-Dispatch reporter was told yesterday by State's Attorney Louis P. Zerweck. The charge was dismissed last Thursday by Justice of the Peace Aloys Shoenenberger at Belleville.

Zerweck expressed surprise at the dismissal, although Justice Schoenenberger had said Zerweck requested it. Zerweck added that he had said he would dismiss the case if Frank Zimmerman, complaining witness, failed to appear at the third setting of the case. Last Thursday was the second date set for a preliminary hearing and Zimmerman, who had identified photographs of Shelton as the man who shot him in the leg Jan. 16 at a Cahokia tavern, was not present for the second time.

Zimmerman, a packing house worker, told a Post-Dispatch reporter Thursday that he had been too drunk to know who shot him. He expressed the opinion "they won't do anything to Bernie Shelton, anyway," and described prosecution as "a hopeless case." Zerweck said he had learned recently the names of five witnesses of the shooting who would be subpenaed.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—A 22-year-old girl was shot to death and her brother was wounded seriously tonight by their unemployed father, police reported, during a quarrel over their meager supper.

Police said members of the family told him Joseph Novak, 43 years old, killed his daughter, Rose, and shot his son, John, after a dispute upon arriving home intoxicated and finding the evening meal consisted of spaghetti left over from Friday night.

Mrs. Novak said her husband, who fled after the shooting, "wanted steak and we couldn't afford it."

She related, that Novak at first grasped a flat iron and tried to strike her but the children wrested it from him. In falling, the iron cut Novak's head and his son was preparing to dress the wound. Suddenly, Mrs. Novak said Novak drew a pistol and started shooting. The son was wounded in the shoulder as he ran out a kitchen door and later grappled with his father and was shot again in the abdomen.

The mother of Novak and two other small children were in the house when the shooting occurred.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 5. — Congressman Scott W. Lucas, the choice of the Horner Democratic faction, was the only candidate for the Senate who officially entered the April 12 primary today by filing nomination petitions with Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes.

While congressional and legislative aspirants engaged in their usual opening day rush for preferred positions on the primary ballots, only a handful filed for State-wide nominations. Arriving in the morning mail were the Lucas petitions and others in behalf of his chief running mate on the Horner ticket, Speaker Louie E. Lewis, for State Treasurer.

Senator William H. Dieterich, whose job Lucas seeks, was in Springfield today, ready to leave for Chicago and Washington. Opposed by Gov. Horner, Dieterich repeated that he was campaigning as a supporter of President Roosevelt and indicated his petitions would be filed within a few days.

Hughes in his mail found no sign of petitions and a statement of candidacy from Michael L. Igoe of Chicago, the District Attorney who is expected by many Democrats to get the backing of the Kelly-Nash organization for the Senatorship.

Two other Democrats filed for State jobs. John A. Wieland of Calumet City filed for superintendent of Public Instruction, the office he now holds. Barratt O'Hara filed again for Congressman-at-large.

EDWARD F. WRISBERG DIES

Retired Realty Man Succumbs to Heart Disease.

Formerly head of the Edward F. Wrisberg Real Estate Co., 4025 Chouteau avenue, which he founded in 1910, he retired 11 years ago. Before entering the realty business, he operated a lead mine with his father at St. Clair, Mo. He was 60 years old.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Julia Wrisberg, five brothers and two sisters. The funeral will be Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Ambruster Mortuary, 4053 Lindell boulevard, with interment at Oak Grove Mausoleum.

Funeral of Mrs. Lydia Chenault.

Funeral services for Mrs. Lydia Thomson Chenault, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Chappell Kingsland, 6034 Cabanne place, last night, will be held at Stanford, Ky., her former home, tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Chenault, who was 85 years old, was the widow of Abner Oldham Chenault. She had long been a member of Westminster Presbyterian Church, and before it was formed, Grand Avenue Presbyterian Church.

FIVE-YEAR DECREASE IN BANK HOLDING FIRMS

Reserve Board Figures Show There Were 52 in 1937, Against 97 in 1932.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The Federal Reserve Board published today, in the midst of an administration drive to abolish bank holding companies, figures showing these companies had shrunk of their own accord in the last five years.

From the beginning of 1932 to the beginning of 1937, the board said, the number of bank holding companies declined from 97 to 52 and the number of banks they controlled fell from 978 to 479. Only companies controlling three or more banks were classified as holding companies.

No statement of policy on the issue accompanied the figures, although Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Reserve Board, has been reported to be opposing "death sentence" legislation. President Roosevelt and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau have advocated abolition of the holding concerns, and Senator Glass (Dem.), Virginia, is drafting legislation to force their dissolution in five years.

The board's figures, which a spokesman said were included in its monthly bulletin because of "current interest in the problem," do not include holding systems headed by individuals instead of corporations. This explains the difference between the board figures and recent statistics of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation showing 63 bank holding systems controlling 560 banks, he said.

Conversion of separate banks in a holding company system into branches of a single bank was said by the board to have caused 45 per cent of the decrease in the number of holding system banks. Mergers and dissolutions of holding companies constituted the next largest factor.

Minnesota has the most holding company banks—86—the figures show.

Holding company banks are most influential in Nevada, where they have 41.5 per cent of the State's bank loans and investments and 40.4 per cent of the deposits. For the country as a whole, they have 14 per cent of loans and investments and 13.7 per cent of the deposits.

Sixty-six per cent of the holding company banks were in cities of less than 25,000 population; only 5 per cent in cities of more than 500,000 population.

Most of the holding companies originated between 1927 and 1930.

TWO TO BE RECOMMENDED AS ACTING SCHOOL PRINCIPALS

Appointments Sought for Arthur O. Kelley at Beaumont and C. H. Sackett at Southwest High.

Appointment of Arthur O. Kelley as acting principal of Beaumont High School and C. H. Sackett as acting principal of the new Southwest High, will be recommended to the Board of Education Tuesday. Kelley will succeed Wilbur N. Fuller, who died Oct. 15. Sackett will replace H. H. Seidell, who was temporarily detached from direction of the ninth-grade centers when Southwest High opened last September.

Seidell's services have been needed again in his old position. The transfers will become effective immediately on the anticipated approval by the board. There will be no change in rank or pay for those involved; Seidell receives $5750 a year, Kelley and Sackett each $5000. Kelley is assistant principal of McKinley High and Sackett assistant principal of Roosevelt High.

It was not desired to make permanent appointments in the middle of the school year.

BANK ROBBER GETS 20 YEARS, JUDGE SORRY IT IS NOT 50

U. S. Jurist Says Youths Nowadays Feel Ordinary Way of Support Is Too Slow.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Feb. 5.—Ray Loyd Barker, 24 years old, was sentenced to 20 years in the Federal penitentiary today by United States District Judge Edgar S. Vaught for the $11,000 robbery of the Perry National Bank last Aug. 19. "If it were in the power of this Court to make the sentence for 50 years, I would do it," Judge Vaught said.

The sentence was pronounced shortly after Barker changed his plea from not guilty to guilty.

Judge Vaught said, "The only trouble with young people nowadays is that many have an idea the ordinary way of support is entirely too slow. They're not contented to make a small salary, save part of it, make investments, finally buy a home, and try to live as honorable citizens."

Miss Sally Bridge Is Married To Robert Seelye Weeks Jr., At Late Afternoon Ceremony

Small Reception at Bride's Home After Wedding at Church of St. Michael and St. George—Following Honeymoon in Bermuda, Pair Will Live in Cambridge, Mass.

MISS SALLY BRIDGE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Leighton Bridge, became the bride of Robert Seelye Weeks Jr., of Brookline, Mass., at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Church of St. Michael and St. George. It was one of the largest and most interesting of the late winter weddings.

Vases of Easter lilies decorated the candle-lit altar, before which the Rev. Dr. Karl Morgan Block performed the ceremony. The entire chancel was banked with woodwardia fern and the heavy chandeliers overhead were hung with smilax. Tall candelabra with white candles stood inside the communion rail at each side of the choir stalls.

Mr. Bridge escorted his daughter down the aisle and gave her in marriage. She wore ivory satin trimmed with old rose point lace. Lace edged the sleeves of long, tight-fitting satin sleeves, set in with pleats at the shoulders, and a lace collar was appliqued to the upper bodice and the satin cut away beneath, leaving a heart-shaped neckline. Tiny satin-covered buttons adorned the back of the gown from neck to waistline, and the skirt, fitted to the hips, was set on from an inverted point high on the bodice and fell full to a long, fan-like train. The wedding veil, of ivory tulle, was pleated full to a coronet of orange blossoms, covered the bride's hair and hung to the edge of her flowers, a bouquet of double white stock.

Dawn blue was contrasted with jonquil yellow in the gowns of the bride's attendants, and the same colors predominated in large armsful of spring flowers which they carried. Miss Jane Matthews of Waban, Mass., was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Hugh H. C. Weed Jr., of Colorado Springs, Colo., the former Miss Ruth Bixby Stevens of St. Louis; Miss Grace White, Miss Suzanne Bitting and Miss Betty Brown. The bride's twin sisters, Susan and Helen Bridge, were flower girls. Their frocks were taffeta, Miss Matthews' blue and the others all yellow, designed alike with short very full puffed sleeves tightened into a cuff trimmed with narrow taffeta ruching, and low, square necked bodices with ruching set on to the shirred front. Long, circular skirts were attached to pointed, inset girdles, and terminated in demi-trains. Each girl wore a natural colored leghorn hat in modified poke bonnet effect, with yellow and blue ribbons trimming the crown and cascading in streamers to her waist.

Mrs. Bridge was gowned in brown net over matching crepe, the skirt falling full from close fitting hip lines, and elbow length sleeves. The entire gown was trimmed with cellophane set on in a diagonal plaid. Her hat was brown leghorn trimmed with net, and her flowers green slipper orchids worn as a corsage.

Mrs. Hudson Eliot Bridge, the bride's grandmother, was in gray crepe, the crepe appliqued on marquisette at the sleeves and bodice top, and a gray turban covered with matching violets. Her flowers were fresh purple violets.

F. William Andres of Newton Center, Mass., the bridegroom's brother-in-law, was best man. Ushers were Edward L. Cutter Jr. of Milton, Mass.; Laurence V. Eaton of Brookline; Richard M. Claflin of St. Louis and Brookline; John D. Gannett of Hopedale, Mass., and the bride's three brothers, George Leighton Bridge Jr., Hudson Eliot Bridge III, and Francis Gardiner F. Bridge.

After the ceremony the wedding party, families and out-of-town guests, returned with a few close friends to the Bridge home, 5 Edgewood road, Ladue Village, for an informal reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Weeks have departed for the East, and will sail from New York to spend their honeymoon in Bermuda. They will live in Cambridge, Mass.

In addition to the bridegroom's parents and wedding attendants, out-of-town guests included Mrs. Andres, Mr. Weeks' sister, who, with her husband is a guest with Mr. and Mrs. Weeks Sr., of Mrs. Hudson E. Bridge; Mr. and Mrs. Gannett, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lynton Block; Mrs. William Emerson Barrett of Brookline, guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hayward Gatch, and Mrs. Theodore Weld Sterling of Buckingham Valley, Pa., Mr. Bridge's sister, who is visiting her mother. Miss Matthews and Mr. Cutter are with Miss Virginia Angert at the home of her mother, Mrs. Borden S. Veeder.

The bride, a debutante of two seasons ago, is a John Burroughs School graduate and spent the next year at Miss Child's Graduate School in Florence, Italy. She is a member of the Junior League. Mr. Weeks prepared at Milton (Mass.) Academy for Harvard, where he belonged to Hasty Pudding, Institute of 1770, D. K. E., and the Owl Club. WASHINGTON SCENE

By the POE SISTERS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.

THE quiet fun Mrs. Roosevelt has been having recently in the new arrangement of her hair giving it somewhat of the appearance of being bobbed is reminiscent of the time Mrs. Coolidge did the same thing. She deceived even President Coolidge for a time until he discovered that it was just a trick of the hair dresser and she still possessed her long brown hair.

Mrs. Roosevelt when she came to Washington for the first inauguration of her husband wore her hair coiled about the back of her head. While she still has a knot at the back it has been thinned and no longer is worn in coils.

Bobbed hair, however, was the secret aim of Mrs. Coolidge and she had only been out of the White House for a few months when she had her hair bobbed and pictures of her with her hair dressed in the new way were sent to her friends in Washington.

Bobbed hair is not lacking at the White House just now, even if Mrs. Roosevelt's has not been bobbed, for her secretary, Mrs. Malvina Thompson Sheider, and the President's personal secretary, Mrs. Marguerite Le Hand, have been wearing their hair bobbed for some time.

Mrs. Roosevelt recently decided against having her portrait painted to be placed in the collection of those of former President's wives.

That of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt in a simple white dress, black coat and a hat recalls the fact that when the portrait was painted she borrowed the hat from a friend because she thought it more becoming than her own. Her portrait and that of Mrs. Coolidge are the only portraits actually painted at the White House. In Mrs. Coolidge's portrait may be seen Rob Roy, her attractive white collie. Rob Roy is in this picture because he would not keep away from Mrs. Coolidge while it was being painted.

President Coolidge was so much interested in his wife's portrait by Howard Chandler Christy that he insisted on having a second portrait of Mrs. Coolidge painted by Christy. In this portrait Mrs. Coolidge is dressed in the white satin brocade she wore at her first diplomatic reception in the White House. It was taken to Northampton by the Coolidges when they left the White House.

Officers of the navy are interested in a campaign to save Decatur House on Lafayette square. Commodore Stephen Decatur built the house and was its first occupant. The house is part of the estate of the late Truxton Beale. The campaign is to save it from being torn down so that the site may be used, possibly, for commercial purposes.

Many Are Identical Coats We Had in Our Own Stock Earlier This Season at Double the Price!
Many Are Way Under Today's Wholesale Cost!

The business recession early in the Fall (the height of the fur season) slowed up buying. Hundreds of manufacturers were tied up with thousands of dollars worth of unsold furs.

The new season is beginning. Furriers must get capital NOW if they're to stay in business. Racks must be cleared. Coats must be sold at ANY price. For weeks Lane Bryant's buyers have been going from one furrier to another—asking if they could be of service in unloading these furs from their racks.

We're sorry these furriers have had such an unfortunate season. BUT THEIR LOSS IS YOUR GAIN!

We've never gone into the business of prophesying about fur prices. We CAN say as a definite fact that if furs should remain at these levels, there would be no fur industry. Prices must go up if manufacturers are to receive a decent return on their investment, if labor is to get its fair share.

Meanwhile, think of it! Beginning promptly at 8:30 Monday morning, you choose from ONE THOUSAND ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY COATS—filling half of a floor—more fur coats than we (and we dare say you) have ever seen together before.

IMAGINE! Complete Range of Sizes—11 to 17, 14 to 20, 38 to 52! Even Half Sizes—Complete Range of Styles—Princess lines, full swaggers, 7/8 swaggers, boxy swaggers, chunky chubbies, young jiggers!
Not every size in every style—but all sizes to choose from.

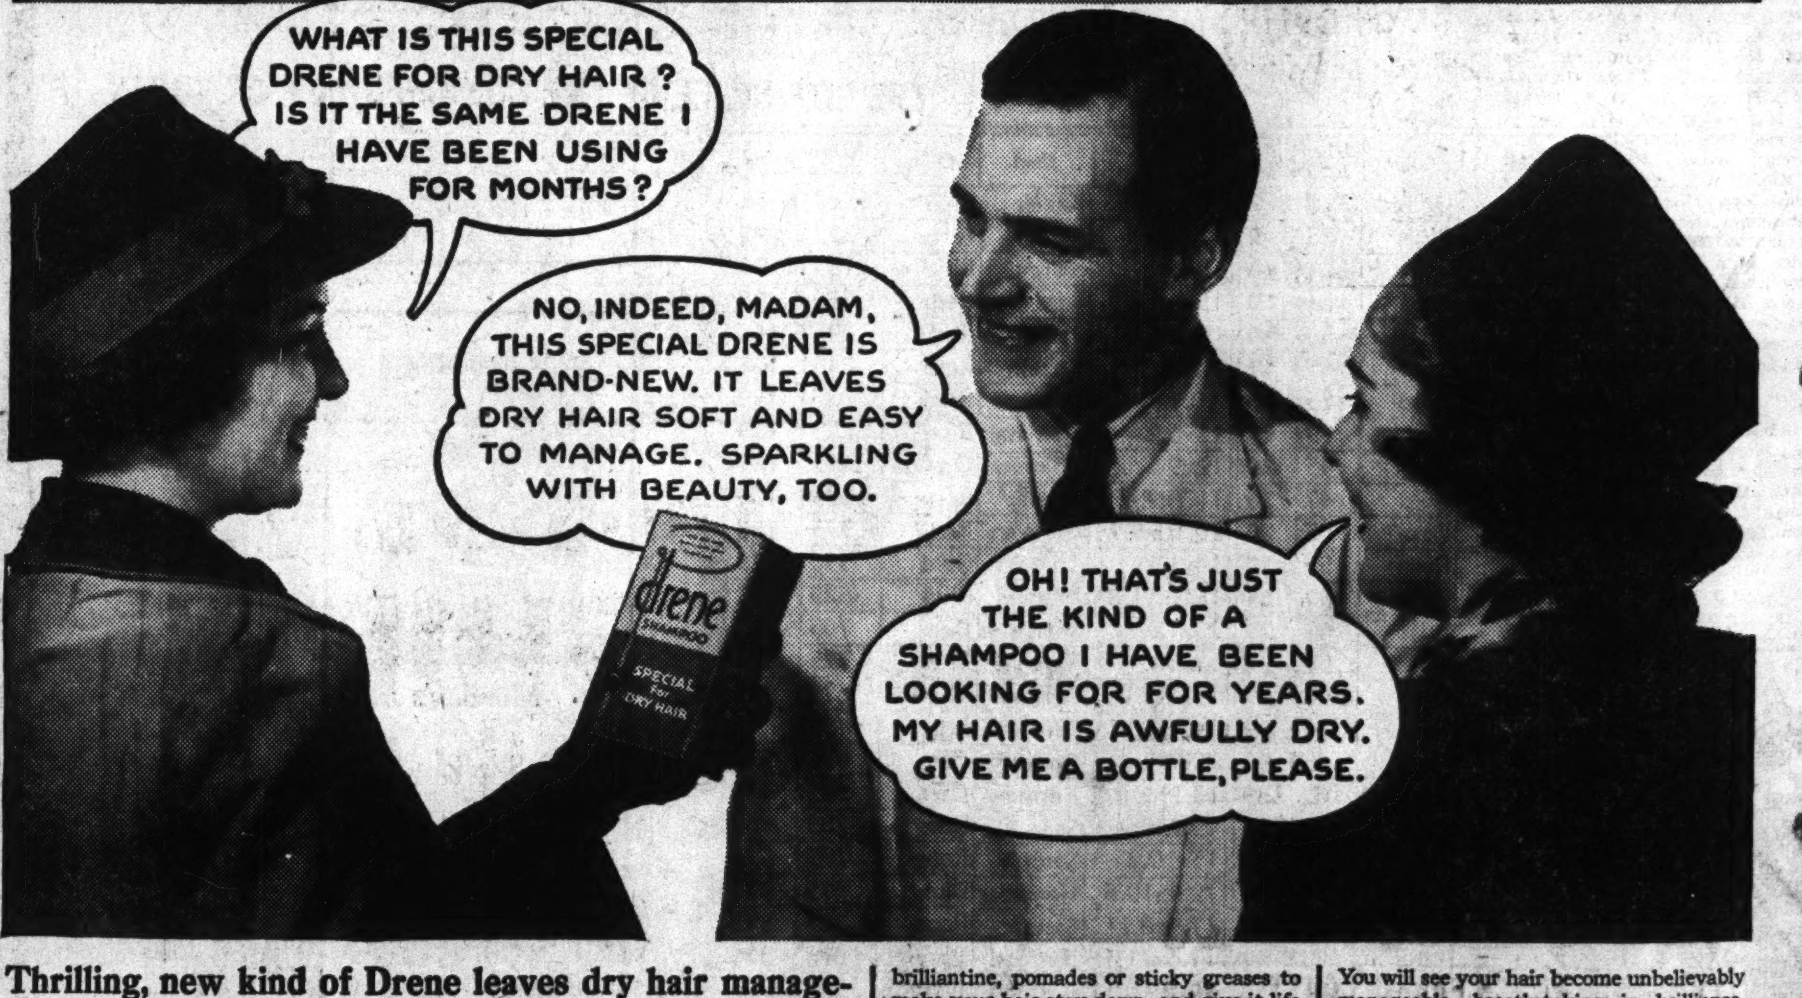
SPECIAL DRENE FOR DRY HAIR



WHAT IS THIS SPECIAL DRENE FOR DRY HAIR? IS IT THE SAME DRENE I HAVE BEEN USING FOR MONTHS?
drene SPECIAL DRY HAIR
OH! THAT'S JUST THE KIND OF A SHAMPOO I HAVE BEEN LOOKING FOR FOR YEARS. MY HAIR IS AWFULLY DRY. GIVE ME A BOTTLE, PLEASE.

Thrilling, new kind of Drene leaves dry hair manageable and ready to set beautifully immediately after washing—and gives it radiant beauty never before seen.

TODAY, a new Special Drene for Dry Hair has just been placed on the market which is thrilling women everywhere with its amazing gentle results. For it leaves even the driest hair as easy to manage as normal hair immediately after washing. And imparts a brilliance and glamorous beauty that no other shampoo in the world has ever even faintly approached.

Your very first shampoo with this Special Drene for Dry Hair will prove a revelation to you, no matter how unruly, dull and lifeless your hair has been left after using old-fashioned methods. To your utter amazement you will see your hair set perfectly—every strand in place—the minute you dress it. Beautiful highlights will dance and sparkle and your hair will abound with new life, new-found beauty. So try it at once and see how beautiful your hair really can be.

This amazing shampoo is totally different from any shampoo you have ever used. A shampoo as safe as water on hair, and so different that the process by which it is made has been patented. It is not a soap—not an oil. It isn't anything you've heard of before. It's revolutionary—and its effect on dry hair is just as magical as the process by which it is made. There is nothing milder, nothing more effective that you can possibly use to clean your hair. And of another thing you can be certain—there is no safer, more beautifying shampoo in all the world. And always remember that healthy hair demands a safe shampoo.

Amazingly Easy and Quick to Use

You simply wet your hair, pour on a few drops and instantly you get a glorious, billowy, gentle lather. Five times more lather than soap in hardest water. You rub it briskly into the hair, rinse thoroughly—and you're through.

"What?" you say, "no vinegar, lemon or special after-rinses to 'cut' the lather? No brilliantine, pomades or sticky greases to make your hair stay down, and give it life and sparkle?" No, they are not necessary.

First Shampoo a Revelation

And how overjoyed you will be to find that your hair is not a snarled, tangled mass. That it is not left "wild" and unruly. That's the astonishing result of the new Special Drene for Dry Hair. When you set your hair, not only will every strand be in place—but your waves will be more radiant, more beautiful than you have ever seen them before.

No matter how dull, lifeless or "difficult to handle" your hair has been left in the past after using ordinary shampoos, you will see the wonders of this new Special Drene for Dry Hair with the very first shampoo.

You will see your hair become unbelievably manageable, breath-taking in brilliance, full of life, beautiful beyond compare.

Most amazing, embarrassing dandruff flakes disappear with a single washing, leaving the scalp scrupulously clean. For all these reasons the best beauty shops recommend and will give you Drene shampoos.

Try for Thrill of Your Life

You can now buy the new Special Drene for Dry Hair in various sizes at all drug, department and ten cent stores. Only half a tablespoonful for a perfect shampoo. The most economical and beautifying shampoo you have ever used. Try this amazing shampoo at once. Buy the large size and save money. Made by Procter & Gamble. Trade-mark Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

SPECIAL NOTICE
Because different types of hair require different treatments to get the best results, there are now two kinds of Drene: 1. *Regular Drene for normal, or oily hair. 2. *Special Drene for dry hair. You can obtain either Regular or Special Drene from drug, department and ten cent stores.

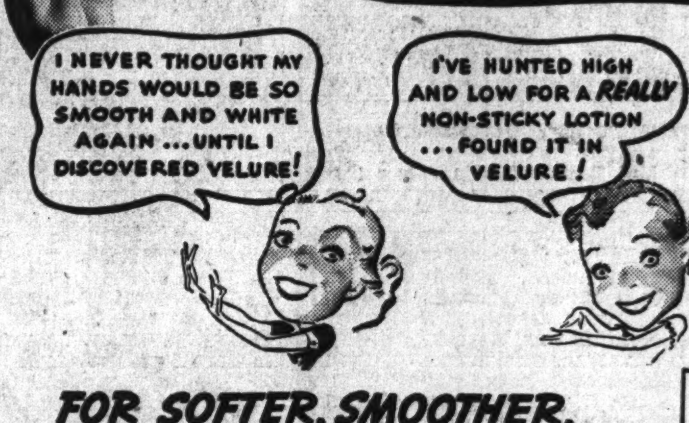
HANDS CHAP EASILY?
TRY THIS NEW VANISHING LOTION THAT GOES TO WORK FASTER



I NEVER THOUGHT MY HANDS WOULD BE SO SMOOTH AND WHITE AGAIN ... UNTIL I DISCOVERED VELURE!
I'VE HUNTED HIGH AND LOW FOR A REALLY NON-STICKY LOTION ... FOUND IT IN VELURE!
AND LAST BUT NOT LEAST, VELURE GOES 3 TIMES AS FAR! SO IT'S A BIG MONEY-SAVER, TOO!

FOR SOFTER, SMOOTHER, WHITER HANDS, Try it Overnight!

IF YOUR hands chap easily—if weather or housework have made them red or rough—take heart!

For now there is a new hand lotion that goes to work faster than most lotions do! A vanishing lotion—non-sticky and quick-drying—that astonishes women everywhere by it. power to foster smoother, softer hands.

Created by Bauer & Black, this development is known as Velure. And is different in conception—different in formula and consistency from any lotion you've probably known before.

Its outstanding feature is its remarkable self-penetrating action which takes place before your very eyes. It starts to sink right in, almost the instant you apply it. Penetrates microscopic skin crevices automatically. No hard rubbing to "work it in." No clammy "after-feeling"—no gummy residue.

But that's not all. For Velure also embodies properties that help to conserve natural skin-softening oils. Thus lightening the excessive burden on skin glands that makes hands prematurely coarse and "old."

Thus, when you use Velure, you are not only combating roughness, redness and chapping. You are also helping Nature to maintain soft, smooth hands in one of the most effective ways yet developed by scientific research.

Another advantage of this new vanishing lotion is that it goes 3 times as far as old-fashioned, thick-type lotions. This means that you use only ⅓ as much. So Velure is a grand money-saver, too.

HERE'S HOW VELURE GOES TO WORK FASTER

VANISHING VELURE SINKS IN AUTOMATICALLY

Thick lotions tend to form heavy film on surface. Unless forced in, they may fail to penetrate microscopic skin crevices.

ACTION EXPECTED TUESDAY ON TITLE TO SITE BY RIVER

PROPERTY NOW HELD BY WIRE COMPANY

Release, to Be in Escrow 5 Years, Would Require $100,000 in Taxable Improvements.

Issuance by the Board of Education of a quitclaim deed to the American Steel & Wire Co. on about 10 acres of riverfront land between Blow street and Nagel avenue, approved last week by the Board's Finance Committee, subject to a set of conditions, will come before the Board for ratification Tuesday.

This is another instance of a long line of clouded titles and disputed ownerships resulting from accretions of land along the river, the terms of old deeds and the methods of dividing realty dating from French days. Much of the land is potentially valuable for industrial use.

In a similar set of circumstances, on property north of Mott street, a few blocks away, suit to quiet title is pending in Circuit Court. It was brought against the Board last May by Edward F. Goltra, former Democratic national committeeman, after the Board refused to give him a quitclaim deed to about one and one-third acres.

It has been anticipated by the Board that additional cases of clouded titles would arise in the Carondelet district, where there has been extensive accretion in the last century. A $5000 appropriation to examine titles as occasion arose was made last July; $1039 has been spent in the present cases.

Intricate Question Involved.

The essence of the trouble with titles has been in the involved legal question of "limited fields"—whether deeds specified the eastern boundaries as the low-water mark of the river, in which case accretions would be included with the property; or specified certain fixed marks, a circumstance that might, under the law, make the accretions School Board or city property.

There are numerous other intricate legal points involved. One is whether an old towpath along the bank coincided with Water street, which is a block east of Broadway. There are indications that it diverged at places.

The situation attracted the city's attention about four years ago, when the Assessor found that considerable accredited land never had been placed on the tax rolls. Title companies refused to issue title certificates because of the cloud. Associate City Counselor Martin Barrow said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that there were many places along about 12 miles of river front, particularly in Carondelet, where titles were clouded.

The Socony-Vacuum Oil Co., planning to erect a plant in Carondelet, approached the City and the School Board about the land title a year ago. The School Board found it had no interest and the city released whatever interest it may have had, provided substantial improvements were installed to yield a tax return. Several similar requests to the city are pending.

Quit-Claim Deed Sought.

Then the American Steel & Wire Co. seeking to sell its vacant property, asked the School Board for a release. It purchased 13.2 acres from the Edgar Zinc Co. in 1931 for $82,548, or about $6250 an acre. The cloud lay on the eastern portion, about 10 acres, but Emmet T. Carter, the Board's attorney, concluded the Board had no claim to the northern half of the latter. However, the proposed quit-claim deed will apply to both halves.

The deed will be placed in escrow for five years, as it will be issued only subject to the provision that a purchaser of the property erect improvements costing at least $100,000, which would produce taxes. The company also will pay taxes of the last five years on the 10 acres. If net proceeds from sale of the 10 acres exceeds approximately $125,000, the Board will be given 25 per cent of this excess, or profit. The $125,000 base was made up of the following items: Cost of the ground to American Steel, interest on this investment at the local average return for the period, taxes, and salary of a watchman. The 25 per cent factor represented half of any profit on the disputed half of the tract.

NATIONAL BOY SCOUT WEEK OPENS TODAY

Special Services on 28th Anniversary of Organization in United States.

Alumni reunions, father-and-son dinners, and courts of honor will be held by troops throughout the St. Louis area in observance of national Boy Scout week, which opens today and continues through Saturday.

Special Boy Scout services, commemorating the twenty-eighth anniversary of the scouting movement in the United States, were held this morning in 70 churches which sponsor troops. In addition Boy Scout speakers were heard at many churches.

A special feature of the observance is the requirement that each scout unit registered with the St. Louis Boy Scout Council must perform a good turn during the week for its sponsor.

Sixty window displays have been arranged by troops in stores throughout the city. The displays exhibit a number of varied scout activities and interests, ranging from archery to zoology.

Annual inspection of sea scout ships by Commodore H. A. Brereton and district commodores of the council will be held this week and continue through Feb. 15. Ratings of units will be based on the inspection and an examination of each ship's log for 1937.

Eighteen Boy Scouts of Troop 17, First United Presbyterian Church, attended a two-day camp last week at Peck's Farm, near Allenton, Mo. There were hikes and fossil hunts, under the direction of Scoutmaster J. C. Trask.

A Cappella Society Seeks Charter.

The St. Louis a Cappella Society applied in Circuit Court yesterday for a proforma decree of incorporation so as to promote choral singing and extend interest in the best forms of sacred music. J. J. Wasser is president of the society; Adelaide G. Strubbe is secretary, and Lawrence J. Rupprecht treasurer.

MORE ORGANIZATIONS BACK VENEREAL DISEASE BILL

Letters advocating the passage of proposed Ordinance 137, for the reorganization of the city's venereal disease service, have been received by Dr. Harriet S. Cory, executive secretary of the Missouri Social Hygiene Association, from several organizations that have not previously indorsed the measure.

Communications favoring the bill, Dr. Cory said, came from Mrs. Henry Bry, president of the St. Louis section of the National Council of Jewish Women; the Life Underwriters' Association of St. Louis; the Women's Missionary Federation of St. Louis; Neighborhood Association and Wesley House.

The bill has been indorsed by 31 other organizations, including school, church, business, medical and welfare groups.

When the office of the County Clerk was opened at Belleville yesterday, the first day for filing candidacies for the St. Clair County primary election of April 12, four men who had waited outside for two days rushed in and filed the declarations of 15 candidates desiring top places on the ballot.

The quartet occupied camp chairs in a Courthouse corridor, read magazines and had their meals brought in during the two-day wait. In the group was Daniel E. Costello of East St. Louis, candidate for the Board of Assessors, who filed his own declaration and those of two candidates for the Board of Review. The other men in the waiting line were not candidates.

Seventeen candidates, all Democrats, filed yesterday. County Clerk D. A. Prindable, seeking the nomination for Sheriff, had the advantage in early filing without the discomfort of waiting outside. An opponent, William Knaus of East St. Louis, was in the early list.

Sheriff Henry L. Siekmann of O'Fallon, who cannot succeed himself, is seeking the nomination for Country Treasurer, and the Treasurer, Richard S. Wangelin, who likewise is prevented by statute from seeking re-election to that office, is running for County Clerk.

Others filing were: County Judge Joseph E. Fleming of Centerville Township, for re-election; Probate Judge Paul H. Reis of Belleville for re-election; Probate Clerk L. O. Reinhardt of East St. Louis for re-election; for Superintendent of Schools, Assistant Superintendent Clarence D. Blair of Belleville, and Leroy R. Schmidt of Lebanon; Board of Review (six-year term), George A. Halpin, incumbent, L. R. McCarthy and Slava Zitta, all of East St. Louis; Board of Review (to fill a vacancy, four-year term), Herb Schwind of Belleville and Paul R. Taylor of Canteen Township; Board of Assessors, James Tierney of East St. Louis, incumbent, and George B. Kardinsky Jr. of Belleville.

The nominating subcommittee of the St. Clair County Republican Central Committee met Friday and added three candidates to the primary slate started earlier in the week. They were Joseph N. Buechler of Belleville for County Treasurer; William H. Horner of Belleville for State Senator, and State Central Committeeman Robert Thomas of East St. Louis for re-election. The Republicans indorsed H. C. Lindauer, former State's Attorney at Belleville, as a candidate for Congressman from the Twenty-second District. One name remains to be added to the county slate, which will be submitted to the Central Committee this week for ratification.

PLANS FOR PUBLIC LECTURES ON SOCIAL HYGIENE PROBLEMS

Discussion to Be Held Tomorrow by Speakers' Bureau of Missouri Association.

Plans for a program of public education on social hygiene problems will be discussed at a meeting of the speakers' bureau of the Missouri Social Hygiene Association tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at the nurses' home of St. Luke's Hospital, 721 Belt avenue.

Since the bureau was established a year ago, 110 lectures on health and allied subjects have been given before various meetings, Dr. Harriet S. Cory, executive secretary, reported.

Dr. Joseph Kendis will speak on the venereal disease campaign Tuesday noon before the Retail Druggist Association at Hotel Kings-Way. On Wednesday evening, Dr. J. H. Meinberg Jr. will address Hi-Y members at 2232 South Grand boulevard, and Dr. Paul Max will speak before the home hygiene class at Roosevelt High School. Miss Lucille Brown of the Washington University School of Nursing will speak on social hygiene Thursday evening at the Carondelet Y. M. C. A.

White House Police Head's Funeral
By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Funeral services for Capt. Clarence L. Dalrymple, head of the White House police, will be held Monday afternoon. White House and other officials will attend. Capt. Dalrymple died unexpectedly last night at the age of 68. A member of the White House police force for 40 years, he had been head of the organization since 1898. President Roosevelt praised him as "faithful and courteous," and said he counted himself among Dalrymple's friends. His wife and three children survive.

$46,000 IN UNPAID COURT COSTS LISTED

County W P A Survey Has Covered Six Years Between 1928 and 1933 to Date.

Unpaid court costs still due in the Circuit Court of St. Louis County for the six-year period, 1928 to 1933, inclusive, amount to $146,715, it is shown in a partial report issued yesterday by County Comptroller Edwin O. Harper in connection with a survey to determine the amount of delinquent costs which have accumulated in the last 10 years.

The survey, which is being made by six W P A clerks under the direction of Comptroller Harper, has been under way for six months. When completed, the County will make attempts to collect the amouns still owing.

The partial report shows that $788,949 was assessed in court costs during the six-year period, and $642,233 collected. Of the amount delinquent, $65,350 is due the County and $81,365 is due in fees to witnesses, Sheriff's office and court reporters.

The survey began with the year 1928 because the collection of costs that became due before that time would be barred by the staute of limitations. The clerks are listing the amounts due by litigants against whom costs were assessed, and are preparing also a list of attorneys who represented the litigants, to facilitate the collection.

Harper estimated the survey, when completed, would show that about $125,000 was due the County. It is expected it will be finished within four months.

THIS NEW YORK

By LUCIUS BEEBE

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.

THE second battle of Shiloh, according to all reports, is being fought on strictly social lines in the vicinity of Charleston, S. C., where the Yankee invasion of the sacred South has assumed all the aspects of an occupation, and at any time military governors may be named to keep the peace in the best Southland ballrooms. Because of the rice failures and the dismaying appearance of the boll weevil in the Sea Island long-staple cotton, most of the low-country aristocrats in that part of the world have hit on the expedient of renting their homes as winter places to Northerners, with the rice fields for shooting, so that now the damnyanks are in possession of most of the 50,000-acre plantations and the old noblesse has barricaded itself in the narrow section south of Charleston's Broad Street. The situation is so gelid the magnolias freeze in the bud and juleps are frosted without the aid of ice, because the shopworn aristocracy regards the Astors as frontier fur traders and expects them to wear fringed buckskins, and the Northerners fear a rebel uprising any midnight now.

● GOV. DUNCAN CLINCH HEYWARD refers to the du Pont who owns his old rice plantation as "the gentleman who bought my place," and Charlestonians driving by the place of Mrs. Courtlandt Nicoll are scandalized by the quantity of wash hanging on her line. The major engagements of the season, according to spies, resulted from a flank movement by Mrs. Huntington (A. & P.) Hartford, who made a bet with a skeptical friend that she could have all the best Charlestonians on her premises for a party, even though she knew none of them and none of them knew her.

She sent out engraved invitations to all the St. Cecilia boys and girls, invitations of an imperial order which haven't been seen in Charleston in decades, and let the word get around that there was to be unlimited sparkling wine, a circumstance not paralleled since before Antietam. Charleston turned out en masse in a state of whimpering excitement, drank everything in sight, put its collective feet through the furniture and subsided in bemused and happy lassitude under the shrubbery. The town's civic hangover was abated only in time for the vast bad feeling which accompanied the debate as to whether the St. Cecilia ball committee should serve lobster for supper or the turkey hash of tradition.

Hard-Times Note: At 7:45 one morning last week, as this department was coming to work (managing editor, nota bene), there were signs of tumult and civic commotion outside the Paramount Theater, in Times Square. Police and doormen were having trouble with what evidently was an angry crowd, members of which were knocking each other down, literally, in the cold gray dawn to pay good money to see the first morning showing of "Every Day's a Holiday." The queue, four deep, stretched from Broadway down the side street to Eighth Avenue, and was estimated by the doorman to be at that time three times the capacity of the theater.

● IT IS ALWAYS A SATISFACTION to news writers, forever harassed and heckled by smug and leisured readers for errors of grammar, breaches of taste and other lapses and shortcomings, to discover blemishes in advertising copy which is evolved, according to the legend of their own creation, by expensive and unimpeachable authorities on every form of perfection. Within a short period three handsome examples of what not to do in print have presented themselves to this department's greedy gaze, and we are assured there are scores of others daily.

One was a national advertisement of a popular brand of cigarette touting the Big Apple as the current vogue among Manhattan fashionables. The Big Apple vanished from the local scene, after a fortnight's dubious ascendency, just 10 weeks ago. It appeared as a promotion scheme for a shrewd dancing master, and never was permitted, except as a gag act, at any first-rate restaurant or night club. The second was an insertion for a flying machine company, showing a delayed and supposedly discontented (but still alive and in one piece) traveler on a train, a gross violation of all advertising ethics, since not even a patent medicine or a truss manufacturer directly and unequivocally denounces the product of a rival. The third was an insertion in Manhattan's most austere daily, plugging somebody's English muffins as "a treat to long remember." It is this sort of thing among the $50,000-a-year boys in the platinum shacks of the advertising slave-drivers that makes life endurable for the poor newspaper men.

The Woman Who Knows Relation of Contrast to Fashion Can Always Be Effectively Dressed; It Dramatizes Coloring

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.

THERE'S drama in contrast. And the woman who understands the relation of contrast to fashion can always be effectively dressed. This woman stands out in any gathering, not because she wears extreme clothes, but because she understands how to attract the eye when and where she wants to, how to draw attention to her good points, how to distract it from her bad.

This contrast can be achieved by the woman in relation to her setting—as when she wears a black evening gown in midsummer, when everyone else is in pastels. She can use it to emphasize her own coloring—as when as a brunette she wears an all-white costume. And she can employ contrast effectively, if she is careful, in the costume itself—a light top on a dark skirt, dark trimming on a light dress, pastel accessories with a black dress, and the reverse.

Every woman knows, of course, how to attract attention in a large gathering, and how to dramatize her own coloring. Few women, however, understand the importance of carefully selected accent in the costume itself. Most of us follow fashion slavishly when she says: "This season we will wear light jackets with dark skirts, or light belts on dark dresses, or pique piping at the neck."

Few women realize that the use of a light accent calls attention to the part of the body where this contrast appears. Women with large legs should certainly wear dark skirts. Women with a large bust measurements would do well to wear dark tops to their suits and dresses. Pique piping at the wrist calls attention to beautiful hands. A light belt on a dark frock makes the waist look larger. Ugly necks are not made beautiful by a contrasting flower at the decolletage. But a light flower in dark hair will draw attention away from such a neck to the face and hair. These and other problems concern the imperfect figure.

If you possess average attraction—good eyes, nice legs and fine hips, you can still improve your appearance. Try wearing a pastel hat with a black costume to your next cocktail party. Notice how the eyes of your audience rest in the vicinity of your face and head. Now another time try adding pastel gloves to the same costume. Notice, no matter what the size of the room or the number of people, how the eyes of your audience will leave your face occasionally to follow the action of your hands.

Play this scene in your own way. Go downtown one afternoon in an all-dark costume. The next day wear white gloves as contrast to the same outfit. See how much better you feel. People watch you now as you walk. The day after add a gardenia to your coat. Now, see how men and women look and turn, even, as you pass by. Another day wear a hat with a touch of white to repeat the note of the gloves and flower, and then see how fatal you feel. Every man with blood in his veins will give you an appraising glance. Every woman who is at all alert will study you and your costume carefully. See how easy it is, then, to attract attention. You don't have to depend on extremes—bold prints or bright plaids. You can be the center of any scene, if you know how to dress.

EVEN IN MODERATELY PRICED DRESSES, DARK TRIM ON A LIGHT FROCK GIVES A LIVELY, YET WELL-BRED LOOK. THIS GARMENT IS MADE OF BEIGE OR POROSPUN, AN AMERICAN-MADE ACETATE YARN WITH A HOMESPUN LOOK. THE DOTS ARE EMBROIDERED IN BROWN TO MATCH THE BELT.

MUSIC and Music MAKERS

By Thomas B. Sherman

IF Benny Goodman doesn't watch himself he may become "significant" at any moment now. It wasn't his fault, of course, that a highbrow pamphlet such as the Nation should take notice of him, nor could he have done anything about that piece in Modern Music. But the Carnegie Hall concert must have been committed with deliberation. He should have known that a certain number of music critics always go to Carnegie Hall from force of habit. If he didn't he might have asked Paul Whiteman. That gentleman suffered from a dose of highbrow adulation for years and all because he too gave a concert at Carnegie Hall.

In Whiteman's heyday jazz was in the process of becoming an "influence" on American music. What that influence has since amounted to is not quite clear. But at the time there was a widely held belief that the muted trumpets, the moaning saxophones and the hysterical clarinets would somehow give a new flavor to so-called serious music. And something of the sort did happen. There was George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue." There was the Concerto in F by the same composer. But it stopped there. Now Jazz has issued into Swing. And Benny Goodman, much to his astonishment, no doubt, is its Prophet.

THE ORDINARY concertgoer, with nothing more complicated in his ear than Richard Strauss' "Ein Heldenleben" and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, will probably have difficulty in finding the difference between Jazz and Swing. If he does he should keep his bewilderment to himself. Otherwise he will be thought of as someone whose sense of hearing has not survived the Hoover depression. For there is a very important distinction. If you don't believe me ask Aaron Copland, who wrote that article, already referred to, in Modern Music.

Swing, it seems, is the apotheosis of improvisation. The boys take a simple tune, play it straight and then toss it back and forth among themselves. The saxophone, the trumpet, the clarinet, the trombone, all have their way with it while those who are not so engaged continue to hammer out the basic four-four or two-four rhythm. In the course of time a certain way of handling a piece will become set and the boys will play it in public or make a record of it. But sometimes—when a jam session is in progress—the improvisation takes place on the spot to the unbridled delight of every college boy and debutante in hearing distance.

THE FACILITY with which Goodman or Duke Ellington or one of their talented colleagues can ring the changes on a melody amounts to unmistakable virtuosity. Slides, leaps, trills, chromatic runs, impudent out-of-tune sideswipes at a passing note and all against a background of the most audacious harmonies, are common occurrences in any first-class swing performance. As a feat of articulation it is the real and ultimate Mallarkey. And it says precisely nothing. Or rather it says the same thing over and over again.

The devotees of this Muse-With-the-Hectic-Flush, known in their own circles as alligators, probably wish for a double set of ears. Any one else may conceivably wish he was born deaf.

Moreover, one begins to recall that Jazz also had its inexorable rhythms and its seeming improvisation. The color may be brighter in Swing and the harmonies bolder, which is a way of saying that Swing has been carried farther in the same direction. But both are concerned with a method of expression and both have the same effect on the nerve ends.

WHAT BENNY GOODMAN ought to remember before he gives another concert in Carnegie Hall is that Swing—like Jazz—is not meant to be heard but to be felt. Its proper environment, therefore, is not a hall where one sits with a program but the atmosphere of cocktails and a crowded floor.

When a person just sits and listens he may be tempted to use his mind. If he does that he may go mad for he may recognize, beneath that welter of neighing brasses and yelping woodwinds, some simple tune that his mother taught him. And the effect may be much the same as hearing the "Ode to a Grecian Urn" recited in pig Latin.

He will be better off if he just feels. For then he can dance.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By ALICE HUGHES.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.

THE New York scenery has been vastly enriched by the presence of Gary Cooper and his missus. The big Montana cow-hand is the only man movie prince I have ever seen who is much handsomer off screen than on. I saw the couple lunching, the other day, with the young Jack Howards. Jack is the son of Publisher Roy W., and his wife is a sister of Mrs. Cooper. She was Veronica Balfe of Park avenue before her nuptials, and was also known as Sandra Shaw when she took a quick bow in films. . . .

GARY COOPER

—o—o—

EVERY YEAR OR TWO a woman explodes in our town who causes the citizens to climb right up on their chairs and holler. Naturally, this whooper-upper is seldom a woman with a better recipe for goulash, or even a knitting champion. Such laudable souls seldom project far enough into the public eye. One of the favorite places for such feminine eruptions is the creaky old stage of the Metropolitan Opera House on Broadway.

And this season has been such another whoop and hurrah at the dear old Met—probably the most exciting and tumultuous since the incomparable Flagstad was first unveiled and launched here in the music dramas of Herr Wagner. The woman who caused all the commotion was a daughter of Hungary named Rose Pauly, whose performance in Richard Strauss' "Elektra" nearly blew the old brick walls right out on the sidewalk. This debut was an event, plus, and I wouldn't have missed it for a farm in Bucks County, Pa., next to Dorothy Parker's.

● TO OTHER THINGS: My business keeps me watching the cosmetic situation closely, since, in addition to this job, I also run a Sunday beauty page and have a radio program. The latest note from the beauty counter is the appearance of a cold cream concentrate at no less than $10 the jar! My! Its maker says it smooths wrinkles and has vitamins A and D, whichever they are. Probably it is also good spread on melba toast and for frying eggs.

A FEW NIGHTS AGO the 10-piano Symphony of Dayton, O., performed on 10 Steinways at Carnegie Hall, to heavy applause. Emma McClure conducts this unusual and talented group, which performed everything from a Wagner overture to six sweet waltzes by the late Herr Brahms. . . .

—o—o—

Have I mentioned the fact that good old bright yellow gold is coming in again as eye-glass rims? Well, they say it is partly because the public craves a shift from white gold, and because the jewelry trend this year is all toward gold that looks like gold and not like platinum or tin. I don't say everyone should have the old specs re-done, but I do tell you the way the trend is headed!

—o—o—

● ANOTHER HOME TOWN GIRL has come out with a worthy book—"Designing Women," by Margaretta Byers. It tells how to be well dressed no matter what Old Lady Fashion dictates—a mighty cute trick if you do it. . . .

I DROPPED INTO THE WALDORF to say howdy-do to Mary Joyce, the hardy Alaskan sportswoman who made the 1000 miles from Juneau to Fairbanks by dog-sled. She was amazed at our warm winter—as who isn't? I tried to peddle her my Minneapolis ski-suit, which hasn't yet been worn, but darn it, Mary already had some, and was off in a flash to New England to slide down a New Hampshire Alp! . . . .

STARTLING NEWS from Miami! My venerable New England mother, down there soaking up climate, reports by mail that she has bobbed her gray hair. Wonderful what Southern sunshine does to elderly people!

—o—o—

One of our leading hat-makers has just returned from Paris with the alarming news that hat-pins have reappeared! Remember hat-pins? She brought some in pairs, set with semi-precious stone—one for the hat, one for the suit lapel to match. Oh dear me suzz! Now the men will have to learn to duck the hat-stabber, but if their grand-daddies did, I guess they can too, the spoiled wretches!

● IT'S LONG OVER, but New York is still chattering about various events during the visit of wonder-child Sonja Henie and her skating circus. Over a hundred thousand people eyed the blonde pixy on runners during her Garden stay, and noted the added showmanship she has picked up on the movie lots. She no longer skates for titles, but for cuteness and money. And did you hear about how she stood up our peppy little Mayor, Hizzoner LaGuardia? Fiorello actually called on HER, at the Waldorf—and no Henie! Later, she said that she always spent the day in bed before skating, and made a nice apology to the Head Man. He accepted it gracefully, and all was sweet and nice. . .

SONJA HENIE

NOW AND THEN a sad event happens here, involving an outstanding woman of our town, and I should be remiss if I did not pay a tribute to the memory of Rosamond Pinchot, who died so tragically a few days ago, at the height of her powers. This lovely daughter of Amos Pinchot was only 33 when she said "enough" to life. She was one of the most beautiful and exciting girls in this city of pretty women. She had true glamor—not the phony article which comes from cosmetic pots and press agents. Unlike many tall girls—she was five feet, ten—her carriage was superb and really regal. She was naturally queenly—her free stride and the gallant tilt of her head set her apart. Truly, she was a woman among women.

But Rosamond loved two things with a too-great love, perhaps—her husband and the theater. In these two loves she was frustrated, though she never in her short life suffered from delusions of grandeur. Her married life ended disastrously, and the stage and screen found it difficult to make a place for her. Tired, dispirited at last, Rosamond said goodby and our giddy world is much the poorer for her passing.

THE WORLD AS WOMEN SEE IT

STENOGRAPHERS ARE ALL KEYED UP

They, as Well as Other Office Workers, Tell of Their Employers' Irritating Habits

By Virginia Irwin

ILLUSTRATION BY GEORGE CONREY.

HEY, you who sign the pay checks! It's your turn to face the facts and listen to the angry accusations of a bunch of St. Louis "office wives." Like the author of the accompanying letter, the girls demand the right to tell their side of the story. They've let down their back hair and donated their views on "What's Wrong With The Boss." In typed manuscripts Bess the Bookkeeper, Ada of the Adding Machine, Tess of the Typewriter, and even Thelma of the Telephone, have taken you boys apart, fault by fault, and they're inviting you, mister, to do something about such things as:

That soggy cigar you chew on while dictating.

Your assumption that a steno doesn't mind fibbing for the boss.

Your idea that subordinates don't come under the head of human beings.

Your idea that stenographers are sperm whales—able to work in dark, smoke-filled, air-less offices.

And that, boys, is just the beginning. So even if you can plead "not guilty" on all the above scores, don't get smug. You may not be addicted to gnawing on a soggy stogie, but how's your disposition? When your better half goes haywire with the budget, do you grouch around the office and make life miserable for the hired heroine who doesn't have a wife's privilege of sassing you back?

"The first week out of every month, I don't even try to please my boss because it's no use," says one secretary. "When the boss and his wife are staging that first of the month bill battle, he's about as pleasant as a peeved porcupine."

"And why can't bosses think of their secretaries as human beings and not mechanical robots who, with a mere twist of a key or the insertion of a nickel, will grind out letters?" asks another Tess of the Typewriter who, collaborating with fellow-secretaries, offers two pages of faults to be found with the bosses.

"I'd like to know how to cure a boss of ending sentences with prepositions," says one girl who claims her employer has her biting her resplendent fingernails. "It is most jarring on the nerves of a grammar-conscious individual to be constantly bombarded with "Where is that letter at?"

—o-o—

MOST of the girls who answered the story on traits which annoy the boss, admit that employers are not intentionally mean. You boys are just thoughtless. You think that pay check with which you reward your hired hands makes up for everything and that as long as a girl gets a fair salary, she should consider herself among the favored few and perform such extra little duties as sewing buttons on your vest as interest on the debt she owes you.

Like sewing on buttons, the girls rule out running personal errands for you in their consensus on "How the Boss Should Behave."

"I wish the boss would offer to dust off his own desk occasionally—even though he crosses his fingers at the same time, hoping I won't let him do it," says one girl.

Of course you've probably never stopped to think that it might please your secretary if you relieved her occasionally of desk-dusting, but then you have never stopped to think either that days might go more smoothly if you'd arrive at the office at some decent morning hour, instead of around noon and then attempt to crowd a full day's work into, say, four hours. Arriving around noon, you've probably just had breakfast, and it doesn't occur to you that the jewel who runs your office might be starving for her salad and sandwich at just the time you start dictation.

And fortified with a morning's sleep added to the night's repose, you're probably full of pep and decide to clean up personal as well as business correspondence.

"Nothing annoys me like having the boss dictate those personal epistles to Aunt Jennie and Uncle Henry on a busy day," says one weary office wife whose employer thinks nothing of keeping her overtime in the evening and never quite gets around to telling her when she can take her vacation until it is too late to lay plans.

"In addition," she says, "he turns sweet (?) 5-year-old sons and daughters of valued customers over to me to be amused. And I don't find this amusing."

"And can't you say something about the office Romeo?" pleads another. "After all, we working Juliets like to choose our own balconies. Nothing makes me boil like the guy who's overly business-like in the office when others are around and then tries to get chummy when he catches one of the girls alone."

So, it looks like what's advice to the goose needs passing on to the gander, too. Secretaries are always being warned by authorities on office etiquette against expecting romance in an office, on the assumption that it's feminine nature to want attention from the sterner sex. Now, say the girls, it's only fair to admit that there are also Ridiculous Roberts who think romance and work will mix and fancy themselves Office Romeos.

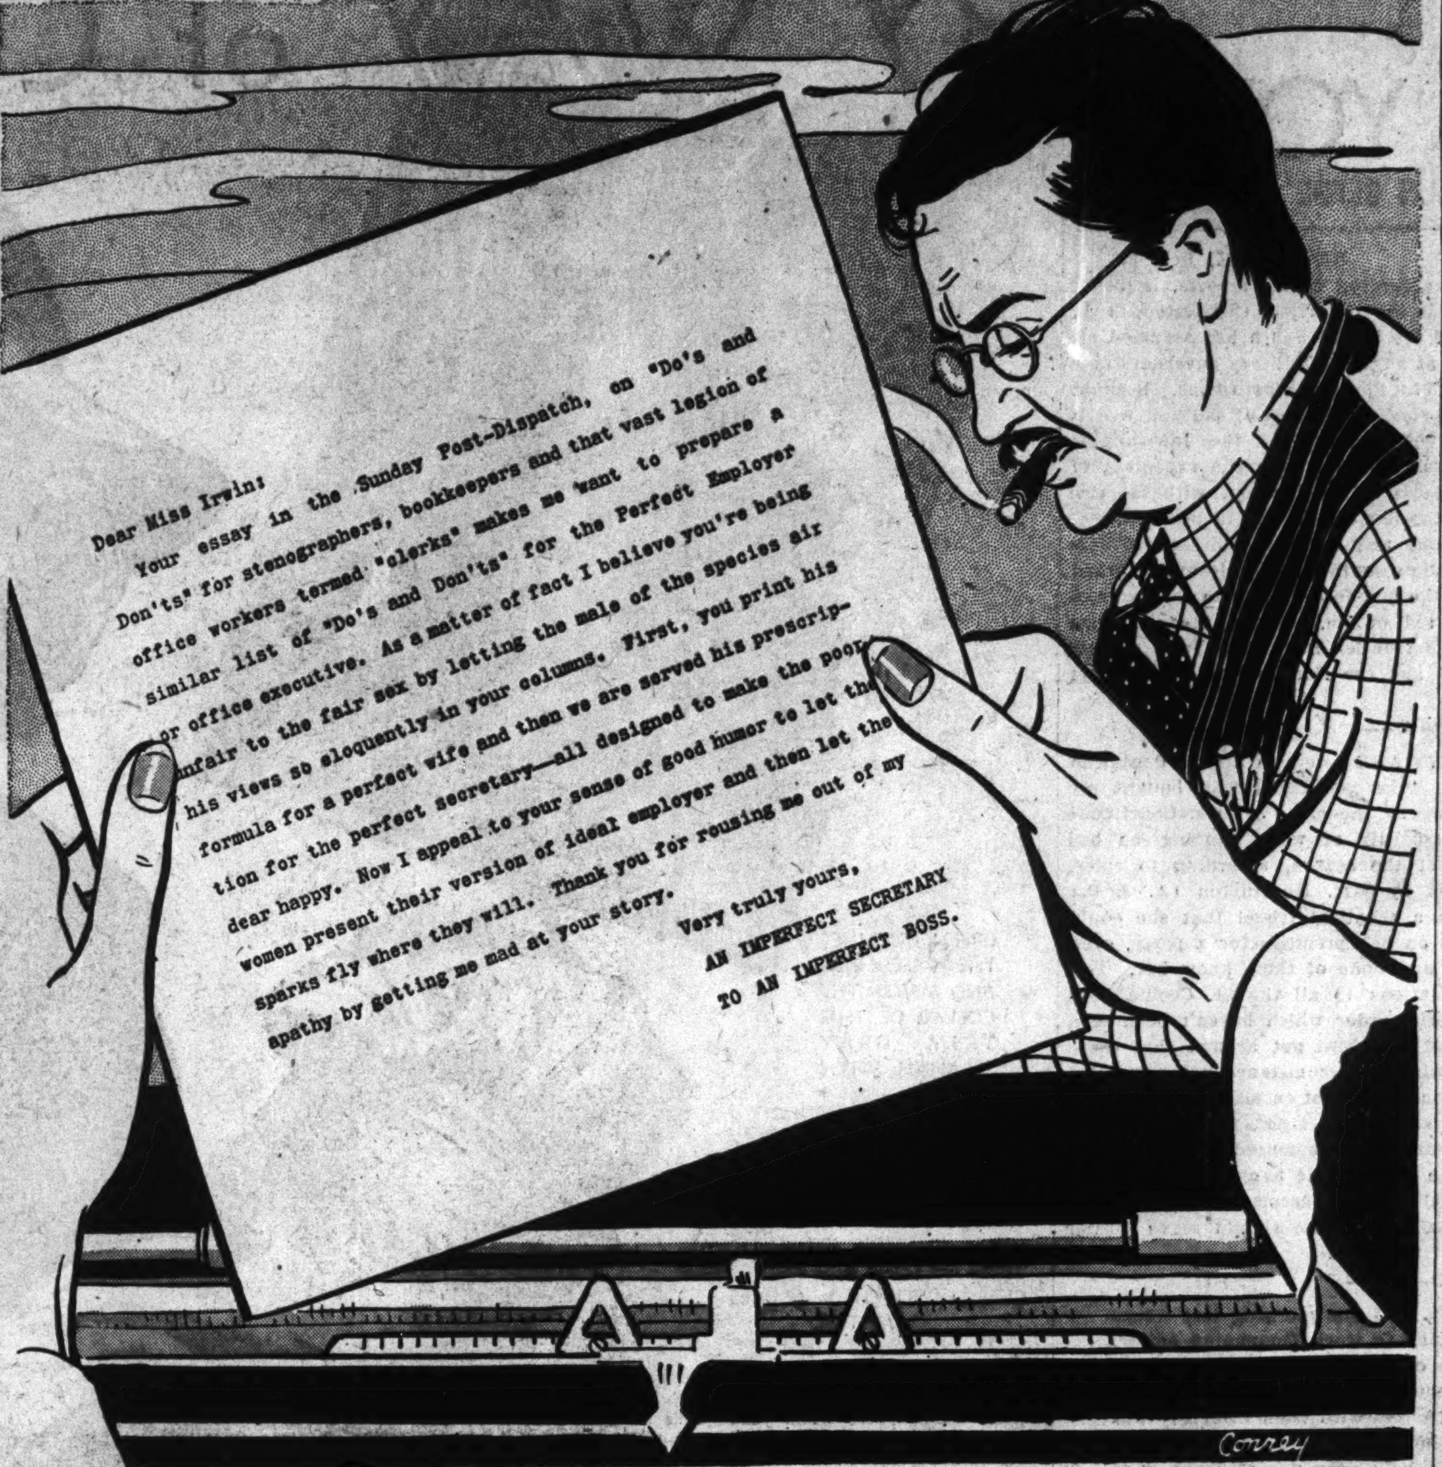
And just as the girls are always being warned about being neat and clean, it seems there are bosses who also need a little berating on the same score.

"My boss could stand soap and water and even if he has to stay home in a barrel for a couple of days, I do wish he'd send his suit to the cleaners," writes a Working Wilma.

"Maybe it's a small matter," says another, "but why can't a boss try to wear shirt, tie, and socks that harmonize—a combination of green pin checks, red dots, and blue stripes is disturbing to the most efficient of us."

So there you are, boys. You may be "The Big Boss" to yourself but to your secretary you're just "Mere Man," with an out-size opinion of yourself, and when you're tempted to explode about some mistake your secretary makes, you might ask yourself if you're paying her enough to not only do her work but also put up with your faults. After all, say the girls, they don't mind doing the work they're hired to do, but they never bargained for such things as telling unwelcome salesmen you're in Ethiopia when you happen to be sitting in your private office. And there's nothing in the contract that says in addition to taking dictation, they must put up with that aroma of perfumed hair oil mixed with stale cigar smoke.

Of course you hold the whip hand. It's you, who deal out the pay checks, but at least the girls have had their say and their only hope is that if one of the afore-mentioned faults fits YOU, you'll fix it.



Dear Miss Irwin:

Your essay in the Sunday Post-Dispatch, on "Do's and Don'ts" for stenographers, bookkeepers and that vast legion of office workers termed "clerks" makes me want to prepare a similar list of "Do's and Don'ts" for the Perfect Employer or office executive. As a matter of fact I believe you're being unfair to the fair sex by letting the male of the species air his views so eloquently in your columns. First, you print his formula for a perfect wife and then we are served his prescription for the perfect secretary—all designed to make the poor dear happy. Now I appeal to your sense of good humor to let the women present their version of ideal employer and then let the sparks fly where they will. Thank you for rousing me out of my apathy by getting me mad at your story.

Very truly yours,
AN IMPERFECT SECRETARY TO AN IMPERFECT BOSS.

TESS OF THE TYPEWRITER GETS OUT A LETTER WHICH WAS NEITHER DICTATED NOR OK'ED BY THE BOSS.

BRIEF GUIDE FOR OFFICE BOSSES

DO—

1—Remember that your secretary is a human being and deserves to be treated as such.
2—Show appreciation—a little praise costs you nothing and may reap good dividends.
3—Assume that your secretary is honest—don't ask her to do your fibbing for you.
4—Watch your appearance—soap, water and dry cleaning are cheap.
5—Let your wife sew on buttons and run your errands—your secretary was hired only for office chores.
6—Dictate clearly—words mixed up with the end of a soggy stogie are hard to translate into English.
7—Encourage your secretary to offer suggestions—it gives her a sense of responsibility and may get you a raise.
8—See that your hired hands have a comfortable place in which to work—with good light, heat, ventilation and office equipment.
9—Give your secretary plenty of time to plan her vacation—she has probably saved pennies all year for the "big event."
10—Get to the office at some decent hour—not even you can cram a whole day's work into a few hours.

DON'T—

1—Make life miserable for your secretary just because you've got i. e.: dyspepsia, a nagging wife, or the recession to fight.
2—Expect a girl with training, experience, intelligence and personality to work for half the salary she's worth.
3—Regard yourself as the office Romeo—you're probably just making yourself ridiculous.
4—Forget that "Thank You" are two swell words.
5—Punctuate your dictation with profanity—pause, but don't cuss.
6—Expect your secretary to be a "Five Foot Shelf" of knowledge—you aren't, and know it.
7—Dictate personal epistles to Aunt Jennie and Uncle Jake on days when your secretary is swamped with work.
8—Doubt your secretary when she asks for time off to go to her grandmother's funeral—unless she seems to have an over-supply of grandparents.
9—Use high-smelling hair oil, scratch or chew tobacco.
10—Make a habit of keeping your secretary overtime or appropriate her lunch hour—if you do, she'll soon be looking for a better boss.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Dorothy Coleman

IT MAY be perfectly fair to help yourself in the cafeterias, but just try it in the department stores. You're likely to end up in the tow of a house detective the way a friend of mine did last week.

She had fought her way through the customary crowds to the negligee department of the store, to exchange a hostess gown which she had bought the day before for her sister but which proved to be a size too small. It was about noon, many of the sales girls were out to lunch, and she could get no attention.

Being resourceful by nature, she rummaged around the racks until she found the same style of robe, at the same price, in the desired size. Removing the smaller one from the box she was carrying, she hung it on the rack, took down the right one, folded it into her box and trudged off, saying nothin' to nobuddy.

Just as she set foot outside the revolving door on the main floor, heavy hands fell on her shoulders and she turned to face a house detective. Despite her protests of innocence, she was dragged off to tell it to the proper executive. He recognized her name as an especially good account and was full of apologies, not only for the mistake, but for the lack of service which obliged my friend to take such extreme measures.

It all passed off good-humoredly enough, but it will be a long time before my friend again tries self-service in a negligee department.

IT WAS WITH considerable disappointment that I learned that the Indian Warehouse, just this side of the Twelfth boulevard viaduct, was not a cache of arrow heads and tom-toms. But it does have honest-to-goodness Injuns, minus moccasins and war paint, on the staff. Four of them, in fact. Two are half Chippewa, another is three-quarters Sioux, and the fourth, is three-fourths Winnebago.

During the peak season in the warehouse, from May through October, the staff is temporarily augmented with additional Indian clerks and laborers. Many are graduates of Haskell Institute. When they are in St. Louis—many have returned several years for six-months' temporary employment—they congregate in neighboring boarding houses usually down on Russell boulevard, and have a dandy time of it.

THE ACTING SUPERINTENDENT of the United States Department of the Interior-Indian Service Warehouse—as it is properly designated—is not an Indian. She is Mrs. Mathilda Baier, who has been in Indian service 16 years and is still keen for the work. She has all the statistics at her fingertips. This warehouse, she said, is one of three similar institutions in the country, the other two being in Chicago and San Francisco. Its function, as she explained it, is the purchase, inspection and shipment of supplies for the Indian agencies, schools, hospitals, and sanatoriums of the service.

You can get some idea of the importance of the warehouse from the facts, supplied by Mrs. Baier, that during last year more than 3,110,000 pounds of freight, or 62,326 packages ranging from washing machines to overall buttons, were handled out of the warehouse. The cost of supplies purchased here amounted to $325,540.

There's no limit to the variety of things which the warehouse buys. Which items are purchased here and which in Chicago or San Francisco depends on the ultimate destination of the goods, and also to some extent on the markets. Insofar as open markets are concerned, the St. Louis warehouse serves units in Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado, North Carolina, Florida, and Mississippi, and shares with San Francisco responsibility for Utah, Nevada, California, Arizona and New Mexico agencies.

LAST YEAR the warehouse here purchased a whole carload of epsom salts, put up in 10 and 50 pound cartons. Another item supplied by a concern in this city is the baby dolls, or demonstration manikins, as they are officially listed, which are used to teach Indian mothers how to handle infants.

Some time ago an effort was made to secure these manikins with the high cheekbones, straight black hair and red skin popularly associated with the Indian type, but lately white baby dolls have seemed to gain favor.

Occasionally Mrs. Baier gets a rush order for an article which she can't recognize at all from the specifications. Not long ago she was instructed to buy a kind of couch on rollers, from a certain concern with which she had never done business before. It turned out to deal exclusively in undertaker's supplies! But the cart was a lovely thing when it came, Mathilda Baier said. All upholstered in leather, with chromium tubing frame, and adjustable head and foot rest. She later saw one at the auto show, part of the featured equipment of a stream-lined hearse, and experienced a happy glow of recognition.

FLOWERS ON NEW COSTUMES

THE flowers that bloom in the springtime will have considerable competition from the flowers appearing on spring costumes if early indications offer a hint of fashion trends. Hats, suits, daytime frocks and the bodices of evening frocks are appearing with elaborate floral decorations.

The vogue of flower-trimming on hats is a highlight of the new millinery season. Many of these adornments are extremely large and are posed conspicuously on sailors as well as on toques and bonnets. The sailor which has flowers of various shades posed at the front of the crown is highlighted among the modes of 1938 while chin straps that are covered with flower appliques trim other brimmed models. The all-flower turban is a dinner hat advocated by a leading French designer and bnonets which have clusters of tiny old-fashioned posies underneath the brim are liked by young sophisticates. The single large flower posed on the crown of a hat is another method of decoration is still popular.

The most elaborate use of flowers in the creation of dresses is seen in the styles of evening costumes. Entire bodices are covered with corsage arrangements, little boleros are made of fabric flowers and there are garlands over shoulders or around waistlines. In fact, the trend is beginning to indicate that the sequins of the winter are being replaced by violets, daisies, roses and gardenias.

Navy and white fabric flowers completely cover one jacket of the bolero type, the designer of which suggests a matching bracelet that is most effective although rather fragile. Another bolero of black velvet has a border of tiny white gardenias that are most effective when the coat is worn to enhance either a black or white frock.

Tomorrow You'll Wear—

GIANT flowers posed on a tiny turban or skull cap of felt.

—The dirndl dress which is now sky-rocketing to new importance for early spring.

FOOTWEAR AND BAGS TO MATCH

IF your spring footwear indorses the vogue of feminine bowknots, the chances are that your handbag will follow the same trend. Matching bags and footwear are increasing in style importance so that many women now purchase the two together. Design is stressed in the creation of these ensembles although the alliance of leathers and colors also is apparent.

An interesting example of the bowknot theme is a pump and bag set made of bright navy blue patent leather. The pump, an open-toed type has lacings across the instep and a perky grosgrain tie. The bag, developed in the soft pouch style in spite of the type of its leather displays the same lacing and bowknot trimming. Patent leather handles provide a convenient method of carrying the bag.

Another set combining gabardine and calf introduces the flap type of trimming. The pumps that are of the tailored type have patent flaps over the instep while the gabardine bag features a patent leather cuff. Perforations are employed to trim many of the season's footwear styles and the same idea is being developed in the designing of bags. The theme of patent leather is especially effective.

The vogue of matching colors in accessory sets is apparent in the number appearing in bright shades. Rose-berry red is attractive with navy, gray or black while Harness tan is acquiring a following among those who like tailored costume accents. Gay red alligator bags and footwear illustrate the extent of color emphasis in spring accessories as do the many hues of bright blue and purple.

HOW TO LIVE WITH A HUSBAND

"You Must Fight That Almost Uncontrollable Desire to Try to Make Over Your Life Partner."

By Bell Wiley

PART TWO

SOMETHING seems always to be going on inside a woman. But the male, short of a bad appendix or indigestion, is an external creature. While the female becomes devious and silent, retreating within herself and brooding over all kinds of casual remarks, the male is honest and open and if quick to be hurt, he as quickly forgets. None of this grudge business for him; he may carry a grudge against that dirty left end who gave him a sock in his senior year at college, but his wife will have to devastate his life entirely before he holds one against her. He can be hurt, and hurt badly, but not in the same way or by the same things that hurt you. He is far quicker to forget them. He isn't small as you are small and when you specially love him, this fact increases your love; when you do not, you only find it irritating and wish you could provoke him out of that honest simplicity.

You can't, so you might as well stop trying long before you begin. Similarly, you might as well give up your grudges, your sullen spasms of tears, your refusal to tell him what is the matter with you. At first he is sympathetic and patient, eager, with all his heart, to get at the basis of the trouble. He wants to talk it over and that is just what you don't want to do, having an acknowledged impulse to torment him further. You wait for a couple of months, making your home a dismal place in the interval and then you pour out your grievance. Generally he can't even remember the episode, or if you have tortured yourself into the conviction that he is bored with you and prefers some other woman, he is likely to throw back his head and laugh. His laugh is reassuring, but if you've lost pounds over your suspicion the laugh doesn't replace them. In any case, you have a fine reconciliation and you promise to tell him immediately, the next time.

It would be well if you did. That's the point I want to make clear at the moment. For these tears and silences and crises of reconciliation are very appealing in the beginning, but they lose their appeal with repetition. If you could stop at that exact point when your eyes were "misty and starry with unshed tears" all would be fine. You would look beautiful. But you can't. For you are not putting on a show; this, to you, is reality, backed by the unconscious desire to make sure of this love you live with. You go on till your eyes are two swollen blobs of red and your whole face is convulsed. Your love gets the reassurance it craves . . . at first . . . but by the third day of this spasm, or the third hour, he will hand you his handkerchief, tell you to enjoy your little cry and privately wonder why women can't have enough sanity to act like mature human beings. You will agree with me that it would be better never to reach that stage.

ANOTHER impulse, restricted not at all to the wife, but attacking both of you at the same time, is that of holding your ground. The issue may be the most minor one in the world but neither of you is willing to give in. It's like two children playing tug-of-war. You stand with your emotional feet firmly planted and neither yields as much as the bend of the knee. If an arbitrator could be discovered at this moment, he would be helpful, but you wouldn't think of asking for counsel. Besides, you know that you are right so why should there be any discussion? I have known I was right in several instances and it only served to prolong the battle. It's worse than good honest temper, because you get self-righteous and go about from room to room with an exalted look of virtue on your face. You tell yourself that it is not this immediate, petty thing which is at stake. Oh, no, not at all. Since you are right, it's the principle that counts. Once and for all Bob must yield to the right principle.

For the life of me I can't remember how certain of our battles of this nature came out. Somebody gave in, of course, or we would not be living together happily at this moment. I think I have given in more often on large issues, and he on small. I acted as I did for this reason: when my husband felt strongly about something of real magnitude, forcing him to yield because of my stubbornness would have been disastrous for both of us.

What is to be decided, every time, before you stubbornly achieve your point, is what effect your triumph will have on the two of you and your marriage. You stand secure or vulnerable against the world, depending on your mutual strength. If persistence in your own way will weaken your relationship, by all means forget it. Yield, and yield gracefully, without after reference or after nagging. And don't say: "Well, I gave in the last time. It's your turn now." You must realize that what you are building between you is more important in the end than any of your separate wishes. Consider every point in the light of what it will do to your marriage, and not what it will do to you.

There are methods of getting your way by devious routes and persuading your husband that it was his idea in the first place. Learning to manage your husband, it's called. You have heard plenty of women boast of their prowess in this, explaining that they suggested such and such a thing so frequently (like the drop of water) and so tactfully that at length their husbands brought it forth as their own creation. And what a pretty picture of a trustful marriage that presents! It implies as these women all imply when they relate the event with amusement, that they are more skillful than their husbands, that men are, taken by and large, a little dumb. It goes with the assumption that "men are like that," and is equally unsavory. Men are like that only in so much as they are more honest and forthright and generous than women. They don't go in for subterfuges and the drop-by-drop method. It would never occur to them to suspect their wives of what they are themselves above. Of course, you can "manage" your husband and get little extra bits of money from him or persuade him to extravagances or make him give in to you, but you certainly won't have my blessing, and I suspect you won't have his.

One almost uncontrollable impulse will surge up in you very shortly after your marriage—no woman has been proof against it yet and you will be no exception—and that is the impulse to change your husband. If you succeed in controlling it you will have accomplished a miracle, for the odds against you are terrific.

HE DRESSES slowly; he sits for hours reading the newspapers when you wouldl prefer he read a book, and besides, you've just finished reading the paper and you know it isn't worth that extended attention; he sits for a full 15 minutes each night brooding over his toes, separating one from the other, examining them, studying the condition of each nail while you lie in bed, furious and fascinated. Of course, it might be said that you had no preparation for these strange male habits when you married and so are justified in trying to correct them now, but I suspect (much as I hate to go against sex solidarity) that you may of yourself have discovered strange female habits to the male. On the whole, he is more likely to accept these with the realistic resignation he manifests toward other acts of God, and let them pass. In so far as is humanly possible, do you do likewise.

This has its larger aspects, which can breed real trouble. For instance, the women who married certain men because they had a grave and fine sweetness which made them stand out. Those same qualities persist after marriage, along with the sensitiveness and tenderness which logically accompany them. Such men make excellent fathers and charming husbands; but, strangely enough, as time goes on, it appears that they are not going to be whirlwinds in business. Those very things that are endearing in the home do not make for giants of power in the business world. You didn't think much about this before you married because you just assumed that eventually you would be prosperous. Why, of course. But five years, 10 years pass and that prosperity does not follow endeavor, as the night the day, and you begin to want to do something about it. You begin to talk with your husband about being aggressive and you try to push him into activity which is quite foreign to his temperament. You have in the back of your mind some glamorous impressions of women who have "modeled" their husbands; you hear about so and so, who, because of her extravagance, forced her husband out of his rut into being a famous figure; you conclude that the re-creation is up to you.

What you must remind yourself of, 10 times a day until it becomes conviction, is that you married this man because you loved him for what he was. You preferred him because he was not aggressive and you must back your faith in your own judgment. If it appears that he will never be largely successful, don't try to force him into it. You can't change him, anyway, and you will only end by destroying his faith in himself. Adjust to what income you have and don't ever let yourself be caught, publicly or privately, saying, "I wish you'd hurry up and make more money."

Or the other side of the picture, the man you married because you admired his aggressive, dominant qualities and his evident determination to succeed. Succeed he probably does, but you forgot to be glad about that. His devotion to his work annoys you; his inability to read or to listen to concerts; his habit of absorbing all the conversation at a dinner party, all of these things seem to keep splitting you apart.

And they will continue to. There is very little you can do about it but have the good sense to keep quiet, and refuse to let them split you apart in an emotional sense. Go to your concerts and museums by yourself; enter into his life as much as he will let you, but don't try to force him into yours.

As for your husband's playing with his toes before he gets into bed at night! Well, for that I see no solution. It is one of the crosses the female is born to bear. Nothing really can be done about it.

IT MIGHT all be summed up by saying that you kick against the faults and your husband does not. You even, that being your nature, kick against the fact that he does not kick. Rebellion swells like a balloon inside of you; you can't and won't resign yourself and you are irritated by his ability to do so. Take the matter of advancing years, for instance. Once you have topped the 30 mark you begin your kicking: at 25 you were prettier; at 25 there was more passion, more fire, more intensity in your husband's love for you. Why, just look at the letters you used to write me! (for you have been sadly going through the desk that morning.) See, it meant something to you for me to be away, in those days; you bothered to tell me in different and convincing ways with each letter that you loved me, now you sign them, after telling me what happened in the office, with "much love."

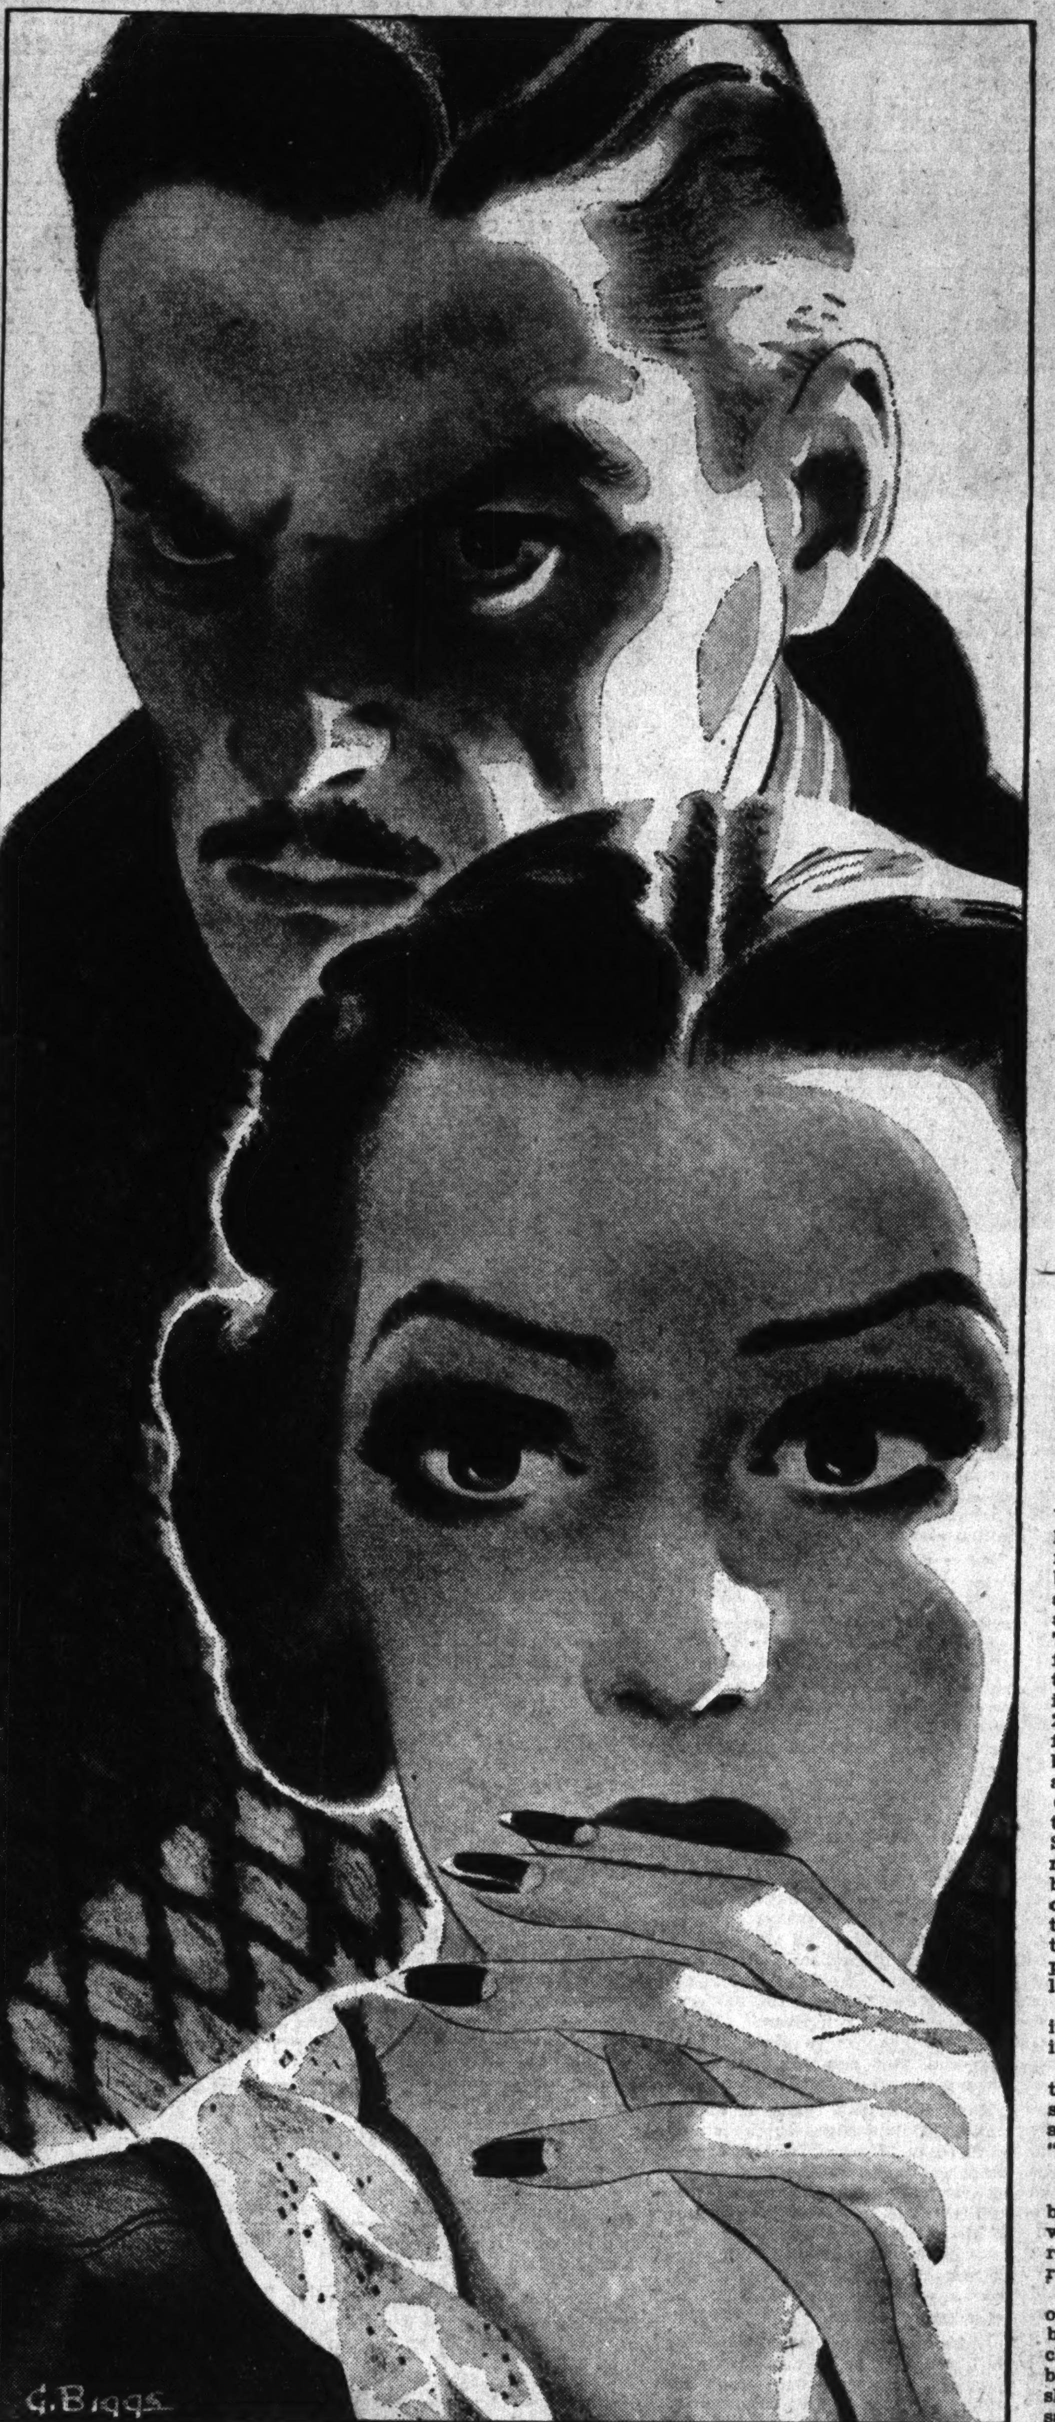
"But why do you fight against it?" He asks. "You're just fighting against living."

"I'm not," you answer hastily, for there may be something in what he says. "Not at all." Then there is a moment's silence while you brood. "But if this is life, I don't like it."

The reply to this is a snort.

And your final reply had better be gratitude for the "much love" without asking for the impossible return of that first fine careless rapture.

Only one phase of this passage of time really disturbs your husband. Your first gray hairs he claims to love; your thickening hips bring no protest, although he may slap you genially on the back and say "She's not the girl I married." But neither of these things nor any of the others which might be added will give him a nostalgia for youth. There remains his one sorrow; it is his only kick against the faults, but it is a lusty one: his receding hair line. That you will be attractive with gray hair, he insists; that he could still have any charm without his hair is beyond his comprehension. You have him there (for his forehead begins to broaden and deepen long before the hairdresser observes your first gray hair), but it would be well to refrain from comment. And it would be equally well to remind him of that man you were so crazy about who had not even a wisp of hair. While I don't believe in managing a husband, I do believe in tact.



"I KNOW I'M RIGHT. I WON'T GIVE IN!"—BOTH ARE FREQUENTLY GUILTY OF THIS STUBBORNNESS AND NEITHER WILL YIELD AS MUCH AS THE BEND OF THE KNEE.

Pleated Dresses

Sheer dark frocks that are pleated all over are forerunners of the springtime. Those that are made of chiffon predominate and there are prints as well as solid colors from which to choose. A lingerie collar, a vivid patent leather belt and a flower that looks far from realistic are accents to consider.

Simple Turban With Flyaway Scarf Popular

By Josephine Hughes

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.

ANY time you really want to know that latest "what's what" in smart hat circles you have only to consult that oracle of the millinery world, Miss Jessica of Bergdorf Goodman. She can tell you what Agnes and Suzy are that instant whipping up in Paris; she knows what our foremost fashion plates are wearing North, South, East and West. But before we go a word further we must state that Miss Jessica is not gifted with any amazing magic prophetic powers. She is able to give you this wealth of information because she is constantly in direct communication with the leading millinery creators of Paris and she certainly should know what our "best-dressed" girls are wearing atop their sleek locks because she probably placed said headgear atop said locks.

We dropped by to see Miss Jessica and between hurried dashes to her various customers she gave us the latest "low-down" on hat fashions. She feels that there is a great trend toward "trying on" headgear. She is featuring simple little turbans that fall into long streamers down the back around the neck or over one shoulder. It's a bit African, a bit Hinduish and definitely a follow-up of the "tying on, trailing" influence that was noted on the smartest heads along the Riviera last summer.

JESSICA HAS several divine models in dusty pastel backgrounds painted with Persian patterns. These hats are perfect now for dark dresses and fur coats and often have a tremendous jeweled pin atop. For the South they are equally smart paired with Jean Schlumberger's "tying on" sandals in the same fabric. The brilliant newcomer to the style world feels that women love to wrap on their shoes, and his model at Delman's are knockouts.

All the smartest arrivals from Paris are wearing Chanel's little jersey turban with the long scarfs. Mrs. Thomas Shelvin and Mrs. William Hale Harkness are two of the most recent sponsors of this style, and of course Jessica is highlighting this same number in her collection. You can order it in any tone of jersey and in any other fabric you may choose. Nancy Byers, whose recent wedding to William Y. Martin was one of the outstanding events of the New York winter season, ordered this turban in royal blue jersey to top her "going away" costume.

ANOTHER CHANEL hat that is making "news" is the simple little beret, much like a French sailor's hat, which must be worn far on the back of the head. They are ordering this model in dark velours for town and add a feminine veil; but the South-bound socialites are favoring it in pastels; in fact, Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Palm Beach wardrobe includes one in many different colors.

The most intriguing new hat for town wear is the little black satin quilted pillbox, banded and edged in kelly green and gold brocaded ribbon. Completely bandaging the chin is a mesh veil of green tying atop a perky bow. Mrs. Woodworth Hart just ordered this number and she looks really chic.

For evening Jessica is showing the new Chanel veil which has a cap effect and is studded with gold paillettes. Joan Crawford just ordered pink velvet wild roses strung on a band, three on one side and one surprisingly posed behind the ear.

On Brightening Frocks

Dark frocks that have lingerie yokes, vestees or boleros often are the answer to the problem of a late winter costume which looks toward the spring. Although designed for various ages there is a youthful emphasis to many of the latest models. One that would look well for luncheon, tea or any informal evening occasion is made of navy blue crepe and has a deep shoulder yoke of embroidered organdie. A turnover collar of the same exquisite cotton material provides a flattering neckline. Sleeves are short, the bodice is shaped into a corselet line and there is a swing to the back of the skirt.

Printed Scrolls

The woman who admires printed evening gowns but is looking for a novel use of patterned fabrics should consider the new fashion of applying printed scrolls to net. One striking illustration of this appears in the creation of a net bolero to accompany a printed evening frock. The bolero is covered with a scroll design of the same gay fabric which makes the frock. Another frock made of white net employs the theme for the skirt as well as the bolero while the low-cut bodice has a draped band of the printed material at the top.

LET ME SUGGEST

Josephine Walter

IF Mr. Lovelace, who said that "Stone walls do not a prison make," had lived today he might possibly have been an interior decorator instead of a poet. For it takes someone with a sense of imagination to realize that four walls are no longer merely four walls when it comes to the decorating of a room today, inasmuch as each wall may now be treated individually as well as part of the whole.

It has long been realized that it is possible to change the size and shape of a window by the method in which it is draped; that ugly lines of furniture may be modified by concealing slip-covers, and that the scale of furniture and the way it is arranged will have much to do with the apparent size of a room. But it has just recently been discovered that the architectural proportions of a room may apparently be changed by the simple use of paint or wall paper without actually making any structural changes.

THE OLD IDEA that the four walls of a room were painted in one tone with the ceiling in a lighter shade no longer holds good. Today, before redecorating a room, analyze the proportions of the room and decide how they should be changed and then decorate the walls accordingly. For instance, if a room is too long and narrow and has a fireplace at one end, try painting three of the walls in a neutral tone and papering the fireplace end in a striking patterned paper with a dark ground. You will be surprised to find how this will apparently shorten the length of the room and give it an illusion of better proportions.

Sometimes it is desirable to try to make one wall disappear entirely. This is often true where one wall has a window which looks out upon a lovely view. In this instance, paint the other three walls in some interesting shade or paper them with an attractive paper and paint the remaining wall in some neutral tone with draperies in the same shade. The wall will tend to disappear. This same' treatment ment might be used for a wall that is badly broken up with doors.

● FREQUENTLY, especially in old houses, the ceiling is much too high for the size of the room and seems to dwarf the furnishings. Painting this feature in a much darker tone than the walls will seem to make it much lower and will frequently add decorative interest to a room. But, on the other hand, by painting the ceiling in a shiny black paint, you often obtain an illusion of space and thus can give a too-low ceiling more height.

Shiny black paint is also an excellent solution to a lavatory or tiny powder room. The reflective quality of this paint makes the room seem to expand immeasurably. In using this type of paint in a very small room, paint ceiling and walls the same. And incidentally, this is an ideal paint for a room of this type, for splash marks are easily wiped off with a damp cloth.

In addition to the many beautifully designed wall papers which may be put to a variety of uses, there are some architectural papers which may be used to change the architectural effect of a room. It is now posible to get papers which are printed to look like wood moulding and it is even possible to get papers that stimulate pilasters and other columns of various types. One interesting room I saw was an ordinary square hall which was given architectural interest by the use of wall paper columns. A dado paper in tones of gray and white was used below a deep blue wall with the gray and white tone repeated in paper columns which were placed against the blue wall on either side of the doorways leading to living and dining rooms.

—o-o—

FREQUENTLY, one sees wall papers which are most intriguing in tone and pattern but which would be tiresome if used on all four walls of a room. Sometimes such a paper may be used in panels on the major wall spaces of the room, the panels being outlined with a wall paper moulding and the rest of the walls painted in sofe harmonizing tone.

In a child's room I saw an effective handling of contrasting wall papers. Two opposite walls were papered in a dark blue paper with a pattern embodying George Washington, his horse, his drum and Mount Vernon and a spattering of red dots over the whole. The other two walls were papered in a plain white paper which repeated the red dots of the other paper. In this manner the room was given decorative pattern and yet was kept light and cheerful by the contrasting paper.

CURING a FIREPLACE of SMOKING

This Can Be Done, in Many Cases, If Owners Apply Themselves to it; Glowing Fire on Hearth Adds Cheer

By ELOISE DAVISON

LEFT — A HEATPROOF GLASS SHIELD WHICH STOPS SMOKE FROM COMING OUT INTO THE ROOM.

THIS STOVE, SIMILAR TO THOSE USED IN BEN FRANKLIN'S TIME, ADDS HEAT AND QUAINT CHARM.

ALL can be gloom outside, but step into a room with a bright fire sparkling on the hearth and what can be more cheerful? A great comfort a fireplace can be if it works! But there's nothing more disheartening than a fireplace that fails at the crucial moment, as many a fireplace does. A badly behaved or temperamental fireplace is discouraging to say the least. It may not draw well, it may draw too well and take all the heat up the chimney, or it may smoke.

The first puff of smoke that sneaks into the room may smell like a breath of the woods and bring back pleasant memories, but let the fireplace keep up this and the charm fades fast as the air gets blue, and the furnishings show smudgy traces.

Considerable heat may be furnished by a rightly planned fireplace, and considerable heat may be drawn from the room by one for which the vital details have not been planned carefully. No matter how attractive the fireplace looks, it is the details, often the out-of-sight details, that are important in maintaining both its charm and its usefulness.

There really is no excuse for not building a fireplace corectly. Not everybody building fireplaces knows this. Some remedies often are important. The picture at upper left was taken in an attractive studio, one sizable enough to warrant the large and interesting fireplace shown here. But the fireplace smoked. The opening was an unusual size so the problem was not an easy one. A "fireplace doctor" contrived the heatproof glass shield that keeps the smoke in the chimney where it belongs. Several years have proven its worth. A plain metal shield might have done the same job but in this fireplace none of the glow of the flame is lost for it all shows through the transparent hood of glass. Not the thing you would plan if you were building perhaps but surely a good solution and an attractive and ingenious one. It baffles many sparks that might fly out into the room. As a matter of fact the use of a fire screen has been eliminated since the glass shield has been in use.

Fireplaces that are needed for heat as well as cheer can be provided easily nowadays. The one shown at upper right is built around a heavy steel form which acts as back wall and combustion chamber, and includes dampers and draughts. Logically the fireplace should be built around this convenience at the outset. However it is worth looking into if you are remodeling too. It is constructed so that fresh air is taken in from the outside, circulated past the heated metal back plate so that only warm fresh air comes into the room. A damper in the chimney prevents down draughts which are so often the reason for a smoky fireplace. It is arranged so that there are no strong up-the-chimney draughts either. This is very important in a house with a central heating system because a daught up the chimney can carry a large amount of heat out of a house. This circulating type of fireplace may be totally adequate for some of the between season heating or to supplement heating that does not seem adequate. An excellent idea this is for shacks or country places where a limited amount of heat is required.

The working part of the fireplace, which is shown in the inset, may be accompanied by any type of exterior. The mantel may be as arresting as you wish to make it, either modern or antique in design while the inner working parts of the fireplace are modern and extremely efficient. It is the out-of-sight details that are important here.

If you must have a fireplace, but there is no chimney—and no chance for one—consider a portable mantel and sham fireplace, shown at lower left in the picture layout. It gives a certain effect, but no actual heat. It adds a pleasing note to some rooms. You can sit in front of this pseudo-fireplace just as well as a real one. It can be had in almost any design you wish, modern, period, early American. Much easier to keep clean than a real one—and you can take it along when you move.

Early American types of homes may lend themselves to the stove, pictured at lower right, that many years ago Ben Franklin found heated a room far better and with less fuel than did the ordinary fireplace of his day. If you would be faithful to American tradition in your household interior, you might find this a pleasing solution for your open fire problem.

If the fireplace doesn't work too well, you may be able to utilize its chimney this way with good results. In using this stove, close off most of the fireplace opening into the room. Provide an opening just large enough for the stovepipe to go into the chimney. This arrangement is interesting because it can be used either open or closed—it can be put inside the fireplace or in front of it (as in the picture) or attached to any chimney even if there is no fireplace. It adds an old-fashioned charm in addition to heat. One of the most modern electric kitchens I know, in a small country house, uses this very type of stove effectively for heating the kitchen for cold week-ends.

For more serious fireplace troubles you may need to call in an expert for a consultation. Practically any fireplace can be made to burn effectively but all are not susceptible to simple and easy remedies.

SOUNDS IN THE NIGHT

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

IF YOU'VE never been in a broadcast studio you don't know how sounds are made:

—o-o—

—o-o—

Niagara Falls—Place a 144-piece dinner-set on a dumb-waiter and then cut the rope.

—o-o—

Niagara Falls frozen over—Chop salad up very fine and place on the window sill.

—o-o—

Sound of man falling down stairs—Put walnut shells on a cat's feet and toss him into an empty swimming pool.

—o-o—

Dedicating a cornerstone — Squeeze a lemon into a washing machine and then go south for the winter.

—o-o—

—o-o—

Farthest North—Kick a bag of sleigh bells around studio.

—o-o—

—o-o—

Fan mail—Any letter that doesn't contain a bill.

—o-o—

Studio audience — Critics who would rather look at it than listen to it.

—o-o—

Sponsor—The only one in the joint with brains enough to be worried.

—o-o—

Slamming a door—They actually slam a door when they want to make a noise like a door slamming. We don't know what genius figured it out, but it's terrific.

—o-o—

Machine gun—An actor who stutters is told to ask for a deep dish apple pie. Nobody ever heard a machine gun ask for apple pie. Which is all right, because the stuttering actor never gets past the first "d" in "deep."

—o-o—

There are more sounds than that in a studio. And as we think of them we will forget 'em.

Parents Are Problems to Children, Too

It Isn't Always the Other Way Around, Says Child Expert.

By Angelo Patri

WHILE children are often problems to their parents, the parents are often problems to their children. Hopeless problems, for what can a child do with his parents, but take them as they are and suffer them?

These problems are often acute. They weigh upon the mind of a child so that he cannot get his school work done. They trouble his sleep so he gets no rest. They fill his mind with sorrow so that he cannot play. He fails on all sides unless he gets help with his home problems.

Children do not talk about these affairs until they are pressed, sometimes forced to do so. They hide them and refuse to acknowledge them even to themselves. A fine girl had a mother who drinks to excess. She goes to school unfit for work and gets bad marks, is scolded, put back. "What is the matter with you?" "Nothing." By and by, under the pressure of school visitor, nurse, teacher, clergyman, the story is laid bare. "She's my mother. You don't think I'm ashamed of her, do you? Why don't you mind your own business?"

A BOY SLOWS DOWN in his work; pays no attention in class; looks miserable and becomes surly. "What is the matter, son?" "Nothing." Investigation discloses a broken home. Mother has gone away. The father and son have been left to get along as well as they can, which is not very well. They both want to hide their trouble. What could the boy do without help?

A child drags herself along as though dead tired. She is pale and cross and falls asleep in her class. "What is the matter?" "Nothing." We find that the depression has cost two brothers their homes and they have returned to father and mother, bringing their wives and children. This tired child is tired because she has to sleep on a board laid across the bathtub. She has to sit on the stairs to study because there is no room anywhere else. The sisters-in-law nag her to death. What is the child to do?

Even children from well-to-do homes have problem-fathers and mothers and relatives to face. An overcritical parent or relative, an overly ambitious father or mother or family, a divided family, brothers and sisters who are unfriendly, even hostile. All this troubles the child to desperation, for he is helpless.

SCHOOL is mother and father, clergyman and physician, friend extraordinary to these children. It is to the friendly teacher that the story is finally poured out. And it is the friendly teacher who stands by, advising, helping, encouraging and guiding the stumbling child to the place of his enduring strength.

The teacher cannot do this work alone. There should be groups of understanding men and women attached to the school whose business it is to lend a hand to children in need of it. There is a shortage of spiritual help for struggling children. Surely there are plenty ready and willing to render it. The school needs them. The children with problem families must have them.

RECTOR'S RECIPES FOR SALADS AND DRESSING

By George Rector

IT pleased me very much to receive so many letters in response for more salad combinations and salad dressings. I have always contended that the salad is almost as important as the main course of a meal. It should be served as a course. One of my favorite meals starts with a goodly quantity of soup—let's say, onion soup—with oodles of grated cheese sprinkled over it and the piece de resistance—a salad, right out of that wooden bowl, a beverage and dessert. Now, don't you think that comes pretty near rounding out a nice meal? Of course, if you have a big appetite this meal wouldn't go very far.

Sometime when you are going to prepare a shell fish salad—lobster, crabmeat, or shrimp, which usually calls for mayonnaise dressing—add to the dressing one-half teaspoon of curry powder and mix well. You will be surprised what a delicious flavor it has. Now here's another combination that originated in old Delmonico's—Lorenzo dressing. It is made by adding two tablespoons of chili sauce to one-half cup of French dressing, then add one teaspoon of finely chopped pimientos, one teaspoon of finely chopped chives, and one teaspoon finely chopped parsley, and mix well.

You really can glorify shredded cabbage when you mix it well with sour cream dressing. Be sure and get the thick oozing kind of sour cream. To three-quarters cup of sour cream add one-quarter cup of vinegar slowly, stirring all the time. Season with one-half teaspoon of salt, a very light pinch of cayenne pepper, one-half teaspoon paprika, and one teaspoon of chives of finely chopped onion, preferably chives, all to be mixed well. Shred very finely a small solid head of white cabbage. Mix it well in the dressing and it wouldn't be a bad idea to put it in the refrigerator to chill.

DID YOU EVER TRY a hot slaw? It's good, really it is. Shred finely three cups of cabbage and start on the dressing. Mix together two tablespoons flour, two tablespoons sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, and one-half teaspoon of dry mustard. Add to dry ingredients two egg yolks which have been beaten with one-fourth cup of vinegar and three-quarters cup of rich milk. Cook in top part of double boiler, stirring gently until it thickens. When the dressing is cooked and perfectly smooth, add, and beat in well, two tablespoons of melted butter. Now add the shredded cabbage so that it will heat in the sauce without boiling.

Boil one-half dozen medium-sized potatoes until tender, with their jackets on. Remove the jackets and drop the potatoes in a bowl. Break up the potatoes with two forks, but do not mash them. While the potatoes are still warm, pour over them one-third cup of French dressing and let them marinate. Add one-half cup of finely sliced almonds, which have been previously blanched and skins removed. Also add one tablespoon of finely chopped onions and the same amount of finely chopped green peppers. Mix well. Now place the salad in refrigerator to chill. Just before serving add three-quarters cup of mayonnaise dressing and one tablespoon of finely chopped parsley. You will have to do some thorough mixing again and then serve this salad on a light bed of lettuce. A couple of dashes of paprika over the top will add a little color and flavor, too. The dressing which I gave you for the hot slaw would go very well in place of the mayonnaise.

Some time when you are serving boiled beef or a pot roast and you find there is quite a bit left over for the next day, I want you to make a meat salad. It's delicious. Cut the meat in slices of one-quarter inch and then cut the slices in irregular pieces about the size of a half dollar. Go back to the refrigerator and see if you have any leftover, cooked vegetables. Perhaps you will find some beets, potatoes or beans, string or limas. If so, you have the makings of a real salad.

Let us cut enough meat to make two cupfuls, which we will place in a bowl. Now cut the cooked vegetables in pieces as you have cut the meat, except, of course, the lima beans, which go in whole. One cupful of vegetables is enough. Add them to the meat and toss in one thinly sliced onion and one tablespoon of finely chopped parsley. To this combination add one-half cup of French dressing and do plenty of mixing. Serve on bed of lettuce garnished with hard cooked, sliced eggs.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

TOUGH—isn't it?—to see some hard-boiled slicker sitting pretty while so many nice, kind people are taken for a ride. Perhaps you've felt considerably burnt over it yourself . . . wondered if goodness pays. As young James G. Lutz of 1256 Warner street, N. S., Pittsburgh, Pa., is doing.

"Why do the wicked flourish?" writes he. "There's a problem I have never been able to solve. Everyone knows lots of cases of worthless, irresponsible creatures who never go to church, or say the Lord's prayer, yet have bank accounts and homes fit for a king.

"On the other hand, there is the good but poor man who goes to church every Sunday. Yet his wife is always sick—his children wear tattered clothes. It seems that God-fearing people are doomed to live in want while sinners have wealth and health and happiness. There must be something wrong somewhere!

YES, THERE'S certainly something wrong—but why blame it on the Creator? The wicked flourish, not because God is an unjust God, but—nine times out of ten—because the righteous are softies. Our own conception of good and evil is often completely cockeyed. Goodness isn't a negative performance—it's a positive one. Righteousness doesn't mean merely staying out of jail. To the contrary, it means wading into life with all the wallop you possess. And when it comes to wading and walloping, the wicked, all too often, have the good backed off the boards.

Mind you, I'm casting no aspersions on the truly good . . . those brave, aggressive citizens who make a flaming adventure of fine living, and who are always to be found in the front line trenches of holiness. Rather, I am referring to those rocking chair saints who think God should come across just because they can recite the 23rd Psalm and don't play craps. I have yet to see this brand of Godliness blessed.

As the old slogan says—"it is not enough to be good . . . you must be good for something." Any stupid, lazy, cowardly heel can LOOK good, but it takes gobs of gumption to be actually righteous. Examine the record of all real saints and you'll find plenty of spiritual brass-knuckles.

The wicked flourish, not because God has a sneaking liking for them, but because they are go-getters. Life needs go-getters and rewards them.

MAN WAS CREATED to be the greatest go-getter of all. He was intended to think definitely, plan positively, act vigorously. And, it is both strange and sad, but the wicked frequently fulfill this admonition far better than the godly. In their warped and wanton way, such 16-cylinder sinners come nearer to obeying the law of life than the sanctimonious do-nothings. They will undoubtedly get theirs, some day, but at present they're apt to be making 12 per cent on most investments.

Faith and force—these qualities lie behind all achievement. They are psychic dynamite, and they work as energetically for the sinner as the saint. If good people had a tenth as much faith in themselves and their principles as the bad people have, we'd have paradise pronto. But again the sinner monopolizes the fireworks and leaves the saint to his Psalms and self-pity.

God doesn't desert the righteous. They desert themselves—and Him. God has given the good exactly the same makings for an abundant life which He has given the wicked—but the wicked use their makings and the good don't. They, all too often, go on relief instead.

Hashed Brown Potatoes

Ingredients:
Six medium-sized cold boiled potatoes.
Three small raw green peppers.
Salt and pepper.

Chop potatoes fine, season with salt and pepper. Remove seeds and stems from peppers. Wash drain, and chop fine. Mix with potatoes. Put in four tablespoons butter or other shortening in frying pan. Heat slowly. When hot add the potatoes and cook slowly stirring occasionally with a fork. When partly brown, fold into omelet shape in one side of pan. Fry until a rich brown. Turn out on a platter, keeping in omelet shape.

Juvenile Footwear

The vogue of color that is seen in the new spring styles of women's footwear gives indications of extending to juvenile modes. Designers of children's shoes are featuring blue oxfords and sandals for little girls who want to dress as swanky as their mother. A T-strap model is among the dressy types.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION -:- By MARTHA CARR

GOD BLESS OUR HAPPY HOME

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I HAVE NEVER written you before, but I now feel I must tell my problem to someone and you are the only one to whom I can speak frankly.

Mrs. Carr, I am a young girl who is hard of hearing and, believe me, this can make one's life very unhappy. I am the second oldest of four children. I have tried ever since I was 17 and finished high school to find work. I am now 21. I very frankly tell them when I apply that I am hard of hearing, and they immediately have no use for me.

Also my home life is very sorry. I have been at home so long without work that my mother can hardly stand the sight of me. I have tried my best to get along with her, but she talks terribly to me. Even my sisters and brothers do this. I used to talk back to them, but I found this did not good. I am so unhappy, I do nothing but cry. I am not a bit lazy, I do part of the housework and the ironing.

I started in a lip-reading class in September but was unable to go on because I could not afford car fare. I receive nothing for my labor at home, of course. I could join clubs for this type of people, but cannot until I find work as they have dues each month. What I want to know is, are there places in the city which help the hard of hearing find work?

Mrs. Carr, I know many find your work a great help; I hope I may. God bless you. This letter is from one who is hard of hearing but hopes to find life sweet some day.

YOUNG GIRL.

If you have not known about the St. Louis League for the Hard of Hearing, a society which has done, not only through encouragement and kindness but in giving a helping hand wherever possible, you must look them up at 4527 Westminster place. You can telephone first as you will find them listed in the telephone book.

It may be, like all impulsive young people, you exaggerate the unkindness of your family and your attitude toward them, which may have to do with their manner. I hope that one or several of them may be willing to help you with car fare so that you can continue your work with the lip-reading classes, as that will remove to a great extent the sad handicap under which you work.

Dear Miss Carr:

I AM 25 years old and have a good position, but I feel like a stranger. I have no friends in St. Louis and feel very lonesome. I hate to go to dances by myself because I would feel funny if no one asked me to dance in a public dance hall. I am not bad looking. What would you suggest to do?

"I FEEL LIKE A STRANGER."

It just seems to me that when you meet young men nowadays they don't care for girls who don't smoke. If you don't drink or smoke they will date you once or twice and that is all. You never hear from them again.

LONESOME.

If you will send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I will be glad to mail you a list of clubs, societies and organizations in which, by forgetting self and entering into helpful activities, you may gain a fresh outlook on life. And I'm sure that not all men expect a girl to drink and smoke. Just "be yourself" and when you are better acquainted here you will discover men who will appreciate you for what you are. Meanwhile, keep your head up.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I WOULD LIKE to have the address of the "No Name" club.

A DAILY READER.

This club meets Friday evening at the Y. W. C. A., 1411 Locust street, Jesse Padget, president. To be eligible for membership you must be unmarried and at least 30 years of age.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I NEED some advice and will be more than grateful to you if you would be kind enough to help me get it.

I am 27 years old and my hair which is dark brown is rapidly turning gray. I know if it keeps up I will be decidedly gray looking by next fall.

I have inquired at the very best hair dressers and while they assured me that they have very successfully dyed numerous heads of my color, I still feel very shaky about having it done. I have never seen dark hair that has been dyed that didn't eventually get a very tarnished dry look to it, and if I thought mine would be that way, I would far rather have it gray and healthy looking much as I dislike it.

I thought perhaps some of your readers who have had experience in having their hair dyed would be kind enough to tell me, if, in the long run, it is ever really worth the trouble and expense.

Another thing that has me worried is the fact that I shall have to work the rest of my life, circumstances being as they are, and if I ever have to look for another job I'm afraid gray hair might be a hinderance. I know in our office they have recently adopted a rule of not hiring any girl of mature looks, and gray hair doesn't ever make you look any younger.

MARGIE.

While I think most persons feel that gray hair is no longer the major handicap it once was, I believe there is, in some quarters, a prejudice against employing those whose hair indicates maturity. However, there are many other conditions, especially an unhealthy condition of the scalp rather than age, which bring gray hair. A good hair tonic, much brushing and massaging may restore the health and color to your hair.

Dyed hair seldom fools anyone. But there is, right now, an iron-gray rinse which is very smart and this is done while shampooing and may cover the beginning of gray hair entirely. And it also would not interfere with the tonic and energetic treatment I have mentioned. Some hairdressers do the work well, and should be patronized at least for the first time, so that you can know how it is done.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I AM WRITING in the hope that your readers may have some pajamas, books or a radio (a. c. or d. c. current) for an unfortunate girl. I will be grateful for anything you send. My size is 17 or 18. I am sending a line as reference from the Rev. Ethelbert Harms, O. F. M., as I am a Catholic patient, and he the Catholic chaplain at Robert Koch hospital.

E. L. J.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WOULD YOU please suggest how to handle a neighbor who is forever using our phone? These are both incoming and outgoing calls. We do not want to make hard feelings. But it is most inconvenient, with her many calls, to have to call her and deliver messages and names, and to have her coming in to make these calls.

I gave her permission to use my telephone for necessary calls, and now I am in a quandary as to how to stop it. The truth is, I am busy all the time, either with my home work or helping my husband with his work and, though I am always at home, my mind is taken up every minute. The first of the month is especially busy as I do book work; but nothing seems to impress her. And when she comes she stops and chatters away, no matter how busy we are. I've failed to deliver some of the messages, but you may have a better way. But eventually they'll tell her. I could just not answer her knock at the rear door; but one lives so close to neighbors in a flat.

EASY.

Letters intended for Martha Carr must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

You have made a very good beginning and if she mentions it, you can I think bewail the fact, that you are growing forgetful because your day is so full. In another part of the house while the noise of your work is going on, you might not hear the knock always, no matter how vigorous.

When she stops too long to chatter arrange beforehand with your husband to call you, or if in the room have him say, or you say: "I'm sorry, but we have to get this out before something o'clock."

Probably if she is so willing to impose, she is not really very thin-skinned and you do not run so much risk of offending her. What you have written might apply to the experience of a good many people, and so I am printing most of it in the hope that other offenders may read it.

My dear Mrs. Carr:

MY HUSBAND is about 20 years my senior and we have a small baby. There is another woman in the case. She knows that my husband is married and refuses to give him up. He, likewise, refuses to stop seeing her and I am at a loss as to what to do. This is not the first time he has done this and I would like to know if he could secure a divorce. He gives me only enough to live on and refuses to pay the taxes or any of the expenses.

I have personally had a talk with this woman and she knows that this is not his first offense.

My husband is well thought of and many people do not know what a heartless brute he really is at home.

What shall I do? I hope you can advise me.

FFF.

You will have to have legal advice about the alimony; but since he is the active offender, I am sure you need not feel uneasy about your financial dues from him. His actions are an affront to decency and you have everything on your side. The other woman is something for him to manage and I believe you are wasting your time and dignity in having any communication with her. Evidently, your husband is misinformed and is in a precarious position from the standpoint of decent people and the law. Those who think well of him will not think so well when they are enlightened.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

After reading L. M.'s letter in your column concerning employment of women over 30, please let me say she is right. One only needs to read the want ads to ascertain that employers of office assistants are seeking girls from 18 to somewhere not too far in the twenties.

I am 35 and have had sufficient office experience — 15 years — to qualify for a responsible position. I need a job, too, but my applications bring no replies. Like L. M., I ask for $20 per week, which seems to be an exorbitant salary.

I have no income at present, only a small reserve fund, which is going very fast, and I am getting desperate. This unfair age limit imposed by employers unfortunately affects men, too, and the whole situation is deplorable.

Is youth, only, to be served? I want to maintain my home but with such opposition, how can it be done? I know I could make myself invaluable to an employer if given an opportunity—else I should never have written this letter. Will you make a plea to employers to give men and women past 30 a chance? They are definitely not too old to make a new start with a new job.

STILL HOPEFUL.

Dear Martha Carr:

I READ your column every day, the very first thing, as soon as the paper arrives. Today I've about burned up over the letter signed "Puzzled Woman." If I could only exchange places with her. She has God's greatest gift to woman, a fine husband—and yet she is puzzled about what to do.

All right, my dear silly woman, here goes! What if you had a man—a creature—who drank, cursed, ran around with other women, who could not tell the truth even in business—who spent every cent, who never went out with you except looking like a bum, but could dress up "with the crowd"; a husband who was generous to every one but his own family!

Believe me, this is the life I have had for 24 years. You ask me why? Because I am not well enough or strong enough to face the world with children.

Please, Martha Carr, believe me; you are very wise and sweet and have helped me bear my burden. Good luck to you always. I am a lonely woman but you have given me wise ideas as to how to be better and happier and you have also taught me that things could be worse. And I do have beautiful, healthy, happy, sweet, adorable children. So you see, through them, I have lots to be thankful for.

EDITH.

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM A STUDENT in high school. I have written you before and have always been glad to receive your advice.

My problem is friendship. My father gives me a generous allowance and plenty of chances to entertain. There are a good many girls at school who know this and I have found that most of the girls I have chosen for friends are simply after the pleasure I can give them. This I have not minded so much, since it meant that I always had company; but it has finally grown serious.

For my birthday my father gave me a new car of my own. I have already found that it is going to cause trouble because the girls are all planning what we can do. Since my father is paying the gasoline bills these girls regard my car as just so much free transportation. Mrs. Carr, I have begun to realize that I must make some distinction between real friends and money diggers.

Can you suggest a way to do this?

R. K.

You can, at first especially, make it evident that you do not enter into the plans for using the car enthusiastically and change the subject by saying, "I don't know just what I'll do that day," or "just now, I cannot go," or "I don't know about that."

Those who put themselves in a position to get a cool answer or a delay, deserve it. Make a point of asking a girl who does not speak up in this way, to get into your car and drive away with her. Above all things, let them know that while you are always friendly, you can be counted upon to say "No." They will have more respect for you and those with any sensibilities and appreciation of you as a friend will understand. Don't let your car be a carry-all; but offer a lift when you choose.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

WILL YOU tell me what is the least number of years necessary to go to college in order to become a lawyer? I know it is something like eight. If I should go to summer school as well as to night school at college? Please answer this as soon as possible as a college term begins very shortly.

THANK YOU.

You can get all this information first hand by telephoning Washington University, PArkview 4700, Station 12. The evening courses are starting now.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

I am a man 26 years old and have been married for 11 months. Now my wife has left me and has filed suit for divorce. Now while I lived with this girl, I scrubbed the floors and helped her with the housework. I even came home and ironed the clothes and washed and ironed her clothes. She says I nagged her but for this or anything else I am sorry and this is all I can say. When she left, I begged her to come back and she said she would. Now she has filed suit for divorce. I gave her everything I possibly could afford and had a nice home for her but when I was sick in bed, she left me in the house by myself. Do you think she will reconsider this and come back, or should I just try to forget her? I did not drink or abuse her as far as striking her went. Still I love her dearly and she said she loves me. What do you think?

ONE WHO WILL NEVER FORGET.

Why not talk with your wife's mother and enlist her aid in trying to patch up your troubles? Of course, if all you have said is a fair picture of your marital life, your wife has no grounds for divorce, and you probably could prevent her from divorcing you by contesting the case.

"I EVEN CAME HOME AND IRONED THE CLOTHES."

Treat Disease Early, Advice Of a Physician

"All Too Often the Doctor Is Called in Last Stages of an Illness."

By
Logan Clendening, M. D.

THE Chinese, according to tradition, pay their doctors to keep them well and stop paying them only if they get sick. This plan has recently been advocated by the distinguished English surgeon, Lord Moynihan, who said in a London address that there would be far less sickness if all people would consult doctors regularly while they are in health instead of waiting until they are ill.

He believes that hospitals and universities should establish special professorships, the duty of which would be to study people who are well and endeavor to formulate a method of examination which would detect diseases in their incipiency before the patient is aware of any change. At present most diseases are detected first by the patient's own sensory system.

I thoroughly agree with Lord Moynihan as to the value of trying to diagnose disease in its earliest stages, but until the time when his instruments of precision are so delicate that they replace the human mind, and in a world where so many people are anxious to meddle with what is better left alone, what with innumerable operations and unproved treatments, I am not sure but what more harm than good would be done by universal examination of those who think themselves well. I do believe, however, that it is very important to see a doctor as soon as symptoms of any kind make their appearance. All too often the doctor is called in in the last stages of disease when he can do nothing, whereas he might have been able to do much in the incipiency.

As Lord Moynihan says, the average physician never is called in until nature's battle against disease has been almost lost. "He is in the position of a military commander who is never sent for until the army he is to command is virtually defeated already and fighting in the last ditch."

'Room Service,' Another Abbott Hit, to American

KEPT away from St. Louis until it could play here shortly before going into Chicago, "Room Service" arrives at the American Theater tonight. The company is one of those organized for the road, since the Broadway cast is still occupied there.

"Room Service" is the successor of those other George Abbott shows which have been providing fast farce for the country in recent years—"Three Men On A Horse," "Boy Meets Girl" and "Brother Rat." In all of them Abbott, who has a reputation as the country's leading "play doctor," has supplied something of writing, direction or production that has turned the trick to success.

Oddly enough, that talent has not served him particularly well this season with "All That Glitters," "Angel Island" or "Brown Sugar," but the Abbott gonfalon still flies high over "Brother Rat" and "Room Service" on Broadway so his reputation is undimmed.

When "Room Service" first came out in 1936, as a production of Sam H. Harris in Philadelphia, it lacked a proper third act and Harris called in George S. Kaufman to help the authors, John Murray and Ellen Boretz, rework it but without success. Soon he himself was more concerned with production of "You Can't Take It With You" and "Room Service" languished. Then it was taken over by Abbott, whipped into shape and bounded onto Broadway last May, to cheers from every side.

The comedy has been sold to the movies for a record price but will not go before the cameras until next fall. The Marx Brothers have been engaged for the leading roles.

Broadway from the inside supplies the atmosphere and color for "Room Service," which tells of a hotel in the Times Square district in which a theatrical producer has quartered his entire company during rehearsals without paying his bills. The only way he is able to do it is that his brother-in-law is manager of the hotel. Difficulties are only normal until a hotel supervisor arrives to check the books. How the producer makes him an unwilling "angel" for the show is the completion of the narrative.

Boretz and Murray, former scenario writers, derived the comedy from their own experiences. Having sold a musical short subject for $1000, they moved into a hotel to go into writing on a big scale. But their luck failed and before they received a notice of dispossession and the hotel went bankrupt, they owed $2000 or so.

The "Room Service" company here is made up largely of former "Three Men On a Horse" and "Boy Meets Girl" companies. Clinton Sundberg, who was here last season as a Hollywood screen play writer in "Boy Meets Girl," returns as the Broadway playwright who can't get his typewriter out of hock. Matt Briggs is the hotel manager, Reed Brown Jr., the producer, and James Lane the stage director. Support to these comes from Fleming Ward, Mary Cheffey, Nat Cantor, Patricia Palmer, Marshall Bradford, John Clarke, Michael Dalmatoff, Edward Nannery, John Carmody and Augusta Wallace.

At the opposite pole from "Room Service" is Maurice Evans in Shakespeare's "King Richard II," which follows at the American on Monday night, Feb. 14. Yet "King Richard II" was also one of the big successes in New York last spring and fall, Evans' total of 171 performances establishing an all-time record for Shakespearean plays.

"King Richard II" had not been played in New York for 60 years, or since Edwin Booth, when the Evans production was brought forth last spring. Evans, who grew up in England and became a leading actor at the Old Vic Theater, was invited to America by Katharine Cornell for "Romeo and Juliet" and "St. Joan" and remained to play Napoleon in "St. Helena," then "King Richard II."

The result is that the actor, in his thirties now, has announced plans for a permanent Shakespearean repertory in this country. Furthering that plan, he has been rehearsing "King Henry IV—Part I," in which he plays Falstaff, and has played it in Philadelphia, Toronto and Detroit. He will give one performance of "King Henry IV" at the American on Friday evening, Feb. 18.

"Judgment Day" At Little Theater For Two Weeks

ELMER RICE'S courtroom melodrama, "Judgment Day," which had a New York run during the fall of 1934, will be played by the Little Theater for two weeks, beginning Thursday evening.

The play, which was revived with success in London last summer and was seen by Director Harold Bassage of the Little Theater there, deals with dictatorship in a country of Southeastern Europe. Three defendants are in court charged with attempted assassination of the dictator.

Two of these are admitted leaders of the People's party and the third is a dull-witted, drugged individual linked to them only by circumstantial evidence. Hearing the evidence are five judges constantly under pressure of the Minister of Culture and Enlightenment to do the dictator's will. Plots and counter plots, comic testimony and violence take place in the courtroom, leading to the final event in which the populace, outraged by the verdict, revolts against the dictator.

Dorothy Coleman Roudebush and Robert Karnes play the political leaders, Hanns Kolmar the third defendant. Robert Hille is defense counsel, John Dawson, Bruce MacFarlane, William Miller, Alvin Queen and Eugene Krell the judges. Others in the cast of 27 are Jules Biegelsen as prosecutor, Harold Stark as the Minister of Culture and Enlightment, Robert Murdock, Mary Alice Hart, John Weaver, Keith Gunther, Bernard Ehrenreich and Jules Nodel.

Gene Autry in Person at Auditorium Next Week

Gene Autry, leading cowboy star of motion pictures, will appear in person at the 1938 Radio Stars' Jamboree in the Auditorium Convention Hall, next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and evening at 8:30. Autry has entered his own band in the hillbilly contests and will take part in an act with Frankie Morgan and Tony the Wonder Horse.

Burton Holmes' Series To Begin on Feb. 21

Burton Holmes' annual series of travel lectures at the Auditorium Opera House begins Monday evening, Feb. 21, with "A Motor Tour in Brightest South Africa." Motion picture and still pictures were taken by Holmes on a trip to South Africa last summer. Much of the material deals with the modern cities, resorts and national parks of the region.

On Feb. 28, the lecture will be "Italy and the New Roman Empire," also a recent addition to the Holmes repertory. On his way home from South Africa, Holmes took time for an extensive tour of Italy and flew to Tripoli for a tour of inspection with Gen. Balbo.

Subsequent evenings will be devoted to "The World-Wide British Empire," on March 7, "Picturesque Germany," on March 14, and "Down to Rio—Through Mexico and Over the Andes," on March 21.

Plebe Days Again On Screen, But Livelier

By Colvin McPherson

"HAVING been appointed a shipman in the United States Navy, I do solemnly swear"—

The audience at Loew's has to take the Naval Academy oath anew this week, but having done so, finds itself in the midst of a homecoming that is not only the best of the Annapolis movies, but one to take rank with fine films on any subject. "Navy Blue and Gold" is a somewhat amazing example of how much-used material may be made real and resilient again.

Several persons may share in the credit. Sam Wood was director of the picture. George Bruce wrote the screen play from his own novel. Cameramen covered the grounds on location. One thing is sure—somebody knew his business.

"Navy Blue and Gold" doesn't deviate even a fraction of a per cent from the Annapolis pattern. Three lads from widely separated stations in life enter at the same time, room together and play football. One has a sister and his two roommates are rivals for her affection. The guardian angel is an old officer. Pranks, carelessness, threat of dismissal and the big game with the Army as a climax. No one should go to Loew's expecting to hear a new story about the Academy.

The treatment is everything. Although "Navy Blue and Gold" still gives the impression we're going to play Japan in the Rose Bowl and that the Navy never wins unless it has a bit of disgrace or hospital sickness to spur it on, the picture is wise, amusing and strangely stirring from the first minute. The loyalties of Robert Young, James Stewart and Tom Brown are genuine. Their behavior is youthful, eager and manly. The comedy, of which there is much, arises naturally.

The only false notes are struck by a highly involved tale about Stewart's disgraced father and the father's vindication all of a sudden. And a prayer which Young makes to the image of Tecumseh on the campus seems somewhat too seriously pagan in a Christian country.

Sharing the glory with the future Admirals are Lionel Barrymore as the old salt, Florence Rice as Brown's sister, Billie Burke as his mother and Barnett Parker as the family butler.

Of equal worth is Loew's second picture, "Boy of the Streets," in which Jackie Cooper, that efficient little tear-tapper of a few years back, grows up into an embryo gangster. His acting gift still makes itself evident.

In many ways, "Boy of the Streets" is a better picture than "Dead End," which it greatly resembles. It has less "production value," the sets are less pretentious, the cast less notable, the writing less accomplished and the direction more frequently unsteady. But it escapes that over-emphasis that characterized "Dead End," has no burdening romantic theme and is a dozen times less theatrical.

"Boy of the Streets" is not the melodrama that can be crammed into 24 hours but the examination of a youth of the slums and the ways he may go. Jackie tosses his lot in with a racketeer but in an emergency his fine qualities come through, tragedy is averted and he enlists in the Navy, which is quite popular now. The whole course of events has the ring of truth.

Some of the picture, of course, is banal and silly. Kathleen Burke's part as the benevolent heiress who reconditions the tenements, Gordon Elliott as the young doctor who talks about broken bones and broken souls, are shabby inventions. Even hiring Marjorie Main, the gangster's mother from "Dead End," to play young Cooper's mother, was not altogether a blessing. It isn't the type of character called for.

But in the habits, the pranks, the interests of the boys' gang of which Cooper is leader are dozens of details ordinarily missed by Hollywood. Any movie patron will be grateful for them.

The Buccaneer.

IN "The Buccaneer," at the Fox, Cecil B. DeMille has again helped himself to some of the tastiest material in America's romantic past. Into the bayous of Barataria, he goes in search of America's great pirate and patriot, Jean Lafitte. To the apparent limit of his capabilities, he succeeds in bringing forth a fine pictorial pageant.

De Mille and his scenarist, Jeanie Macpherson, have woven the plot around Lafitte's aid to the young United States in the War of 1812 and Lafitte's part in the victory of New Orleans. The pirate didn't exactly help Andrew Jackson save the country, since the battle was fought after the U. S. A. and Great Britain had called it quits and signed a treaty, but Lafitte at least helped "Old Hickory" prove definitely that we can lick anybody. And that appeals to us all.

While De Mille's extras are burning the national capital, while Dolly Madison is riding away with the Declaration of Independence in her lap, while American ships are battering Lafitte's pirate city to pieces in mistaken vengeance, while the Battle of New Orleans is being fought, "The Buccaneer" is a full-bodied, virile show. When intermissions are taken to let Lafitte, an unpardonable social climber, kiss the hands of a lady of the aristocracy, "The Buccaneer" is pretty bad.

The character of Lafitte is the worst written of all in the picture, a kind of Hollywood hero with a few historical justifications tacked on. And why Fredric March should feel called upon to affect a false French accent when many other French characters in the cast use faultless English is quite beyond me. To hear him say "leetle" for little and "po-tay-TOH" for potato is the most disturbing part of the show.

Fully overshadowing March's work is that of Hugh Sothern as Andrew Jackson and Akim Tamiroff as the droll cannoneer, Dominique You. Both have accents which become them. Franciska Gaal, Hungarian actress who was imported to play a Dutch girl in love with Lafitte, also is acceptable.

So much of "The Buccaneer" is so exceedingly interesting of itself—the swamps, the sea fights, the land fights—that one wishes De Mille could do things a little less obviously, a little more in the manner of talking pictures, which he has yet to discover.

His pirates were plainly selected among the hardest-visaged men on the extra lists, and are so tough they are almost funny; his cannon always hit twice and sometimes three times in the same places, his stunt men repeat their stunts, his cameras always find the flag and the brave hands holding it up, his heroine goes to battle in a soldier suit and somebody should have slapped her. A social get-together at the pirate camp is so completely pirate in setting and costume that it might well be a beach party given by the Fredric Marches for the Charles Laughtons. And the way the pirates pick up "Yankee Doodle" is miraculous.

Very little support is given by "Love on Toast," comedy about a young man who wins a "Mr. Manhattan" contest and the girl publicity genius who promotes the competition. John Payne is the hero, Stella Ardler of the New York stage a very self-conscious heroine.

She's Got Everything.

GENE RAYMOND and Ann Sothern, teamed in many a light farce before, take the devious path to the altar again in "She's Got Everything," at the Missouri. Ann is the penniless daughter of a Long Island family, Gene a young coffee millionaire. Ann's creditors try to arrange a marriage so they can get their money. Victor Moore, Billy Gilbert and the unfunny Parkyakarkus are among the creditors. Helen Broderick is Ann's aunt. It ought to be more amusing than it is.

"Fit For a King," on the same program, gives Joe E. Brown a trip to Europe, much humiliation at the hands of a rival newspaper correspondent, peril from international plotters and finally the hand and affection of Helen Mack, who doesn't want to be Queen, anyway.

On the program, for week days only, is a Grantland Rice Sportlight short subject, in which an exhibition of the skill of a New Zealand sheep dog is given. It is perhaps the most fascinating item on the week's entire picture program.

Sonja Henie's unbounded popularity continues at the Ambassador, where "Happy Landing," her third feature picture, is sailing along in its second week. "Change of Heart," a domestic comedy of some merit, completes the offering.

Salzburg Guild in Mozart Opera

THE Salzburg Opera Guild from Austria, making its first American tour, will come to the Auditorium Opera House Tuesday evening as the fourth Civic Music League attraction of the season. The company of 100, including symphony orchestra, will be heard in Mozart's comic opera, "Cosi Fan Tutte."

"Cosi Fan Tutte," which was revived by the Metropolitan Opera in 1922 after being all but forgotten for a century, is typical of the Salzburg Guild's repertory. Although it devotes itself to both old and modern works, the Guild chooses those which are infrequently heard at standard opera houses.

The Mozart work was written toward the close of the composer's career, the year following the production of "Don Juan." The illness of his wife had entailed care and expense and to aid him, the Emperor Joseph commissioned him to write a new opera. It is recorded that the Emperor himself suggested the plot, which is not original with Mozart, since variants are encountered in Boccacio, "Don Quixote" and "Cymbeline." The title is freely translated "Thus Do All Women."

Eugen Schulz-Breiden, formerly of the Max Reinhardt Theater in Berlin, staged the production for the Salzburg Guild. Alberto Erede, talented young 29-year-old musician, will conduct. The opera, in two acts, is sung in Italian.

Most of the company are young singers, several still in their twenties. The cast here will include Grete Menzel as Fiordiligi, Hertha Glat as Dorabella, Aune Annti as Despina, Franco Peruli as Ferrando, Leo Weith as Guglielmo and Deszo Ernster as Alfonso.

DOROTHY COLEMAN ROUDEBUSH, ROBERT KARNES AND ROBERT HILLE OF THE "JUDGMENT DAY" CAST, LITTLE THEATER.

Symphony Gives First Of Three 'Pop' Concerts

Program of Lighter Works To Be Played at Opera House at 4:30 O'Clock This Afternoon—Others on Feb. 27 and March 6.

REVIVAL of Sunday afternoon "pop" concerts by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will take place at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Auditorium Opera House, with Vladimir Golschmann conducting a program of lighter musical selections. Two other such concerts are to be given on Feb. 27 and March 6.

Popular concerts formerly were an established feature of the Symphony's activities at the old Odeon but were abandoned after the 1930-31, except for occasional night programs. Their re-introduction now is occasioned by the belief that radio broadcasting has built up a new and larger audience for such programs. Admission prices are designed to be attractive, with most seats at 50 and 25 cents.

Today's selections are the Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla" by Glinka, the Air on the G String by Bach, the Scherzo from Dukas' "Sorcerer's Apprentice," the Andante Con Moto from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, Richard Strauss' Waltzes from "Die Rosenkavalier," Wagner's Prelude to "Lohengrin" and the Polka and Fugue from "Schwanda the Bag-Piper" by Weinberger.

Beginning with a student concert on Thursday afternoon, the Symphony enters on a series of concerts which not only includes the regular appearances at the end of the week but the second tour of the season, with engagements in Chicago and other cities in Illinois Iowa and Missouri.

Purely orchestral, without a soloist, the program for Friday afternoon and Saturday evening here features two works in memory of the late Maurice Ravel. These are his Suite for Orchestra: "Le Tombeau de Couperin" and Symphonic Fragments from the ballet, "Daphnis and Chloe." Schumann's Second Symphony, not played by the orchestra since the 1919-1920 season, and Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachmusik" are other program choices.

Ravel wrote "Le Tombeau de Couperin" in memory of the old French master of classic music. He conceived the work originally as a piano suite in the summer of 1914 but did not finish it until after the war. Four of the piano pieces in the suite he then scored for orchestra. The first piece is a graceful and dainty Prelude; second, Forlane, a lively dance popular in Paris during the eighteenth century; third, a brilliant Menuet, and fourth, Rigaudon, a gay dance favorite of the time of Louis XIII. The work is of the classical qualities characteristic of Couperin's compositions.

"Daphnis and Chloe" was written in 1910 for the Diaghlieff Ballet Russe. The score epitomized the modern French school in every aspect. Yet apart from its mere beauty, the score is a perfect balance of orchestration. The orchestral fragments to be heard are "Daybreak," "Pantomime" and "General Dance."

Schumann's C Major Symphony was sketched in 1845 and completed in 1846. It was first performed at a Leipsic Gewandhaus concert, under Mendelssohn's direction, Nov. 5, 1846.

The prelude, which introduces the first movement, is in the nature of an overture to the symphony, setting forth its story, furnishing a clew to its meaning, and constituting a bond of union between the various movements. Its opening theme, lofty and serious in character, is found in each of the four movements. The second movement, a scherzo, presents Schumann in one of his rare joyous moods and it has two trios, one lively and the other quiet. The third movement is an expressive and tender adagio, while the finale is full of ardor and force, working up to a joyful climax.

A Series of Radio Presentations dramatizing the History and Traditions of Greater St. Louis and its Surrounding Territory
HORSE CAR DAYS
How St. Louis first met and solved its transportation problem... the Case and Wells Omnibus Line of 1844 vintage...the memorable July Fourth of 1859 when the first horse car ran up Olive Street as a modern marvel...its later contributions to the growth of the city. The day that Bill Sherman gave up his $40-a-week job as president of the Broadway line to become one of the great Civil War generals... When passengers warmed their feet in hay and got out to walk up the steep hills on slippery mornings... a tuneful, nostalgic recapture of an era which had the horse car for its symbol!

WEAF Network Schedules Series Of 'Great Plays'

Dramas Ranging From Aristophanes' "The Birds" to Recent Broadway Productions Listed on KSD.

UNDER the title, "Great Plays," the NBC will produce for broadcasting on the WEAF network a weekly series of dramas, most of which have become classics of the theater. Beginning with Aristophanes' satirical extravaganza, "The Birds," the plays performed will range from those of ancient Athens to the present day and will include examples of morality drama, the comedia dell'arte of Italy, pre-Shakespearean and Shakespearean drama in England, classics of the French theater and the English theater of the eighteenth century, early American drama, the Irish theater and contemporary American drama. The broadcasts are scheduled on KSD from 4 to 5, St. Louis time, on Saturdays, starting Feb. 26.

The productions will be under the supervision of Blevins Davis, who has written the radio versions of the plays. Blevins, in May last, was a special representative and commentator for the NBC at the coronation of King George VI. He also did the research work for the hour-long broadcast, "Appointment at Westminster," which was widely praised, when aired twice by the NBC, because of the vividness with which it traced the history of British coronations from 1066 to 1937. He recently completed graduate work in the Department of Drama at Yale University.

While they will fit into the general radio educational scheme of the NBC, the productions will be designed primarily for entertainment. The locale of each play and the atmosphere of each period will be described by a narrator. A cast of picked actors is already busy rehearsing.

The tentative schedule for the "Great Plays" series follows: Feb. 26, Aristophanes' "The Birds"; March 5, the morality play, "Everyman," in which Edith Wynne Mathison and Charles Rann Kennedy won fame; March 12, "The Great Magician," written to represent a comedia dell'arte performance, such as was given in Italy at the old theater of improvization; March 19, Marlowe's "Tambourlaine"; March 26, Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream," with a special arrangement of Mendelssohn's incidental music; April 2, Moliere's "School for Husbands"; April 9, Sheridan's "School for Scandal"; April 16, "The Silver King," a melodrama by Henry Arthur Jones and Henry Herman, which was first performed in Wallack's Theater, New York, Jan. 27, 1833; April 23, Synge's "The Playboy of the Western World"; April 30, a play recently performed successfully on Broadway.

The story of an attorney who believed himself clever enough to commit a perfect crime will be dramatized in KSD's Public Hero No. 1 broadcast at 9:30 tomorrow night.

Gus Geiser of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., an engineer who stuck to his post in an engine cab when a steam pipe burst and suffered severe scalding before he could bring the train to a stop, will be the hero of Charles Martin's thrill period on the Johnny Presents program on KSD Tuesday evening.

"Clifford's" visit to the "Waite" home and his talk with "Ann" in an effort to bring about a reconciliation will be the principal episode in KSD's One Man's Family serial broadcast Wednesday evening.

Charles Wagner, said to be the world's most elaborately tattooed man, will be featured during Fred Allen's Town Hall Tonight Wednesday.

"Screen Test," a story of a screen idol and his meeting with seven mysterious old women in a haunted room in a strange, out-of-the-way hotel, will be the Lights Out playlet Wednesday night.

Lucille Manners has programmed the "Connais Tu le Pays" aria from "Mignon" among her songs for Friday night's concert in which Frank Black has succeeded Rosario Bourdon as musical director.

Saturday's Calling All Stamp Collectors speaker will be Congressman Sol Bloom, of New York.

Schedule Fixed For Educational CBS Programs

Night Time Periods on Three Days Set Aside for Broadcasts on KMOX, WBBM and Network.

TIMES for the night time educational programs which the CBS is preparing to broadcast on a regular schedule on the network and KMOX and WBBM, Chicago, have been fixed. Expectation is that broadcasting the programs will begin on or about March 1. Thus far, periods have been set aside on three nights, as follows: Wednesdays, 6:45 to 7 o'clock; Thursdays 9:30 to 10 and Fridays 6:45 to 7 and 9:45 to 10 o'clock. The 9:45-10 o'clock spot Friday nights will be devoted to public discussions. According to a statement by William Paley, president of the CBS, the reserved periods will not be sold for commercial broadcasts under any circumstances. Because of adherence in the past to a policy of requiring stations in the chain owned by the CBS, including KMOX and WBBM, to broadcast non-commercial programs regarded by Paley as of importance, St. Louis area listeners will be able to hear all of the new educational series.

The NBC is increasing its schedule of broadcasts for countries south of the Rio Grande. W3XAL, its short-wave station, has added an

Registration of Securities Will Stand or Fall With Electric Bond & Share Decision

Issues of Far-Reaching Constitutional and Economic Consequences to Be Argued in Supreme Court Tomorrow.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.

ORAL arguments on an issue of far-reaching constitutional and economic consequences will start before the United States Supreme Court Monday when attorneys for the Electric Bond & Share Co., will seek reversal and attorneys for the Government will seek affirmation of lower court decisions that the one of the largest holding company systems in the country must register with the Securities and Exchange Commission in compliance with the Public Holding Company Act of 1935.

The Electric Bond & Share case was selected by the Government for a narrow test of the Holding Company Act, particularly Section 11, containing the so-called "death sentence" provisions to reorganize or eliminate many pyramid intermediate and top holding groups.

As it is a test case, the Supreme Court's decision is awaited by public utility executives and investors and students of Government. If the Government loses, the foundation will be swept from under the Holding Company Act; if it wins, the first important step toward whatever decree of Federal regulation of interstate power operations is possible through regulation of the sale of securities and in the indirect management of local utilities will have judicial approval.

Opposing Counsel.

The Government will be represented by Robert H. Jackson, recently nominated to succeed Stanley F. Reed as Solicitor-General, Benjamin V. Cohen and Thomas G. Corcoran. Cohen and Corcoran were influential in drafting the act.

The company will be represented by Thomas D. Thatcher, a former Solicitor-General, and John F. MacLane of New York. Six hours have been allotted for the oral arguments.

The opposing counsel, in voluminous briefs filed with the court, have taken divergent views of the scope of the case. The Government, in its 253-page argument, contends that only the registration portions of the act Section 4 (A) and 5, are at issue. The company argues that the act as a whole must be considered and that the two registration sections are only "the trigger by means of which a trap is sprung from which there can be no escape except by death of the holding company or its transmigration."

The company asks for a declaratory judgment on the entire act, insisting that the various provisions are so inter-related that Sections 4 and 5 cannot be separated. The company's arguments were rejected by the United States District Court for Southern New York and by the Second Circuit Court of Appeals, which held that the two sections were separable and that the Electric Bond & Share and 12 of its intermediate companies were required to register. These courts dismissed the company's cross-complaint for an injunction against the S E C to prevent enforcement of the entire act, holding that the company had not proved any irreparable injury, present or imminent.

Constitutional Issues.

The constitutional issues involved are these: The Government claims the authority to enforce registration under the power of Congress to regulate commerce and Postal facilities. The company says the law, including the registration sections, violates the due process clause of the Fifth Amendment, the powers reserved to the states by the Tenth Amendment, and that it unconstitutionally delegates legislative authority to an administrative agency, the S E C.

The gist of the company's argument is in the conclusion of its brief where it says:

"The act invades the reserved powers of the States, in violation of the Tenth Amendment, in its interference with purely intra-state transactions and in its control of purely intra-state corporations in the exercise of charter powers given them by the states of their incorporation.

"The absence of any standard for the commission's action in the various matters entrusted to its control, except its untrammeled conception of the public interest and the interest of investors and consumers, makes the act an unconstitutional delegation of legislative powers to the commission in violation of Article I, Section 1 of the Constitution.

"The act is lacking in due process and offends against the Fifth Amendment. Fundamentally, its essential concept is not regulation by prescribed standards of law, but the transfer of control of corporations from their directors and stockholders to the commission in terms so broad that management is transferred from the owners of the property to the public. This power extends to the control of their essential activities, and even to the disposal of the property and assets and the reorganization of the companies themselves."

Government's Contentions.

Making copious use of the findings of the Federal Trade Commission in its five-year investigation of the public utility industry, the Government brief contends on the contrary that the interstate activities of Electric Bond & Share are continuous and substantial.

"More than 31 per cent of the total electric energy generated by Bond & Share subsidiaries," the brief says, "is transmitted across state lines, and more than 25 per cent of all electrical energy transmitted across state lines is handled by Bond & Share subsidiaries. The Bond & Share Co. handles approximately 15 per cent of all the electric energy generated in the United States, and the system also carries on a comparably extensive business in natural and manufactured gas.

"Bond & Share, itself or through its intermediate holding companies, has acquired control of gas and electric properties in 32 states, from Pennsylvania to Oregon and from Minnesota to Florida. The funds were obtained from the public by the marketing of securities through the mails and the channels on interstate commerce during periods when large writeups existed on the books of Bond & Share and the subsidiaries."

'National Public Interest.'

The brief continues that a system of such widespread operations is affected with a "national public interest" and that "Congress has the power to employ its authority over the mails and over interstate commerce to prevent the spread and perpetuation of evils and abuses which result from the public utility company's use of the mails and those channels of commerce."

The brief sharply differentiates between operating companies which confine their operations to a single region, often a single state, and the interstate activities of the holding companies.

In a footnote, the brief points out that Bond & Share does not own a single operating company in any one of the five states—New York, Maine, New Jersey, Delaware and New Hampshire—in which are incorporated the 13 companies which were directed by

What Use Economists?—By a Noted One

Principles and Tendencies Their Specialty, Not Soothsaying

If Lawyers and Politicians Had Looked to Facts, They Would Not Have Fixed the Impossible Reparation Terms of the Versailles Treaty.

Few in U. S. Believe There Is Any Magic in Money Management to Raise Prices; There Isn't, and Majority Said So.

By SIR JOSIAH STAMP

From The Living Age; Reprinted from The Listener, weekly organ of The British Broadcasting Corporation.

DO ECONOMISTS do more harm than good? That such a question can be thought of and put at me point blank to force me to justify my cloth before all the world is an indication of the parlous state into which we have fallen. It arises from the common complaints about economists: first, that they disagree among themselves; second, that the same economist says one thing today and the opposite next year; and third, that the economist can never tell you what is going to happen, or if he does, it doesn't. The business man talks of him contemptuously as a theorist, and altogether it takes quite a lot of pluck today to acknowledge in company that one is an economist—the lowest form of animate nature, so to speak.

Yet no! There are crowds of people who proclaim loudly that they are economists—the journalists, engineers, politicians and cranks of all kinds, who have never had any discipline in economic thought in their lives, but excogitate, by the light of nature, what they beforehand wanted to think. That is part of the trouble. Before any man can call himself a chemist or engineer, or lawyer or doctor, he has to undergo a prolonged period of disciplined study under recognized exponents, and satisfy rigid tests, and we all refuse to admit him on our premises unless he has—although we may perhaps call him a 'gifted amateur.' But a man dubs himself economist, rubs shoulders with the trained economist on what seem to the public to be even terms, and the resultant chorus is certainly discordant.

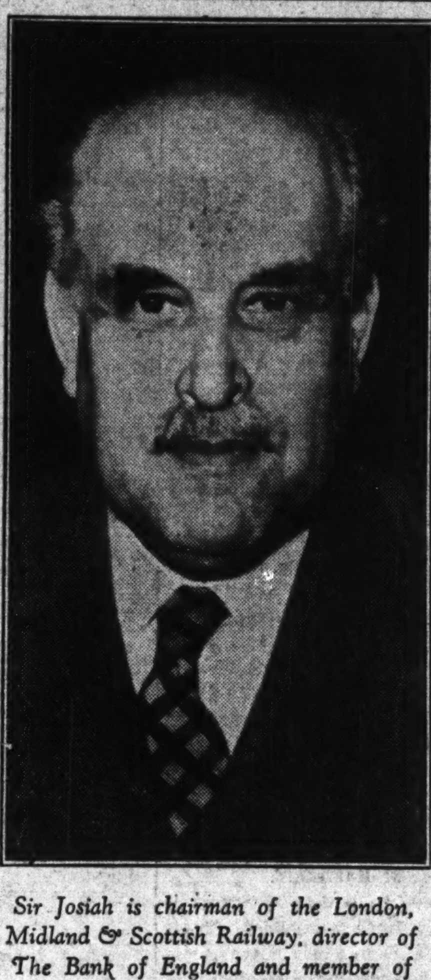
A Mode of Thought, Not Body of Unalterable Doctrine

You cannot expect a reliable body of doctrine from such a rabble, half of whom think only what they have made up their minds to think. Economics is a mode of thought, rather than a body of unalterable doctrine. The genuine student who has been through a real headache on the principle or theory of value can tell in five minutes whether another talker has ever been through the mill or not.

Now in every science there is a generally accepted body of knowledge covering most of the field, but on the fringe the greatest differences exist—it is certainly so in physics, where inanimate nature is under the eyes and fingers and can be controlled for experiment. Doctors proverbially differ, dealing with a single but complex animate body. Lawyers are the worst of all, for all they have got to do is the simple task of taking all the given facts, duly proved by an elaborate process and lying all in the past, and then applying a set of rules, self-made, grammatically determining the result—a result which is never put to the test of facts! And yet they differ like fun. Judgment for A in the first Court, reversed by two judges to one in favor of B in the Appeal Court, reversed by three judges to two for A in the Highest Court! Now the economist has a far more difficult job. Many of his facts lie in the future, the past ones unprovable, and the future hidden in masses of people affecting each other all over the world, in national policies and psychologies, subject to unknown harvests and a hundred contingencies, and yet you have the sauce to expect him to tell you exactly when to sell out your United Oils and buy Moravian Tea shares!

Some Principles Necessary, But Not Always Understood

The business man has to act on some sort of principle, even if it is nearly guesswork, and it is all very well for him to sneer at the theorist. The business man just practices the theories of thirty years ago! I admit many economists reason too long in the abstract, without putting a tape-measure upon reality. But the real economist studies facts all the while, and groups them in principles and tendencies, and makes an ordered body of knowledge of them. He may be too cocksure, but more likely you take up his views, strip them of all their conditions and then triumphantly show them to be working out wrong. I know how seldom an economist is correctly quoted by a layman. The ordinary man hates anything but a simple statement, while economic life is complex and any simple statement in economics is always wrong.



Sir Josiah is chairman of the London, Midland & Scottish Railway, director of The Bank of England and member of The Economic Advisory Council. He holds honorary degrees from Oxford, Cambridge, Edinburgh and many other English and American universities. Author of many books and treatises on economic statistics, taxation, governmental finance and money, he has traveled extensively, frequently in the United States, making observations. He visited St. Louis last June.

Disagree amongst ourselves, do we? Well, over 90 per cent of the area of the subject we have close agreement by the majority, and over the remaining 10 per cent a healthy unrest. Where thought passes into action, the thought may be defeated by politics, by international complications. Do more harm than good? Well, if the passions of war-weary peoples at Versailles had allowed the economists to be heard on reparations and international debts, the statesmen would never have erected that monstrous edifice—that is as I see it—which took over twelve years of desperate recriminative international conferences, treaty-breaking and financial disaster, before the truth was reluctantly discovered by the people—truth which the economist had proclaimed all along. Think what a different world it would have been if we had had no occupation of the Ruhr and no collapse of the German mark!

Arithmetic of Reparations That Politicians Had to Learn.

The economist taught, in season and out, that reparations were limited by what the creditors would accept in goods and services in competition with their own manufacturers, and by what the debtors could export without upsetting the exchanges, and thus put the totals from the very beginning at figures only one-fifth to even one-tenth of what lawyers and politicians declared was just and possible. At each crisis the economist urged the reluctant nations a little nearer to the truth, but that early obstinacy among the politicians created a world situation which broke up the whole system of international debt and reparation payment, and what might have been possible with care and organization at the beginning became ultimately impossible.

The economist is generally right in his statement of tendencies, but the world is too complex for him to put a date on them, or gauge their degree. Thus some of us were prophesying an ultimate collapse in Wall Street as early as 1927, but in successive years we were laughed to scorn because it had not come. But it did, and much worse than any economist had foreseen.

Have you ever thought how ridiculous it would be if the economist really did foretell the actual date when interest rates would have to be changed, when an exchange rate would alter, or when the peak of price of rubber or of some other stock would be reached? Everyone who believed the forecast would want to anticipate the date, to buy or to sell, as the case might be, to avoid loss or to make a special profit, and so the date itself would be ruined. An economic forecast as a guide to individual conduct is a contradiction in terms; the more people believed it, the more likely it would be to be defeated! So the economist can only prophesy what people who are kept in ignorance of this prophecy are likely to do!

The economist will not make things easy for people—as the young lady said, 'Everything I want to do is either illegal, immoral or fattening,'—so all the short cuts to prosperity are really at bottom uneconomic, and hence the unpopularity of the economist.

Not Always Correct; Some Instances When They Were.

Do I urge that the economist has always been right, and his view ought always to prevail? Of course not—they certainly have spoken with a divided voice. Some said the Great War could not last very long because finance would be exhausted, but new means were found of mobilizing the nations' resources. Some said Norman Angell's Great Illusion was proved all wrong, because there was not the collapse he predicted. Certainly he had not provided for the Government's coming behind the market and taking over all commercial bills. But as the years roll on, his central thesis becomes more and more clearly proved: that no one can make a profit nowadays out of war. Some economists advocated that Great Britain go back on the gold standard early in 1925—I was of the small minority who questioned its wisdom—and the swift nemesis that came in the failure of our coal exports, the consequent mining trouble, the General Strike and the coal stoppage showed how far-reaching it really was.

A few economists in the United States have been much too optimistic about the power of monetary management to raise prices and restore prosperity under all conditions, but the majority have warned and expounded in vain. Economists have been almost invariably right in their prognostications of the consequences of various stages in the tortuous progression of French finance. We want more economists of a better average quality—more money spent on economic research, and a better hearing for them when they pronounce views, and a veto on quacks.

Only Absurdity and Folly Without Their Guidance.

Does the economist do more harm than good? What an absurd question. If you did not have him, you would have debased coinage, unwise banking, crazy credit, unsound public finance, trade crises all the time, tariffs worse even than today ruining the productive powers of the world under the guise of promoting the interests of little bits of it, attempts to make pint pots smaller, and the quarts to go into them larger—in fact, every generation would repeat every economic folly that short-sighted mercantile selfishness or blown-out cloudy idealism has committed through the ages.

Only the experience accumulated and expounded by the economist, and only the struggling effort to apply its lessons to new conditions, free from wishful thinking, can keep the world from making all the old mistakes. The business man or his government will put on a duty to protect a particular market, and succeed, but fail altogether to reckon with the effect on the export trade. Perhaps they might do some price-fixing of a commodity, and drive it out of production in the process; or raise a wage rate in an industry, and let it open to competition which kills it; or uphold an exchange rate which is depressed through the export of capital and foreign investment, and by so doing subsidize the investment; or enter a restriction scheme to maintain prices, which encourages the outsider to flood the market.

There is no such thing as a simple direct effect in economic life without numerous reactions and readjustments often more far-reaching and important than the direct effect. The economist's job is the unpopular one of warning you about them. The economist's training is the only one which teaches that you cannot act upon one factor in society without many reactions in unexpected quarters. He is the student of reactions. Of course, he often misses, and a miss is as good as a mile. Economists do not co-ordinate their views sufficiently before rushing into being public advisers. They need constant criticism and questioning to keep them from wandering away from the world of facts into abstractions. So go on asking the silly question: 'Do economists do more harm than good?' and goad them into indignant reply.

Vast Red Army Well Trained With Three Self-Supporting Forces Stationed in Far East

Preparedness Attained on Asiatic Frontier And Whole War Establishment Has Great Political as Well as Military Potentialities.

(Reprinted from the Manchester Guardian.)

WHATEVER happens in the Far East, Soviet Russia will try to order its policy so as not to be drawn openly into a war between other states. Nevertheless, as a political factor this army plays a great potential role. The organization of the Red Army is far from being completed to plan, but for some years past it has been carried so far that we may take it that military preparedness on the Asiatic frontier has been attained.

The so-called Far Eastern province has now a self-supporting army, with its own technical and victualling bases (the last in the form of militarized collective farms); it is really three armies, with headquarters at Khabarovsk, Chita and Ulan Bator. The great Siberian railway has been double-tracked, and a geographically less exposed parallel line running north of the main one, is nearing completion. More than this, the necessary organization has been already completed to enable war to be waged on the Asiatic front virtually without drawing on the resources of European Russia. Besides the industrial plants in the territory of the Far Eastern army there are today enough industrial centers in Siberia and the Urals to provide for the army and navy fighting on the Far Eastern frontier.

Still more important is the completion of the Turksib, the line which connects Russian Central Asia with Siberia and so with the Far East. This not only makes it possible to carry on an Asiatic war almost entirely with forces drawn from Asiatic Russia but creates an additional supply base in the great republic of Kazakstan.

Active Strength.

The estimates made of the military strength and armaments of the Red Army are not all authentic, if only because each day brings an increase in men and material. About two years ago the active strength of the Soviet army was officially given as 1,300,000. Even this does not exhaust the units on active service. There are troops of the Commissariat of the Interior (G. P. U.), in two main divisions, one distinguished by light-blue caps and the other by green. The light-blue uniformed troops are the so-called Interior Guards, largely made up of infantry units, strongly armed for close fighting—an infantry elite, with relatively little cavalry but a strong artillery arm. The troops with green caps are the frontier guards; they are specially selected troops and are carefully instructed. They form frontier brigades, armed with every kind of weapon, and in the event of war they would be a valuable advance guard. The number of troops in the Commissariat of the Interior is difficult to estimate, but it must be at least from 300,000 to 500,000.

Different Categories.

The men of the G. P. U. are mainly conscripted; there are also large numbers, again difficult to estimate, of professional troops. To these troops belong the railway protection companies. They consist of experienced men, specialy well trained, and live in barracks. Most of them would, of course, be relieved in the event of war by inferior formations so as to fight as crack troops at the front. The post and telegraph guards, and the great numbers of industrial guards, are organized in the same way, but the police, as a rule, are not militarized: it is probably assumed that in time of emergency they would be needed at their posts.

Beyond this, the number of retired recruits grows greater every year. The old Russian social democracy believed in the principle of the Swiss militia, and the Red Army was accordingly given a double character by the late People's Commissar Frunze. Only a small proportion of the recruits were enrolled for the two years' service in the regular army. By far the greater number entered territorial units, made up on the militia principle, whose composition changed every few weeks. This principle of army building has been given up in recent years. There are virtually no more territorial units; they have almost all been merged with the regular army.

The military training of the soldiers of the Red Army is extremely good, and every boy and an increasing number of girls from 16 years of age are given preliminary training for their coming military service. The defense society Osoaviakhim maintains shooting ranges and wooden towers for parachute practice in almost every village, and the society also covers almost every field of military studies. At 18 years the obligatory military training begins.

Problem of Officers.

The officer problem, still unresolved, is one of the most important. The rise of ex-workers and peasants to positions of command was encouraged from the beginning for reasons of political expediency; thus today there is no homogeneity in the cultural and social content of the officers' corps of the Red Army; it contains also, especially in the higher ranks, many officers of middle-class extraction and a considerable group of officers from the old Imperial Army. The standard of education of a great part of the corps of officers, particularly in the ranks from Captain to Colonel, is extremely low; but now an intermediate school education is normally required for a career as an officer. Only a small number of non-commissioned officers of long service who have passed the necessary examinations are now considered for officer's rank. All officers' training schools are uniformly organized and have three or four year courses, according to the arm of the service. "Passing out" from one of the military academies is essential now as qualification for the higher commands.

Great Reorganization.

The founding of the General Staff as a separate institution (formerly it was a section of the so-called Supreme Staff) was part of the great reorganization of two years ago, and another new institution was also created—the General Staff Academy. This is not so much an institute for study as for military research, though recently officers have been appointed to the academy for training. The Generals and officers of this General Staff Academy wear especially fine uniforms, with black velvet collars and other distinguishing marks, recalling the uniforms of the old Imperial General Staff. To raise the authority of the officers in the eyes of the troops and the people, title, parades, uniforms, great banquets and many surface distinctions have been instituted.

The Red Army is badly off for officers of the reserve. A year's service after leaving the intermediate school makes a reserve officer. Their military training cannot be considered sufficient. In the reserve, too, are many whom chance brought to position of command in the Civil War. The heterogeneity of origin and education among officers of the reserve is even greater than in the regular army. Here an attempt is being made to improve matters, and commissions have now begun the examination of the reserve officers. In important industrial establishments the reserve of officers is knit together

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Note on Business "Uncertainty."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

APPARENTLY, the consensus among the various groups of business and industrial leaders of the nation is that the Roosevelt depression, pardon me, recession, was brought on chiefly because of a feeling of uncertainty on the part of business as to what the New Dealers plan to follow as their future policies.

In other words, if business men had an opportunity to sell, say, a flock of motor cars or electric refrigerators, they would not do so. They would have us believe that they would allow their factories to close and pass up a chance to make a nice profit, simply because they are uncertain as to future governmental policies. Boloney!

It is difficult to understand just why these otherwise intelligent leaders of business are unable to put their finger on the real cause of our national stagnation. It is difficult to understand why those leaders fail to realize that we are experiencing recession upon depression, because we are attempting to limp along under an obsolete system of distribution which should be relegated to the ash heap of the horse-and-buggy era.

If our leaders would make a serious study of our system of distribution, they would find that the present system was slowly dying from arterio-sclerosis during and at the close of the Hoover regime. They would discover also that the short spurt of pseudo-prosperity during the first term of Mr. Roosevelt was induced by an 18-billion-dollar alphabetical hypodermic administered to the dying patient. They would find also that the recession followed inevitably, simply and solely because hypodermics are not permanent cures.

WILLIAM LEE STONE.

Praises Missouri Pacific Service.

THE letter signed N. G. E., criticising the Missouri Pacific's suburban service, was a surprise to me, as an unfair thrust at a company that has made the effort in these many years with its public-spirited work to be worthy of this community.

I am not an employe of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, but I do know that it has in the past and does today everything within its power to give adequate service, and as a daily commuter I can testify to the fact that it is good.

The many citizens of Webster Groves and Kirkwood who ride the Missouri Pacific, I am sure, will join me in testifying that we have no complaint.

AS a piece of good writing, as a terrific indictment, as a tribute to worthy stewardship and as a challenge to action, "The Shame of a City," published in the Post-Dispatch of Feb. 4, is excellence plus.

Simple Way to Create Jobs.

THE Mayor is trying to find a way to increase employment, and I want to suggest a simple manner in which to do this. It would take a little time and patience on the part of employers, but it would mean an employed and happy people. Discharge all married women whose husbands are earning $100 per month or more, also all women whose fathers are well able to support them. I am sure a great many jobs would be made available in this way.

Years ago, it was a disgraceful thing for women to work outside of the home, but today the position is the thing. That is one of the reasons for our economic condition.

DEFENDER OF THE UNEMPLOYED.

O, Dale!

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I FEAR that Dale Carnegie will lose friends and alienate lots of people in his assertion that Maryville, Mo., is a non-college town.

Medical Care for the Poor.

I AM glad to read that at least one physician ("A Physician on Inadequate Medical Care," editorial page, Feb. 2), realizes the seriousness of the problem of medical care for people with limited incomes.

A year ago we had an operation in our home that kept us in bondage for almost a year. And it was an operation considered as ordinary nowadays, not serious; and I know the doctor didn't charge us as much as he does some of his other clients, none of whom belong to the wealthy class.

We have no car, no home of our own (we live in a very small apartment), and we can't afford children. I say the latter because I know I don't have the physical endurance I should; and I know only too well that a sickly mother does not make for a happy home when the family income is low.

ANON.

THE CHOICE BEFORE JAPAN.

The "parallel" notes sent to Japan by the United States, Great Britain and France (the signatories to the London naval pact of 1936) mean that if Japan embarks on a program of super-battleship building, as apparently she has intended to do, the last remnant of the barrier hopefully erected against a world naval armament race by the conferences of 1922 and 1930 will be destroyed.

Because of the withdrawal of Japan from the London conference of 1936, only a little of this structure now remains: there is no limit on the number of ships which a nation may build. What is left is merely the London Treaty's restraint on the size of ships and guns, and this restraint, under the "escalator" clauses of the treaty, may be shaken off by the signatories if a non-signatory Power builds beyond the prescribed limits.

Such is the background of the courteous but firmly worded note which the United States, simultaneously with similar action by France and Great Britain, has sent to Japan. The immediate inspiration, in the language of the American note, is the "persistent and cumulative reports which, in the absence of explicit assurances from the Japanese Government that they are ill-founded, must be deemed to be authentic, that Japan has undertaken or intends to undertake construction of capital ships and cruisers not in conformity with" the London Treaty limits.

This is the diplomatic way of taking notice of reports, among others, that Japan is building or planning to build two battleships of 43,000 tons each, armed with 18-inch guns. The London Treaty puts a limit of 35,000 tons on the size of battleships and of 16 inches on guns.

The notes of the United States and the other Powers ask for information. Is it true that Japan intends to exceed the 1936 treaty limits? If Japan's reply is unsatisfactory, or no reply is received by a given date, the United States, after consulting with the other treaty Powers, will be constrained to resume "full liberty of action." This can mean only that the United States in that event will consider the building of ships to match Japan's. The door, however, is held open to a conference with Japan, with a view to limitation, even though it be true that she is contemplating naval construction beyond the treaty limits.

All this is an eminently proper course of action on the part of the United States. It is, indeed, a course made inevitable by the state of the world today and by the good faith which the United States owes to those Powers that joined with her in the London Treaty. The United States and these other Powers are seeking to find out, officially, what are Japan's intentions. It is their duty so to do. Is Japan, under pressure from a militarist party doubtless intoxicated by the Chinese adventure, in truth planning to build new floating fortresses of a fighting strength beyond that to which the United States, Great Britain and France have voluntarily limited themselves? Or is the report of this intention without basis?

Japan's reply, or failure to reply, will have deep significance. She can help to end the immediate threat of a new armament race that would pile on the world a new back-breaking burden of debt. Or she can tear down the last vestige of the barrier against such a race. The United States—and most of the rest of the world—will await her decision with the hope that she will convincingly disavow the reported grandiose schemes of her militarists.

THE HUMANE SOCIETY'S BENEFACTRESS.

The community owes a debt of gratitude to Miss Mary Mitchell, who has been revealed as the perennial guarantor of the deficit of the Humane Society. The Humane Society represents the collective conscience of us all in the care of dumb animals. If a pup must be rescued from a sewer, an injured dog treated or destroyed, or a fiend brought to book for poisoning or torturing some of our pets, the Humane Society usually gets the call.

In a city of the size of St. Louis, all this costs a substantial sum annually. Usually the society shows an excess of expenditures over receipts. And each year this happens, Miss Mitchell steps forward to make good the deficit, as she has just done this year by a special donation of $6634. In the past 15 years, she has given more than $50,000 to offset deficits. These gifts have been all the more gracious for having been made anonymously.

ONE MILLION POTENTIAL FISH—NO ACTION.

For apparently sound reasons of its own, the State Conservation Commission has abandoned the use of Forest Park lakes as a fish hatchery.

But the Federal Government, through the chief of the Bureau of Fisheries, is willing to step in and take over the lakes for hatchery purposes.

The money for this is available in a lump sum appropriation made by Congress to the Bureau of Fisheries. In fact, a sufficient sum has been set aside by the bureau to operate the hatcheries this spring. To facilitate such action, the Conservation Commission has consented to leave the brood stock in the lakes.

What's the hitch?

The hitch is that the Federal Government cannot take over the hatcheries unless it is specifically authorized to do so by city ordinance.

Why does not the city, then, pass such an ordinance, considering it will cost the city nothing and since, if it were passed, the Federal Government would grow a million fish in Forest Park lakes this year to distribute to the State's depleted streams?

That's the mystery.

It appears to us that here is a cause of vital interest to all disciples of Izaak Walton hereabouts, something they might very properly bring to the attention of the Mayor and the Board of Aldermen.

A GAY HAT IN THE RING.

Dudley Field Malone is out for Governor of New York. It doesn't make any difference to him which party nominates him. Nominally he is a Democrat, but if the Democrats don't put him on the ticket, he is ready to fly the Republican colors. Indeed, he'll take a whirl at it as the candidate of the American Labor party if worst comes to worst. And if "the political bosses pull any dirty work," his name will show up on the ballot as an independent candidate. Mr. Malone is under no illusions about the office seeking the man. Research shows, he says, that important offices go to men who set their caps for them.

It would be strange if such a candidate did not have some definite ideas about what he ought to do in office. Well, Mr. Malone thought up several. In the first place, he would veto 50 per cent of all bills enacted by the State Legislature. Second, he would "do New York City once a month" to demonstrate that he is "a healthy, happy and normal American citizen." Third, he would abandon use of the automobile for the Governor and employ the airplane to take him into a different section of the State every week to obtain "the people's angle first-hand." Making his landings with a parachute, no doubt, and entering the homes of his constituents via the chimney a la Santa Claus.

MISSING: 85,000 GHOSTS.

In the general registration held in Kansas City last week, an estimated total of 178,000 names was placed upon the books. In the registration for the presidential election of 1936, the total was more than 263,000 names. In other words, 85,000 ghosts have disappeared from their usual haunts.

An interesting figure—that 263,000. As we pointed out in an editorial of Oct. 1, 1936, it represented 63 per cent of Kansas City's population. By comparison, St. Louis had a 1936 registration of 429,847, or approximately 51 per cent of total population.

Jesse W. Barrett, Republican candidate for Governor, said: "The very size of Kansas City's vote registration makes it fraudulent upon its face." And the Kansas City Star said:

> The list contains many thousands of frauds, and is an amazing revelation of the audacity of the Democratic machine in placing pads upon the registers in the face of an unparalleled registration of legitimate voters. The figure reveals that the machine sacrificed none of its heavy pad of past registrations and elections.

An official recount showed only 3000 names "not found." It was a fraudulent recount. A cursory survey by the Kansas City Star and Times showed many ghost registrations.

The new registration figures reflect, first, the series of vote fraud trials conducted by Federal Judges Reeves and Otis, which have resulted in many convictions and no acquittals; second the appointment by Gov. Stark of an Election Board free of Pendergast control. It is these things that have caused the rats of the Pendergast machine to run to cover. It is these things that have caused 85,000 ghosts to evaporate in a little more than two years' time.

And while the Federal Government and an independent Governor are acting to make Kansas City elections honest, Kansas City officials who took an oath to enforce the law have not instituted a single prosecution.

PLEA FOR ANOTHER HAND-OUT.

The latest gimme brigade to besiege Congress is composed of its members' private secretaries. These citizens, who earn from $3000 to $5000 a year, consider themselves sadly under-privileged because they get no mileage allowance. They are the only class of Federal employes, their spokesmen point out, who must travel in line of duty at their own expense. So a bill has been prepared asking for a mileage allowance of 10 cents a mile, or a total of about $275,000 a year. This is modest indeed, since their bosses get 20 cents a mile.

Our hearts bleed for the secretariat, but we fear their cause is ill-omened. They may have heard something about governmental economy, and the voters' reaction against their employers after such a hand-out might not be favorable.

There is a way out for the secretaries, however. The Congressmen's 20-cent allowance is four or five times more than the amount actually needed for travel and incidentals. Can't the secretaries do a bit of persuasive lobbying and induce their employers to divvy up?

SENATOR SMITH RETIRES FROM SPRINGFIELD.

There will be sincere regret in many quarters that T. V. Smith has decided not to stand for re-election as a State Senator in Illinois. His candidacy four years ago was taken lightly in both his own party and the Republican opposition. But the red-haired Chicago University professor of philosophy defeated a sitting Senator and served through two regular sessions as well as several special sessions.

He has made an excellent record. Though a Democrat, he was a sharp-tongued opponent of the majority's ouster of a Republican Senator in a baseless election contest. He has been a stanch supporter of civil liberties and progressive and social causes generally. When he took the floor, his colleagues listened. His report as chairman of the 1935 Committee to Visit the State Normal Colleges was a notable document; its literary grace and sound sense have made it one of the most sought after legislative reports ever turned in at Springfield.

In his four-year term, Senator Smith has sponsored only one bill. That bill is now a law and a good one. It has given Illinois a Legislative Council designed to provide continuous legislative attention to the problems of the State. If it enjoys the co-operation and support it should have, the council will save time and money and materially improve lawmaking at Springfield.

If T. V. Smith should win a seat as Congressman-at-large, a post being proposed for him by his friends, Springfield's loss would be Washington's gain.

MERAMEC SPRING TO THE PEOPLE.

The will of the late Mrs. Lucy Wortham James of New York (a native of St. James, Mo.), bequeaths a 1400-acre tract of Ozark Missouri, including Meramec Spring, one of the State's natural wonders, to the Missouri diocese of the Protestant Episcopal church for use as a public park. The terms of the bequest are such that if the gift is not accepted by the church body for maintenance for public recreational purposes, the tract and its magnificent spring shall then be offered to the Federal Government. In the event that neither accepts it, the trustees of the estate are to administer it for charitable uses. Thus the prospect is that whatever authority assumes direction of the area, it will be devoted to the pleasure and benefit of the people of the State. Clearly, this is as it should be. Meramec Spring, historic as the center of Missouri's early iron industry, will be a notable addition to the growing list of tracts set aside for public enjoyment.

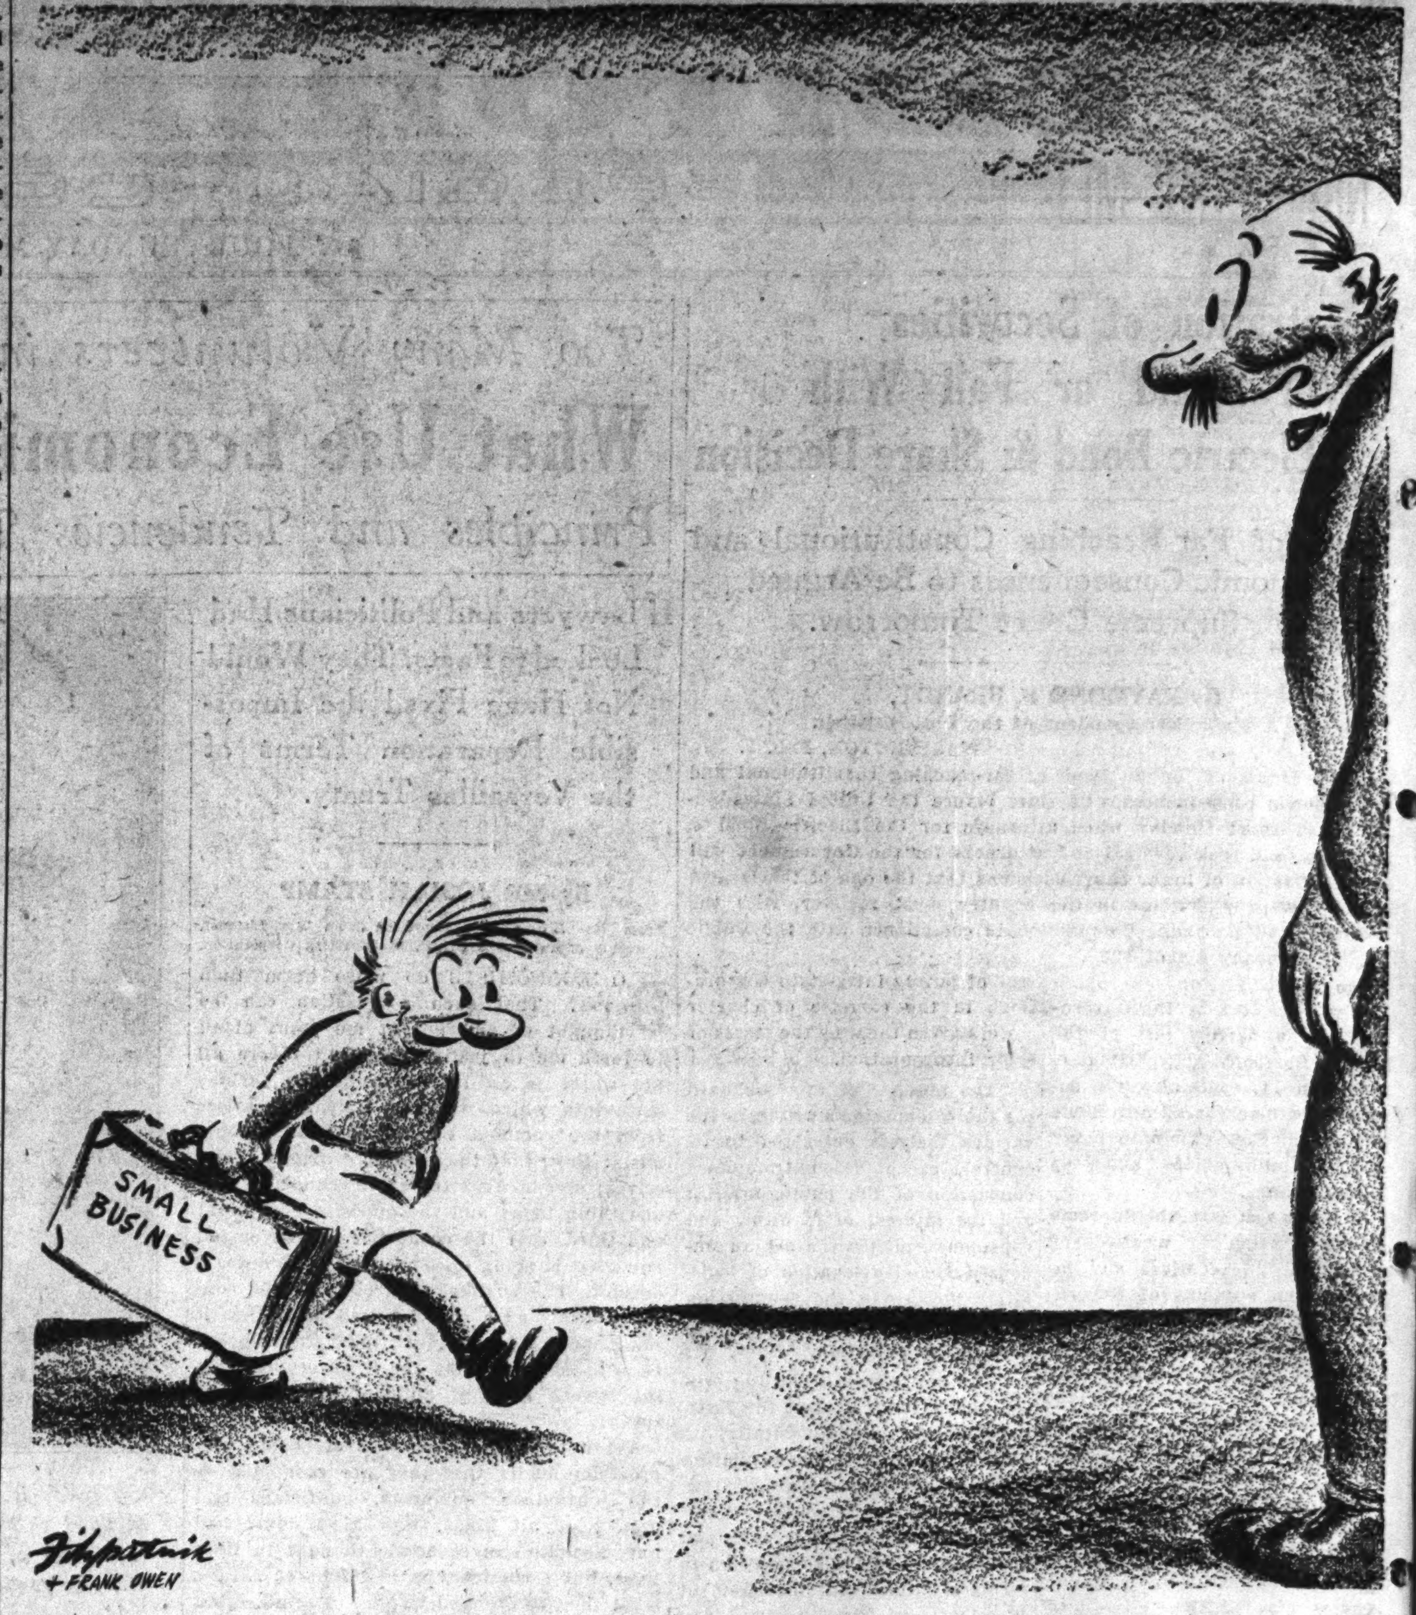
The revision of the statutes is to be "staggered," so that 46 legislators, instead of the original 16, will share in the reward. You might say, then, that in Missouri patronage is the goose that relays the golden egg.



"WELL, JASPER, DID YOU STRAIGHTEN WASHINGTON OUT?"

Stabilizing the Exchanges

Price of gold should be determined in each country by supply and demand, not by arbitrary laws, says export authority; free movement of goods in foreign trade is needed to lighten demand on yellow metal; if dollar is allowed to find its natural level and budget is balanced, exchange rates will "take care of themselves."

WHAT can we suggest that the United States Government do about the stabilization problem?

In the first place, we can ask for a vigorous continuance of the constructive efforts President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull are making to take the stress off gold as a medium for the settlement of international balances. The administration's trade agreements program is designed to secure a freer flow of international trade throughout the world. This policy, which Mr. Hull has termed "enlightened nationalism," is a first vital step toward stability in the exchanges. Until goods can again move freely in foreign trade, the demands existing upon gold will make impossible any sound approach to exchange-rate stability.

Meanwhile, the Treasury should begin redeeming its currency and bonds in gold, not only to foreigners but to any American citizen. I cannot for the life of me see why my Government should discriminate against me by refusing me the privilege of buying some gold with my Government paper, when it is offering that privilege to foreigners.

Furthermore, the finest kind of gold reserve that any country could have is a gold reserve held in the banks throughout the country and in the socks of its citizens. In the case of domestic emergency, this gold should be attracted into the national Treasury by raising the offered price for it, and not by confiscation.

This would provide not only a more democratic solution of the gold problem, but a sounder economic solution as well. I say "sounder economic solution" because I would far rather trust the integrated wisdom of these individual Americans in taking care of my country's gold reserve than I would a few Government experts in Washington—Democrats or Republicans. My fellow-citizens' integrated decisions on whether to buy or sell gold might sound less brilliant than those coming out of Washington, but they would be wiser and surer.

Should the Treasury sell gold to American citizens or anybody else at $35 an ounce? I reply, without blasphemous intent, "God only knows!"

In the countless arguments to which I have listened during the past few years, as to whether the dollar is "over-valued" or "under-valued" at $35 an ounce for gold, I have not heard of one expert who has constructed a statistical approach to determine what the dollar really is worth in terms of gold. I must confess that I haven't the slightest idea myself whether the Treasury should redeem its paper at the rate of $35, or $20.67, or $30, or $40 per ounce of gold. Nor have I met anybody else who has the remotest idea of what the dollar is really worth.

Accordingly, I would suggest that an auction market be set up in New York by private banks or financial men (like the London gold auction market) and that the price be determined there daily by the law of supply and demand. In some reasonable time—two or three years perhaps—the price of gold in terms of the paper dollar would have settled down, or up, to some new normal to replace the rate of $20.67 per ounce which we abandoned as sub-normal, and the rate of $35 per ounce which we picked out of the air.

When the new normal seemed to have established itself, we could fix the price for gold—and let moderate fluctuations in the value of gold vis-a-vis Government paper be taken care of thereafter by variations in the interest and discount rates in the money markets.

And, of course, our old friend the national budget should be balanced. The I O U's of a careless, sloppy, profligate government are worthless. Anybody responsible for the treasury of a government, who is confronted with an unbalanced budget, is bound to find himself in hot water in his monetary maneuvers—the same kind of hot water a private institution or individual gets into under similar conditions.

I think I can reasonably claim that in talking this way, I am not acting like a frightened old maid. During the past 18 years, I have observed abroad, at first hand, a score of countries suffering from budget sickness, and I have traveled extensively among their peoples, who were compelled to endure the economic misery that developed as the result of depreciated currencies.

Let the cross-rates of exchange go hang! Never mind about "stabilizing the exchanges." Let us work toward stabilization of the dollar in terms of gold and concern ourselves principally with the effect of such stability on our own domestic economy. It is true that gold fluctuates in value, but it is still a far better anchorage for our dollar than any of the foreign currencies.

Trying to stabilize the cross-rates of exchange with several of the countries abroad is only a pipe dream, for two reasons:

First, no two of the countries will agree to peg their cross-rates with each other, because each country feels that its own domestic monetary problems, price levels, etc., are far more important than the cross-rate problem. Each country, therefore, wants to be free to make its internal adjustments, and to change the gold content of its currency, without being hampered by a cross-rate agreement.

Second, government officials abroad do not want to peg the cross-rates of exchange. Who knows what the cross-rates should be? Any of the foreign officials who are frank enough to state their position openly will say that they do not know. They tell us, quite properly, that they would rather let the rates gravitate to the normals induced by internal economic conditions, by the flow of international trade, and by the movements of capital. In other words, they feel that the cross-rates of exchange should be established by the law of supply and demand, operating freely on the exchange markets. I think they are right.

Our Government should have a monetary policy based on a few simple truths. And it should be concerned principally with maintaining integrity in the relationship between the Treasury and the American citizen.

Further, our policy should be published in some form that can be understood by a reasonably studious American. I burn the midnight oil, but I cannot understand the monetary policy of the United States Government at the present time. Can you?

The League's Universality

From the Toronto Daily Star.

ONE of the strangest and most unsound proposals being urged upon the world today is that the League of Nations should be reformed in the interest of universality. The proposal is that it should be made over at the bidding of Rome, Tokio and Berlin so that it would contain nothing that would deter aggression or hinder the plans of gangster nations.

The greatest boon that could be secured by humanity would be universal respect for international law. Behind international law must be sufficient force to command respect. Humanity looked to the League of Nations to make law effective everywhere, but the League has failed so far because the nations were not ready to put force at its disposal and, in moments of crisis, were not loyal to one another and to the collective security system.

Every successive failure of League nations to fulfill their obligations under the Covenant, due to fear rather than to other considerations, has increased the danger of war, multiplied the waste of wealth on military preparedness and added to the horrors gathering in the path of humanity.

It is a time when the nations that love peace, co-operation and orderly conditions should band together more closely than ever to avert if possible, but to meet if necessary, the attack of the forces of aggression. The last thing they should do is to break up their own combination, repudiate their pledges to one another, enter into association with the gangsters and stand idly by while the gangsters destroy their friends.

The paramount duty of the nations is to strengthen the League, to use it as their agent for all dealings with aggressors and to be prepared for every conceivable emergency, although ever ready to consider the grievances and legitimate aspirations of other Powers.

UNIONISM'S VALUE TO BUSINESS.

From the New York Post.

THE New York Journal of Commerce, organ of mercantile interests, provided an interesting bit of testimony to the value of trade unionism in a recent editorial.

"The extent and severity of the current recession and the near-term outlook for most of the important consumer-goods industries," the Journal of Commerce said, "may be largely determined by the ability of industry to maintain current high-wage rates in the weeks ahead."

On what factors can one depend to help maintain those wage rates? The Journal of Commerce continued: "Two factors account for a widespread belief that wage rates will be maintained now even better than in the downturn after 1929. These are the admitted strength of the trade unions and the keen desire of all industry to co-operate with the Government in bringing about recovery."

The Post has long contended that unionization was an excellent economic stabilizer for capitalism because it tended to raise and maintain the mass purchasing power on which the prosperity of business depends. We are glad to see that the Journal of Commerce agrees with us.

PASTOR SAYS CITY RELIEF NEEDS ARE NOT BEING MET

"PUBLIC OFFICIALS NOT DOING JOB"

Secretary of Social Planning Council Recites Instances of Suffering in Radio Address.

The $165,000 allocated to St. Louis by the State Social Security Commission for relief during February is $90,000 short of what experience of recent years has shown to be the city's relief need for the average month, the Rev. Henry Little, secretary of the Social Planning Council, declared in a radio talk last night.

The Rev. Mr. Little, pastor of Tyler Place Presbyterian Church, speaking on the KSD Community Forum program, said it might be debatable whether the city or State should provide the needed money, but that it was a simple fact that the public relief job remained undone.

"This is enough to say," he added, "for our public officials are elected or appointed to do the job, whether it is giving fire protection or administering justice, or raising taxes for these and all other proper purposes.

"This public relief job is a more recent and most unhappy development of our times, but it has been undertaken by the public in good faith, and the public, through its representatives, must do it.

"Why Must We Wait?"

"I have heard nobody say that it cannot be done. We all know that it must be done, and we know that it will be done. Knowing this, why must we wait to act until we have all the wretched demonstrations of misery that accompany desperation? They are not only unpleasant to witness, they are a shame to any civilized community.

"Surely in the end, and may that end come soon, public opinion will compel public officials to correct an intolerable situation."

The money available for February, the Rev. Mr. Little pointed out, is to be spread among 9600 relief "cases"—destitute families and unattached individuals. As evidence that this is not enough to "do the job" he read a letter sent by a woman on the relief rolls to the Social Planning Council, an organization of about 100 civic and welfare groups which has been active recently in urging more liberal relief policies.

5¾ Cents for Family Meal.

"Can you tell me what to do?" the letter asked. "I have two daughters, 13 and 17. Jeanette, age 17, has sciatic rheumatism. She is under-nourished, no underclothing, no milk, and not able to work. Beulah is going to high school. She has insufficient clothing. We have no heat. Only a rubbish burner to a gas stove.

"Their father is disabled. Am on relief and have only five and three-quarters cents for each meal for them. We have no carfare to go to the hospital for treatment. The doctor ordered warm underclothes and a warm room for Jeanette. Have just ben in the bedroom and the inside of the window is covered with ice. We haven't enough bed clothes. Jeanette is underweight and needs milk badly. Please do what you can. Thank you."

The Rev. Mr. Little described another family's plight. A woman with six chidlren, deserted by her husband, receiving nothing but food from the public relief agency. The oldest child is nine, the youngest an infant born last December. A private welfare agency paid the rent for six weeks, but is unable to continue doing so. The family, the minister said, confronts the immediate possibility of being evicted from the two rooms it has occupied.

Rent-Relief Part of Job.

The principle of not paying rent for those on relief, the Rev. Mr. Little said, has been adopted by the Social Security Commission, but rent-relief is "part of the job." Evictions do occur, he said, and often, in winter, mean extreme suffering.

"As usual in such emergencies," he said, "the private social agencies of St. Louis are besieged with appeals for relief. We have delegated to them the responsibilities of charitable health and hospital, family, child welfare and leisure time services which are an essential part of our insurance against heavier future relief burdens.

"When these private agencies yield to the demands of neglected public relief clients, they merely cripple their own programs and confuse the issue for everybody.

"We need the intelligent, constructive expression of an informed public opinion in this matter. An especial appeal goes to you who are so situated as to have, shall I say, something to lose by taking a positive interest in this emergency—if it be only your peace of mind. You who are removed from the bitterness of cold and hunger who are, perhaps, substantial taxpayers, and who, perhaps, have been inclined to regard those taxes as the price of your aloofness. You are the public, and the public job remains undone."

MEDICAL SOCIETY VIEW ON PRE-PAYMENT CARE

Organization Favors Such Service Under Its Own Control, Bulletin Says.

A pre-payment plan of medical care, under the control of the St. Louis Medical Society, is "essential, vital and imperative," an editorial in the current issue of the society's Bulletin states.

The editorial was based on a letter in the Post-Dispatch Jan. 27 which described the Wage Earners' Health Association, a co-operative medical service, as an answer to health problems. "It would seem that this organization runs counter to the recognized stand of the Medical Society," the editorial in the Bulletin states.

The Wage Earners' Health Association "has presented a direct challenge to the Society and it is unfortunate that this challenge has not been acted on before," the editorial continued. "The activities of this organization should impress upon the Society the necessity for the adoption of a pre-payment plan for medical care by and under the control of the Society.

"The Society must act and act quickly. No one group of physicians should be allowed to reap an unfair reward from an unapproved plan of medical care. Such plans must come from the Medical Society and should be carefully worked out, free of favoritism, selfishness and incompetency. The members of the Society want and need information on the progress of pre-payment medical care."

Securities Registration To Be Argued Tomorrow

"The act," the brief emphasizes, "is aimed only at the holding company which controls operating utilities in states other than its domicile, and which utilizes the channels of interstate commerce to carry out important and essential holding company purposes."

The Government brief quotes from the Federal Trade Commission report to Congress that "the commission is of the opinion on the whole that the detriment of utility holding companies to the public has exceeded, thus far, their value to the public," and observes that "no more devastating indictment could have been made."

The Government brief, of course, concentrates its attention on the sections relating to registration, insisting that the other portions of the act are not at issue. It concedes, however, that if the registration provisions are found unconstitutional, the remainder of the act would fall for lack of support.

"It is true," the brief admits, "that if the registration provisions were adjuged invalid, nearly all other provisions of the act would fail because they are so drawn as to be applicable only to 'registered' companies. But the converse if not true; the enforcement of the registration provisions is in no wise dependent upon the operation of any other provision of the act. Standing alone, the registration provisions may accomplish less than what Congress hoped for. But nothing different from what Congress intended."

What Section 5 Provides.

A glance at the registration provisions gives a clew to the utility companies' resistance to registration. Section 5, which is directly in controversy, provides, among other things, that the registrant must disclose to the S E C information relating to "the directors and officers of such companies, their remuneration, their interest in the securities of, their material contracts with, and their borrowings from, any of such companies, their bonus and profit sharing arrangements, material contracts not made in the ordinary course of business, and service, sales and construction contracts, and options in respect of securities."

All of these points were investigated and reported on at length by the Federal Trade Commission.

The Government brief devotes 12 pages to company's argument that the registration provisions violate the due process cause of the fifth amendment. The company had contended that this clause was violated by singling out public utility holding companies from all corporations; that the term "holding company" was loosely defined in the act; and that the exemption provisions were arbitrary. The Government's brief entered a specific denial, that these arguments, claiming that Congress could select certain corporations for regulation and leave others unregulated; that the definition of "holding company" followed the decisions the court and the findings of administrative agencies and that the exemptions were to be on a "very real and practical basis."

State's Rights.

In answering company's argument that the act invaded states' rights, as guaranteed by the tenth amendment, the Government brief quotes with approval a part of a speech by Senator Borah in the Senate that the holding companies must be under the control of Congress because the state legislatures did not have the power to regulate interstate matters.

"They (the holding companies) would be in a 'no-man's-land' if that were not true," Borah declared.

The company's brief, as noted before, insisted that the court base its decision on the acts as a whole, and pleads for sweeping injunctions against the present and prospective acts of the S E C.

"The act," the company brief declares, "is wholly invalid because of its scope and all-inclusive provisions. It inseparably commingles intra-state and interstate companies and activities by common definitions and provisions and cannot be confined by judicial limitation to companies or activities within the power of Congress.

"It must be regarded as a whole and read in its entirety to determine the separability of any section or sections. Particular sections cannot be isolated and considered in a vacuum, without regard to their setting and context and their functional relationship to the act as a whole."

Decisions Usually Narrow.

In the past the Supreme Court has usually confined itself to the narrowest limits presented by the case before it. That does not mean, however, that in this case this procedure will be followed.

The present suit was begun in United States Court for the Southern District Court of New York in November, 1935. Subsequently many similar suits were filed by other holding companies in other jurisdictions, notably the District of Columbia, but the Department of Justice, was able to have them dismissed or stayed until the settlement of the Bond & Share case.

Meanwhile some of the smaller holding companies have registered with the S E C. What the remainder will do will depend on the court's decision in the present case.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION TO BE SOUGHT BY INITIATIVE

Teachers' Committee to Circulate Petitions for Constitutional Amendment.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 5.—A constitutional amendment creating a State Board of Education, to be appointed by the Governor and with power to select a State Commissioner of Education, is proposed by the Missouri State Teachers' Association.

Willard Goslin of Webster Groves, chairman of the committee, said he believed the proposed change, which would abolish the present State office of Superintendent of Schools and the ex-officio State Board of Education, would tend toward a continuous program of education for Missouri and keep politics out of school affairs.

MORE ATTENTION TO STUDENTS OF SUPERIOR ABILITY URGED

Herbert G. Jackson, Art Supervisor, Says It Is Time to Recognize Higher Talent.

Special attention for students of superior ability is urged by Herbert G. Jackson, supervisor of art education in the St. Louis public schools, in a paper on teaching art in the schools, prepared for the committee which is gathering data in connection with celebration this year of the hundredth anniversary of St. Louis public schools.

"Much has been done for the child of low mentality," Jackson observes. "It is high time to recognize the value of superior creative talent."

"We are beginning to plan for centers in each district where children of superior talent may come together occasionally for art experiences that will be agreeable and stimulating to them."

FHA'S PLAN TO HELP SMALL BUSINESS MEN

Housing Agency to Guarantee 10 Pct. of a Plant Improvement Loan.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. — The Federal Housing Administration said today that partial insurance of plant improvement loans would be the administration's first effort to solve the loan problem of small business.

The "little men" recommended Government insurance of "loans for all necessary purposes" and direct Government loans if banks did not co-operate, after their conference here this past week.

The F H A policy, authorized in an almost completely unpublicized section of the new housing act, which President Roosevelt signed Thursday night, covers loans up to $10,000. If a bank can be induced to make the loan for periods ranging up to five years, the F H A will guarantee 10 per cent of it.

Other proposals still are in the study stage. One official has suggested that the Government encourage private investors to form investment pools for the purpose of buying stock in small enterprises. His idea is that only large capital pools which could average good investments against bad investments would be able to take the risks involved in providing capital for small businesses. Other officials doubt if private pools could be large enough to average risks and say only the Government is large enough for such a scheme.

Despite the plea of the recent little business conference, few officials expect the administration to adopt any new direct lending measures. Both the Federal Reserve Banks and the R F C have had authority to make direct loans for about three years, but their risk standards are so strict that together they have lent only $330,000,000 to both big and little industries.

ENVOY SAYS GERMANY SEEKS APPEASEMENT

Political and Psychological Discrimination Must End, Dr. Dieckhoff Asserts.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5. — Dr. Hans Heinrich Dieckhoff, German Ambassador to the United States, in an address prepared for delivery today, said the foreign policy of the German Government is for a "real peace," but so long as there is "no political appeasement" there will be "no feeling of security." The Ambassador was on the program at a luncheon of the Philadelphia branch of the Foreign Policy Association.

"In our opinion the main thing is to have real peace," he said. "In a great speech, made a few months ago in this country, we find this sentence: 'The moral consciousness of the world must recognize the importance of removing injustices and well-founded grievances.' This is what we believe." The quotation was from President Roosevelt's address in Chicago last Oct. 5.

"The sooner we come to a real peace, and I hope that we will come to it, the better," the Ambassador said. "We can do much in this direction, if we concentrate our common efforts on the economic field, and everything possible should be done in this field.

"But, as long as there is no real political appeasement—and it will not come while certain political questions, for instance, the questions of colonies, and of free and equal access to raw materials, have not been solved—there will be no feeling of security, there will be no confidence in the stability of conditions, there will be no possibility for business to plan far ahead.

"Economic co-operation is a very essential factor of real peace, but it is not enough. Psychological and political appeasement, which is only possible when there are no political discriminations, no injustices and well-founded grievances is the goal.

"This goal can, of course, only be reached by common effort. Up to now, this common effort, a really constructive action, has not been forthcoming, and I don't know whether there are sufficient indications yet that the Powers who have are really ready to make the necessary sacrifices.

"But Germany, in the meantime, has not been idle. We have been working in the direction of a general peace by trying to eliminate as many causes as possible of friction, created by Versailles, in our relations with our neighbors, and I think we have been quite successful."

The anti-comintern pact Germany concluded with Japan and Italy, the Ambassador said, "is only a defense agreement, not against any state or any nation, but against the subversive activities of the Third International."

About 20 banner-bearing pickets marched today in an unscheduled greeting to Dr. Dieckhoff. "End Nazism!" read one of the signs. Another urged, "Stamp Out Fascism," and a third: "Hitler's hands must not rob the cradle of liberty."

The Ambassador told interviewers the current shake-up in German army and diplomatic circles was "just a change of a few personalities—not of policies." Hitler, he pointed out, decides all foreign policies. He said: "There is no contradiction between the army and the state. There may have been some differences. That can always happen, but there is no opposition to the Government. Our armies do not go in for politics."

O'MALLEY FILES FINAL REPORT ON OLD MISSOURI STATE LIFE

Asks That He Be Discharged as Liquidator of Insurance Company.

Former Missouri Superintendent of Insurance R. Emmet O'Malley filed his final report as liquidator of the old Missouri State Life Insurance Co. in Circuit Judge William S. Connor's court Friday, asking that he be discharged and directed to turn over to his successor, Insurance Superintendent George A. S. Robertson, the rest of funds in his possession.

The report shows that $36,495 remains of $100,000 set aside by the Court for administration and legal fees in connection with adjustment of claims, most of which have been settled.

O'Malley's report supplements previous reports showing payments of $25,000 to Democratic National Committeeman James P. Aylward of Kansas City for attorney fees and $20,500 to Joseph F. Holland of St. Louis as commissioner of claims. Assets of the company were acquired by the General American Life Insurance Co. in 1933.

Red Army Well Trained; 3 Forces in the Far East

Army Theaters.

Soldiers are not often to be seen strolling through the streets of Russian towns. The efficient political service provides the soldiers free in their barracks with all that they would have to pay for outside. In addition to the military General Staff there is a political and cultural General Staff in the political section of the army. Its duties include not only political agitation among the troops and preparation for propaganda among the enemy in time of emergency, not only the maintenance of contact with the civil population, but provision for every aspect of cultural and human welfare of the soldiers.

The political administration of the army provides the troops not only with military and political books; through the Central Theater of the Red Army at Moscow it carries on the whole army theatrical service. The purpose of the army theaters is to popularize the defense system among the troops and the civil population. The Moscow Theater organizes the local theaters at the headquarters of the army commands and the touring theatrical companies that visit the army detachments all over the Union. An important part of the work of this central theater consists in the training of instructors, whose duty is to cultivate artistic appreciation and effort among the troops in every branch of art — music, theater, painting.

Red Army Choir.

A splendid achievement in this direction is the great Red Army choir, which does really magnificent work in the choral singing of soldiers' songs, in dancing, and in playing on national musical instruments. This choir appears on any and every occasion and has contributed not a little to the popularization of the army among the population. There is also a centralized system of military newspapers, from central daily papers to the wall newspaper of each company.

There can be no question that in this political service the Red Army has not only an entirely novel but a good and serviceable instrument, but the recent suicide of its head, Jan Gamarnik, is enough to show that even this organization cannot guarantee reliability. Anyone who journeys through Russia will get the impression that the young generation is wholly loyal to the regime; but allowance must be made for the Russian's gift of play-acting, developed in the course of 20 years of rigid dictatorships. Every one of the leaders shot in recent months had unceasingly and loudly professed entire and enthusiastic loyalty to the regime.

Moreover, the mood of a Russian is easily influenced. In time of emergency the Soviet army will be a peasant army; in wartime the skilled worker will be even more indispensable in his factory than he is now; and the mood of the peasantry fluctuates with every movement in the economic situation, every variation in the harvest, every Government deviation in one direction or another in its policy toward the national minorities.

Increasing Nationalism.

At the outset of the regime every soldier was taught to respect the enemy and to be prepared for military setbacks, but of late years military instruction has departed from this healthy principle and reverted to the errors of the Tsarist army. A new nationalism is preached, in barracks as in civilian life, largely in order to increase the peasant's readiness to fight; but at the same time the old error of exaggerated trust in the army's fighting qualities and underestimate of its opponents is reviving; to paraphrase an old Russian saying, "the future adversary is being killed with a damp rag." This is to play dangerously with the old Russian failing of utter loss of spirit at the first touch of ill-success. The recent executions of army leaders recall similar incidents of every Russian war of the past. The Russian soldier always has had little faith in his leaders. In the campaign of 1812 they were unjustly charged with treason. In the World War the trials of Sukhomlinoff, War Minister, and of Col. Medyedoff contributed not a little to the breakup of the Russian army. And to this day the army is at the mercy of similar potential crises arising out of loss of trust in the leadership.

This training in exaggerated confidence has, of course, its serious purpose. The Red Army has adopted the doctrine of the Reichswehr, under Seeckt and Hammerstein, that the issue of a war can be decided by a tremendous first push of the army cadres. Hence the enormous extent of mechanization and hence the secrecy over the distribution of the army. No unit is spoken of even by its number in the Soviet Union; all is secret. And this is intelligible, for the garrisons already are on the spot where in the event of mobilization they would have to take part at once in operations. The Red Army is divided into commands, each of which comprises several army corps. But these are not commands in the old Russian sense but armies, prepared and mobile; and five of the 10 commands and, of course, the Far Eastern Army are based on the frontiers of the Soviet Union; three of them are on the European frontier. In addition, an Asiatic command, the Moscow command, and the North Caucasian command, with its great masses of cavalry, may be regarded as armies ready for immediate action.

Railway Improved.

So much for the vast machine; but it does not work in a vacuum. And, apart from questions of morale, it is threatened by the defects of two important elements—the system of communications and the bureaucratic system of supply. Russian military writers trace past Russian defeats largely to difficulties of communication. In order to reduce these, the European and Asiatic fronts have been separated, and each is now independent of troop transports from the farther side of the Urals.

Many railways have been built recently, and hundreds of thousands of prisoners are building roads at the utmost speed for the motorized army, or canals for goods transport. Of late the railway services have been improved under Kaganovitch. Goods transport is now up to the tonnage provided for in the estimates. But even now, in peace time, the railways are unmistakably working under tremendous pressure; and there can also be no doubt that there is opposition to the Stalin regime in the railway staff. Officials have been placed on trial in recent months all over the country; on the Far Eastern railway alone there have been 311 officially announced executions under court martial in the past six months.

Still more serious is the question of goods transport in the event of mobilization. Even now the distribution of goods is working extraordinarily badly. The system is thoroughtly bureaucratic, and every decision has to be awaited by an army of officials, higher and lower, who meanwhile are at a loss to know what to do. There is a constant danger that mobilization would produce a sudden supply crisis, either in the army or in the hinterland, through administrative and technical mistakes, even without any actual deficiency of stocks. In short, the Bolsheviks have created a vast and excellently trained war machine; but apart from the element of morale, the organization of this machine is far ahead of the economic, technical and administrative development of the country; and the answer has still to be awaited to the grave question how this discrepancy can be bridged over.

PLEA TO KEEP BUILDING LINE TO PRESERVE LINDELL VALUES

The Streets Committee of the General Council on Civic Needs urges that owners of property on Lindell boulevard between Grand boulevard and Kingshighway compel observance of the building line in an effort to preserve values, in a statement issued yesterday.

Reference is made to recently started construction of a building on the south side of Lindell west of Vandeventer avenue.

"Destruction of this fine artery will result from the non-conformance of new structures to the building line adhered to by a vast majority of the owners," the statement says.

The new building, it continues, "has the effect of destroying not only the symmetrical appearance of the development along this artery, but also the value of property observing the line, in that the dwelling adjoining the new structure will be sandwiched in between two one-story buildings failing to observe the building line."

Denver & Rio Grande's Issue.

The funds also would be available to pay ordinary operating expenses in the event of an emergency. The D. & R. G. told the I. C. C. that it was suffering from a decline in gross revenues "in common with most other railroads in the United States."

REPUBLICANS SEEK CONTROL OF ILLINOIS HOUSE IN 1939

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 5. — Control of the House in the 1939 Legislature is the goal of Illinois Republicans, including members seeking re-election and new candidates. They say that winning of 10 new seats would give them a majority.

At an informal meeting here yesterday several expressed the opinion that, with proper organization and effort, Republicans could capture at least 12 of the State's 51 senatorial districts. Attending the meeting were several Republican Senators and candidates for the Upper House. Senator Earl B. Searcy of Springfield was chairman.

Declaring that they wanted to be represented at the Executive Committee conference of the Republican County Chairmen's Association in Urbana Monday, the Legislators named a committee to participate. Besides Searcy, those named to the committee are:

Senators—Simon E. Lantz, Congerville; T. Mac Downing, Macomb; Arnold P. Benson, Batavia.

An Important Work In a New Field

A HISTORY OF THE BUSINESS MAN. By Miriam Beard. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

"MILLENNIA before Homer sang, or the wolf suckled Romulus and Remus," Miss Beard tells us, "the bustling damkars of Uruk and Nippur and other cities of the Tigris-Euphrates valley were buckling down to business." And from those times the business man has appeared in every civilization — trading, speculating, financing kings, emperors and popes, swinging the fortunes of war one way or the other, determining the birth and death of nations, bringing millions of people luxury or starvation; but never quite assuming the center of the stage, except for one or two complete emergences, as in the glory of Carthage or the heyday of the Medici.

The daughter of Charles and Mary Beard has written a book absorbing as well as authoritative about that much-neglected figure, the entrepreneur. Beginning with the traffic that brought iron swords and metal armor from the Mesopotamian foundries to the barbarians of Europe, she presents studies of the ancient commerce of Miletus and Corinth, shows the economic forces which caused the fall of Carthage and the triumph of Rome, describes the Fascist experiment of Julius Caesar that resulted in an empire curiously analagous to that of Victorian England, continues through the Middle Ages that witnessed the amazing phenomenon of the Hanseatic League, and then pauses at some length to describe the florescence of business individualism in the palmy days of the Renaissance. The story goes on with the altered relationships brought about by the Industrial Revolution, factory production, and the rise of nationalism, through what we term modern times, the growth of imperialism and the vast anonymous monopolies, to culminate in the World War and the ensuing wreckage.

* * *

Miss Beard disregards the orthodox view of society's progress as divided into stages of primitive nomadism, feudalism and capitalism, and envisages it instead in terms of a constant struggle between the business man and the agrarian, with a constant shifting of alignments and alliances. The development of her thesis frequently illuminates movements and motives which are perhaps too often tucked facilely into conventional niches. On the other hand, when she comes to consider possible future developments, she is at almost a total loss, and can do nothing more than examine critically the contemporary phenomena of Italian and German Fascism, "Tory Socialism" in Britain, and the highly contradictory attitude of business men toward the New Deal in America.

* * *

In any case, however, her book, sparkling with wit and fruitful with the understanding that comes from suggestive contrast, broadens immensely the picture of history that most of us possess and deserves an honored place in the libraries of well-read persons. —Jean Winkler.

How His Ears Got That Way

MY EARS ARE BENT. By Joseph Mitchell. (Sheridan House, New York.)

JOSEPH MITCHELL'S ears are bent that way because of what happened to them in the formative period before they were completely set. In that period, when he was a young but ambitious New York reporter, he was exposed to such ear-benders as George Bernard Shaw, Nicholas Murray Butler and Father Divine, to mention just three, and it affected him so that he lost the ability to detect insanity. Sometimes, he says, when he has to go into a psychopathic ward to interview somebody, he fails to notice the difference.

* * *

A New York reporter can't go around asking questions all the time without finding out something. One of the things that Joseph Mitchell found out was where the "rasslers" come from. He found that out from Mr. Jack Pfefer, importer of freaks for the wrestling business. This Mr. Pfefer says it was his freaks that brought the business out of a depression of its own 12 years ago, when it was "dead like a cemetery," and has kept it out ever since. He gets from Europe freaks such as nobody ever saw before—imports them by the ton. There was one that weighed 625 pounds, which Mr. Pfefer said was the most meat that had ever stepped into a ring. He couldn't wrestle a baby carriage, but he could grunt and moan, and that was what the crowd of sadists wanted.

There was another that Mr. Pfefer called the Siberian Gorilla. He wore a Russian blouse and whiskers, and liked to be called Gorilla because he thought it meant General or Mister.

Joseph Mitchell, during the time that his ears were being bent back, found a few freaks himself outside the wrestling business, and interviewed them. The stories they told him, published in the newspaper for which he worked, are now assembled in the book which proclaims the plight of his ears and tells how they got that way. —F. A. Behymer.

A Great Seaman's Life Story

CONQUEROR OF THE SEAS: The Story of Magellan. By Stefan Zweig. Translated by Eden and Cedar Paul. (The Viking Press, New York.)

WHEN, in 1519, Magellan set forth to find the Spice Islands, he was engaged in far more than a mercantile adventure. Others had asserted that the world was round, but Magellan was destined to be the first definitely to demonstrate the fact. Little does it matter that he lost his life in so doing; that, of the five ships which set forth from Seville, only one accomplished the circumnavigation of the globe; and that, of the 265 men who embarked, but 18 returned home. The realization of Magellan's dream not only showed the bounds of the earth, but also set men's minds free from the old restrictions of the medieval world.

Here was a man whose whole life was marked by paradox. Though undoubtedly one of the ablest navigators of his day, he was turned away in contempt by his own sovereign, Emanuel of Portugal. His great voyage was begun under a cloud, for the Portugese let everyone know that they considered him a traitor when he took service under the rival King, Charles of Spain. The discovery of the passage from the Atlantic to the Pacific was made just when defeat seemed inevitable. Then, after a promise of certain success, came a tragic irony. Magellan died by the hand of the Rajah of Mactan in the Philippines, where he was trying to secure those new islands for Christianity and Spain by the most un-Christian plotting among the natives. Another, Sebastian del Cano, who had once mutinied against Magellan, reaped the reward which should have gone to the dead captain. And then, to complete the irony, the Spice Islands, gained at so great a price for Spain, were sold by Charles for a paltry sum to Portugal.

Stefan Zweig has told a vivid story of misfortune, mutiny, famine, death and ultimate victory. Against this background looms the heroic figure of Magellan. Stern justice and iron determination made him feared and respected, but seldom loved, and his devotion to his great idea set him apart from lesser men. His was the loneliness of genius, and his story is tragic in the highest sense of the word. —Mary Stephanie McDermott.

Small Concerns Of Bores

LADIES UNDER GLASS. By James M. Neville. (J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia.)

THE Palmerstons of Newport were of the resort's "200 families," and the senile dowager looked forward to the debut of her granddaughter, Audrey, as the summit of a long social career. Lily, Audrey's mother, was engaged with plans of her own, chief of which was the snaring of Nicky, an exiled Russian Prince. Kyra, his sister, was no less artistocratic, but of a more practical turn of mind. She prudently contrived to hide her contempt for the gauche (but affluent) matrons and debutantes who patronized her art and dress shoppe. Kyra sometimes brooded over the vanished grandeur of her home in Russia, but most of the time she was engrossed in attempts to marry Nicky off to a rich American, preferably Lily Palmerston.

Lily was fair game. She was jealous of her young daughter, and acted like a dog in the manger at Audrey's coming-out party. Nicky, in his romantic Russian style, kissed Audrey in the moonlight, and was caught at it by Lily, who was temporarily enraged. Cooling off, she decided that Nicky was a bargain at any price, and forgave him. Though a marvelous specimen of the beautician's art, she was past 40. Nicky, despite recurrent determination to get a job, at last resolved to make the supreme sacrifice. He would marry Lily for Kyra's sake, and thereafter the proud Russian eagle would chirp tamely and soar no more—a bird in a gilded cage.

Another satisfactory development is the revelation that Audrey loves Tony and Tony loves Audrey, after all. Tony was only teasing when he flirted with that pretty widow on the beach.

Mr. Neville has evidently set out to write a satire on high society, but the result is an ephemeral tale of the small concerns of rather boring people. —Jack Conroy.

A Masterly Tale Of Iceland

SHIPS IN THE SKY. By Gunnar Gunnarsson. (The Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.)

IN a simple tale of a few brief years in the life of a little boy growing up on an Icelandic farmstead, Mr. Gunnarsson has given us one of those rare books for which a reviewer feels justified in bringing out his most glowing adjectives. "Ships in the Sky" is a novel which has the strength and maturity of the rugged Iceland farmers who people its pages, the sincerity of an author who is telling the story of his own beloved childhood home, and the delicacy of an imaginative child's reaction to his environment as remembered by the child now grown to manhood.

Seven-year-old Uggi Greipsson saw ships in the sky as he played on the stony hillsides of his father's farm. With the same imaginative powers and a kind of fierce affection, he looked at his own life and at those who made up his little world. So skillfully has Mr. Gunnarsson wrought his magic that the portraits we see through Uggi's eyes are unforgettable ones. Father, sisters, servants, neighbors, Uggi himself, and, above all, Mother, who was the center of the family's existence, are true folk of their own little corner of the world, rich in its traditions and customs; but they are also rich in the universal experiences and emotions of humanity.

The death of the Mother, told with no striving for effect, but only with the natural apprehension of the little boy to whom she had been all in all, is certainly one of the most poignant, beautiful passages in any recent book.

* * *

In Denmark Mr. Gunnarsson has published some 30 volumes of novels, short stories and plays, and is one of the most widely read authors there. His works have been translated into many languages, and have been received with enthusiasm. In Germany his sales have run into hundreds of thousands. —Doris Talbot Hetlage.

How One Escaped Devil's Island

RENE BELBENOIT was a thief. Discharged from the French army after the war, at the age of 21, desirous of marrying, he sought work and found none. So he stole. For that he was sentenced to eight years of hard labor on Devil's Island, known to the living dead incarcerated there as "Dry Guillotine."

But eight years really meant 16—eight as a guarded prisoner, another eight under "doublage" as a libere, or freed prisoner, condemned to reside in the penal colony. No prisoner can survive that period of time, and all try to escape. Some die in the attempt, prey to the Guiana jungle or the sea; some are recaptured, to have sentence increased, to endure solitary confinement, to go insane, to die of their suffering. A few succeed.

After four futile, heart-breaking attempts within 15 years, Belbenoit succeeded. With five other liberes he made his way to Trinidad in an Indian canoe, and kindly British sent him on his way. His companions were recaptured, but Belbenoit, a slight chap weighing little more than 100 pounds, fought his way through jungles in South and Central America to Panama, and proceeded through Mexico to the United States, arriving ragged and half dead, but clinging still to his manuscript describing life in the colony.

The manuscript was written largely while Rene was keeper of the archives for one of the colony's governors who vainly tried to reform conditions. The story is a terrible, enthralling account of viciousness, maladministration, bribrey, cruelty, desperation; of men who go mad with torture, who sink to the utmost depravity, who are forced to work in the jungle naked and half starved, whose only hope is in preying on their fellows to get a little money for an attempt to escape. It is also a story of a tremendous will aided by a keen intelligence. These belonged to Rene Belbenoit, but society found no use for them other than on Devil's Island.

There are illustrations, very graphic, by a fellow prisoner, who did not escape. There is a foreword by William LaVarre, fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, who met Belbenoit on Trinidad, in the Panama jungle, and later in the United States. The foreword gives briefly Rene's early history; the fugitive begins his story with his exile. —O. F. Fink.

PICTURES LIFE OF WELSH MINERS

RHYS DAVIES

"Not Members of a Dying World"

A TIME TO LAUGH. By Rhys Davies. (Stackpole Sons, New York.)

MR. DAVIES' novel, laid in a South Wales colliery district, begins with the smashing of shops and breaking of heads by hungry strikers. It ends with another strike, in which the miners' families again are reduced to want and desperation, but this time a gleam of hope emerges as, in the dawn of Jan. 1, 1900, they greet the "new century."

Between the two episodes, the story is roughly this: Tudor Morris, a young doctor, forsakes his well-to-do family, a promising practice and a fiancee of his own social status, to become physician and labor leader among the impoverished miners. His escapades and encounters with police, his strike activities and his marriage make him an outcast among his old associates, but he finds true happiness.

It is more than the usual novel of character in evolution or the typical story of noble workers and cruel bosses that the synopsis might indicate, however. The hero is often quite unheroic; sometimes, in fact, he is downright priggish and heartless. Though the writer's point of view favors the miners, he depicts them as all too human; discouraged and wavering when the strike goes badly, given to occasional outbursts of heedless violence when orderly behavior would be wiser. And those of the bosses who came up from the pits are at heart sympathetic with the men's demands, but pressure of other owners forces them to be adamant.

The language is the musical talk of the Welsh, rich in imagery and poetic phrase. The writer, member of a Welsh family important in British Labor party circles, has a quick ear for the colliers' speech and a gift of apt characterization.

The laughter of the title is rare and usually of a grim sort. Even in moments of rejoicing, destitution and tragedy lie close. Yet Dr. Morris is greeted with laughter and song when he harangues his disheartened strikers in words reminiscent of Ecclesiastes:

"For all our skinny bellies, our rags and our black eyes, this is not a time to weep. It's a time to laugh. We can laugh because we're awake and alive and kicking. We're not members of a dying world, we belong to a new young race. It's a time to dance and laugh."

Laws of supply and demand, sliding wage scales and rising living costs are behind the stricken miners' plight. Mr. Davies has not forgotten these, but he writes primarily in terms of human values, seen vividly as they awaken the social consciousness of a young man. —Ferd Gottlieb.

Columbia's President on World Problems

THE FAMILY OF NATIONS: Its Needs and Its Problems. By Nicholas Murray Butler. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

THIS first book from the hand of the president of Columbia University in four years does not, as part of its title might suggest, blink the grim facts of the discord among the sovereign Powers of the world today. The "family of nations" of the moment is far from what the head of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace would have it be. Indeed, it is so far afield that Dr. Butler does not hesitate to say that the one basic question now before mankind is whether or not the dictatorships, with their despotic and military ideals, can be checked "before it is too late."

The situation is just as grave as that, this veteran observer of world affairs warns us. For if these "fatally destructive movements and tendencies" cannot be arrested, then, he says soberly, "the history of Western civilization, as it has existed from the time of ancient Greece, is drawing to its close, and what the future would bring no man is wise enough to foretell."

Dr. Butler looks through the glass darkly, but he is not without hope. His reliance is on an extension of the federal principle which has kept the dissimilar states of the American Union bound together politically these 150 years and is now essentially the basis on which the British Commonwealth is organized by the terms of the Statute of Westminster of 1931.

It is his belief that this extension of the federal principle will come out of an eventual redirection of world activity along the lines of "international understanding and co-operation." For he believes each nation must realize that its self-interest, as well as any release from present-day disorder, want, war and fear of war, requires recognition and satisfaction of the international spirit.

The responsibility which Dr. Butler places on the United States is so great as "to be literally appalling," to use his own phrase. Our failure to co-operate with the great plan for the extension of the federal principle which came after the World War—the League of Nations, "a plan of our own devising"—he describes as the first and heaviest blow to its program. It is now, he concludes in effect, our economic as well as moral obligation to right that wrong by taking the leadership in substituting comity for anarchy in world affairs.

* * *

The book consists of 31 addresses, papers and statements made or issued during the last four years. Topics range from the Statue of Liberty celebration to the "decline and fall of morals." The addresses include those delivered by Dr. Butler in London, Paris and elsewhere in his travels as head of the Carnegie peace endowment. The usual Butler qualities—clarity, cultured thought and literary expression—are present. —Irving Dilliard.

An Illuminated Spirit

THOMAS S. JONES JR. died in the fall of 1932 at the age of 50. Over a period of 30 years he had published 18 small volumes of verse, and since his death two more have appeared. His was not the voice to carry well in the uproar of our cultural chaos, and the publication of his collected work will hardly be hailed as an outstanding literary event; but those who have long been aware of him as an illuminated spirit and a fine craftsman will rejoice.

* * *

Thomas S. Jones was a genuine mystic, and his devotion to poetry amounted to religious dedication. One may well hesitate to say as much, by way of recommendation, in a "practical" time like ours (how practical indeed!), for both religion and poetry can better be experienced than defined. To Jones they were essentially identical, and if, in some remote and saner time, men should ever come to understand our human consciousness, his view might seem less queer.

* * *

In by far the greater portion of his work, the sympathetic reader cannot fail to feel a wider awareness than that by which we habitually live our troubled days. Although his medium of expression has the crystal clarity and perfection of a gem, one does not think of him, first of all, as a literary craftsman. His poetry seems less a form of saying than a manner of being. The voice is always low and finely modulated, as though it grew out of some eternal peace, and in the moments of its profounder utterance it is like a whisper that the spirit leans to hear. Those who have experienced the swift flash of understanding that may come at times in solitude and silence will know what is meant. It is not something to be told, but only to be felt intensely—as though the mystery of our world were briefly realized as unutterably holy, and life as incomparably more than we commonly suspect. —J. G. N.

For the Delight Of Youngsters

THE ADVENTURES OF MISHA. By Sergei Rosanov. Illustrated by Alexander Mogilevsky. Translation by Ivy Low. (Frederick A. Stokes Co., New York.)

IN her latest story for youngsters, first noted above, Mabel Betsy Hill, author of "Down Along Market Street," takes us again into her well-known thoroughfare. It is spread out for us on a map inside the cover, with all the neighbors' houses marked so that we can find our way easily even to Duck Cove Light where the sea is.

Judy Jo has been counting the days until time to go with Susan's father over to Bayport to get Susan, and now she is disappointed. How the day turns out happily anyway is a good lesson for a little girl. But the pleasantest thing about the book is the reason why she had to be disappointed — because Susan's father had to get the hay in! The story gives an account of Judy Jo's day, which includes a strawberry festival and a picnic down by the sea, with an old-fashioned grandmother to furnish sandwiches and cookies. The pictures of Judy Jo and her companions on every page are as simple and gay as the text.

In "A Hat for Harriet" it is spring, and Harriet, like other little girls, wants a new hat. She tells the family about it one morning at breakfast, and Paula Hutchinson's sketch of them all at the breakfast table, with Father behind the newspaper in a familiar fashion, will make the little reader feel at home right away.

The family is persuaded to go shopping for Harriet's hat, and there are drawings of them trooping in a body to fashionable Madame Dossaud's. Here Harriet tries on practically every hat in stock, looking in turn like a bull-fighter, an African explorer, and Napoleon. The reader sees her looking like them in Paula Hutchinson's full-page drawings. The upshot of the matter should make any little girl who reads this book have quite a different feeling about her school beret thereafter. "A Hat for Harriet" has a delightful way of taking the child in, so necessary to a successful story for children.

"The Adventures of Misha" was written for Russian children and illustrated by Alexander Mogilevsky, a famous Russian artist. Its translation and the reproduction of its clever drawings will give American children a pleasing picture of a country where people are named Ivanovich, wear fur caps, and are just everyday people like ourselves.

The story is concerned with a little Russian boy who is separated from his father at a railway station. Each thinks the other must have taken the train. The suspense is sustained to a point where the young reader will plead, "Just tell me whether or not Misha finds his father in the end; just tell me that!" He does, of course, but not before he has had experiences which not only entertain, but enlighten the child as to the mysterious workings of railway stations, telegraph offices, steam engines and telephones. —Margaret Turner Gamble.

Shows Up the Author Of "Crusoe"

Broadway Looks At Religion

SUSAN AND GOD. A Play in Three Acts. By Rachel Crothers. (Random House, New York.)

FATHER MALACHY'S MIRACLE. A Play in Three Acts. By Brian Doherty. Adapted from the Novel of the Same Name by Bruce Marshall. (Random House, New York.)

ONE of the notable facts about the current Broadway season is the number of plays having to do with religion. "Susan and God," "Father Malachy's Miracle" and "Many Mansions" have played to good business for several months; "The Far-Off Hills" was a popular revival by the Abbey Players, and in the last week "Shadow and Substance" joined the parade. The scripts of "Susan and God" and "Father Malachy's Miracle," just released, reveal these comedy dramas as works of rare understanding and playwriting skill.

In "Susan and God," Miss Crothers has written a play which may well qualify her for the Pulitzer Prize, toward which her past successes, such as "Let Us Be Gay" and "When Ladies Meet," would seem to direct her. Still using the house-party situations with which she has worked in the past, she finds them an ideal setting in which to show what happens when a selfish wife and mother takes up religion seriously.

Susan Trexal (played by Gertrude Lawrence) returns from Europe aglow with a new gospel, which she describes as "Lady Wiggam's movement." Almost anyone will recognize it as Buchmanism or the so-called "Oxford movement." Miss Crothers does not attempt to set it forth in any great detail, but concerns herself with the problem of an evangelist neglecting her own vineyard. Susan's husband is rapidly going the way of a dipsomaniac, and her daughter is a miserable little exile in a girls' school. To them Susan eventually directs her attention, and it is then that Miss Crothers' play catches a spirited blaze that sweeps it to its conclusion.

The uses of faith may be discussed cynically, wittily or rationally in various scenes, but Susan does come out of her experiences a genuinely changed woman. "Susan and God" ought to be, in addition to excellent theatrical fare, a fine lesson for the present.

"Father Malachy's Miracle" is a completely jovial tale of how a little monk in Edinburgh prays a dance hall away from the neighborhood to a rock 20 miles out at sea. Many complications result. The Bishop is peeved that Father Malachy didn't consult him in advance, the press looks upon the occurrence as another Loch Ness monster, the Vatican sends a Cardinal to frown darkly on such behavior by its priests, and, worst of all, the dance hall does a sensational business in its new location!

The play is not only worldly-wise but kindly and human. Reports of its glad reception by Broadway and the success of Al Shean in the role of Father Malachy have already reached these parts. —Colvin McPherson.

HIGH LIGHTS OF MEDIEVAL CULTURE. By James J. Walsh. (The Bruce Pub. Co., Milwaukee.)

THE conception of the Middle Ages as a period of darkness still persists in the minds of many who are prone to over-emphasize the enlightenment of a scientific age. Dr. Walsh's "The Thirteenth, Greatest of Centuries," was written to correct that view, and his latest book is a summarization of his monumental work. He begins, by way of introduction, with short biographies of the leading men of the early Middle Ages, and concludes with the lives of Dante and St. Francis of Assisi.

The period of which Dr. Walsh writes was one of great art, great piety and outstanding personalities. The author does not minimize the disadvantages and hardships of life in the medieval world, but gives an objective picture of an age which has passed on to posterity fitting monuments of its greatness.

The book is one of the Science and Culture series, and contains an introduction by Joseph Husslein, S. J., of St. Louis University. —John S. Black.

Hardly a Paragon Of the Virtues

DEFOE. By James Sutherland. (J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia.)

THERE seems to be no evading the conclusion that the author of "Robinson Crusoe" was rather a scoundrel. It was not his enemies only, in his own day, who thought of him as a "mean, mercenary prostitute . . . a scandalous pen, a foul-mouthed mongrel, an author who writes for bread and lives by defamation." Recent scholars, prying open the secrets of his varied career, find it difficult to make anything of a case for him.

What a career he had, too! A commission merchant, a speculator in ships, patents, cargoes, he was declared a bankrupt, to the tune of $85,000, when he was 32. Never at a loss for shifts to make ends meet, he tried brick-making, helped to run state lotteries, wrote pamphlets and poems. From high favor under William the Third, he fell to the level of hired agent for Queen Anne's Minister, Harley, escaping punishment in a debtor's prison by selling his pen to a political party. He became the first editorial writer in English journalism, and a good one at that. As a secret agent for Harley, he traveled over England and Scotland, ferreting out the local political sympathies and relaying his dangerous information secretly to London. Under one alias or another, and anonymously, he wrote in defense of Whig or Tory policy, as he found it most opportune; and, in so doing, produced a mass of commentary that is still readably shrewd and sometimes surprisingly up-to-date.

His well-known book, "Robinson Crusoe," and others of the same kind that he also wrote, came out when he was almost 60, and were a continuation, in their method, of similar articles he had been contributing to the newspapers for years. For Defoe, as Prof. Sutherland well indicates, had, with all his shifty characteristics, the journalist's ability to make good copy out of anything, the writer's aptitude for a style "that should be understood by all," and the Dissenter's capacity for hard work and sound moralizing.

The details of this curious, scoundrelly career Prof. Sutherland handles with an admirable impartiality. Without excusing Defoe, he presents him as a rather natural product of an age in which speculation in business and shiftiness in politics were rife. In one fashion or another, the hand of this pamphleteering tradesman is seen in every political change for a quarter of a century, and it is generally the dark hand of the undercover agent. Yet he is incontrovertibly the author of one of the most plausible adventure yarns ever written, and of other books, like the "Journal of the Plague Year," that the historian of England would not willingly dispense with. —Alexander M. Buchan.

Another Balkan Romance

WRITERS of adventure stories are blessed by the fact that only a few students of political geography have the haziest idea of the number or nature of the small states in the Balkans. Thus, when a writer finds himself in need of a romantic setting for his stories he may create one more such state —or two, or three, if he wishes— and nobody will know the difference.

Mr. Meynell has been satisfied with one, which he calls Turbany. There is, of course, a lovely Princess, named Una. There is also a Pretender, Una's cousin, a very unpleasant gentleman. There are Baikie, special secret-service investigator; Philip Markham, young Englishman; and, to prove that Mr. Meynell reads the papers, an old schemer who manufactures the munitions of war and doesn't hesitate to kidnap royalty or do almost anything else that may encourage trade in his own commodities.

Here are the elements, old but still good, of a romantic novel. The author stirs into these a series of exciting chases on foot, by motor car, bicycle, horse-and-buggy and airplane. Also, there is much physical combat with automatic pistols, clubs and other blunt instruments.

Really, "The House in the Hills" would seem to have everything; yet, somehow, it fails to click. The excitement which the characters seem to feel is very seldom communicated to the reader. The trouble seems to be that Mr. Meynell is unable ever quite to forget that he is, before everything, an English gentleman. Or it may be that he is unable ever quite to remember how to go about writing a story. —W. L. Knickmeyer.

REBOUND IN RAILROAD BONDS FEATURES WEEK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Rail loans came out of the January slump last week and many other corporate bonds tended to move up for modest gains.

The recovery was slowed by Thursday's sharp break in stocks, but the upward trend was resumed in the final session. In the late sessions the market felt the tug of cross-currents which brought erratic price swings. Some less active rail and utility loans finished with heavy losses, and a few carriers accounted for sizable gains. As for active corporate ratings represented by the averages, the net changes were small.

Market sentiment was helped by the apparent drying up of selling in rails following the steep January decline. Business news afforded little encouragement, but financial circles indicated they were favorably impressed by reports as to the reception accorded Wednesday's offerings of $67,000,000 Appalachian Electric Power bonds.

Some low yield corporate liens moved ahead a little after a pause for consolidation of recent gains. Others appeared to be in moderate supply in a fractionally lower range. United States Governments started higher, then moved into divergent swings which canceled a good part of the improvement.

Higher bids were entered for a fair number of corporate bonds today, with rails capturing a good share of the gains.

Dealings were negligible outside the group of trading favorites and total transactions of $2,647,000 face value were the smallest for a Saturday since Sept. 4. Volume last week was $3,562,300.

U. S. Governments shifted unevenly, ending 6-32ds higher to 4-32ds lower. Trading, except in one or two treasuries, was unusually light.

Gainers in the rail division included Southern Pacific 4s at 82¼, up 2¼; Southern Railway 4s at 40, up 1; M-K-T 5s at 19½, up ½; Nickel Plate 4½s at 47, up 1; New York Central 5s at 62½, up ¾.

Improving fractionally were McKesson & Robbins 5½s, International Hydro Electric 6s and Postal Telegraph 5s.

The Associated Press average of 20 rails rose .5 of a point to 62.8. Industrial and utility averages were unchanged.

COTTON RULES STEADY ON TRADE AND FOREIGN BUYING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5. — Cotton ruled steady today on trade and foreign buying. Although week-end realizing developed, May, after reacting from 8.64 to 8.59, closed at 8.03 with final prices 2 to 5 points net higher.

The market opened 3 to 5 points higher in sympathy with higher Liverpool cables. Bombay and other foreign sources bought here but domestic buying was restricted. A little hedging and liquidation caused mid-session reactions to around the previous closing levels but the undertone held steady.

Commodity Credit Corporation reported 60,153 bales pledged to the loan during the last week making a total of 4,883,701 pledged thus far. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the close of the week was estimated at 97,000 bales against 160,000 last year, and 81,000 two years ago.

The market proved responsive to a small demand early in the week but when there was no follow-up to the buying, prices developed irregularity during the middle of the period. Renewed buying developed later on Washington advices the compromise report of the conferees on the farm bill contained an amendment providing that the Commodity Credit Corporation take title to loan cotton, which growers could relinquish in return for payment of 2 cents of their 1937 subsidy.

Continued quietness of coton goods markets was reported to have caused some print cloth manufacturers to decide to adhere to curtailed production for an extended period. Spot cotton markets also were quiet. The first private report on intentions of farmers to plant placed the acreage total at 29,712,000 acres, compared with 34,383,000 acres planted in 1937.

OVER-COUNTER QUOTATIONS TO BE HANDLED BY NEW BODY

Investment Bankers' Conference Completes Plans With Security Dealers' Association.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5. — The Investment Bankers' Conference, with headquarters in Washington, has reached an agreement with the New York Security Dealers' Association under which the conference will handle the dissemination of quotations of over-the-counter securities, it was learned today.

Effective Feb. 8, the New York District Committee of the conference will take over the quotation department of the Security Dealers' Association, which supplies quotations to newspapers and news services.

The work of the Uniform Practice Committee of the Dealers' Association will also be taken over by the conference. It has to do generally with delivery dates, contract settlements and other technical matters.

The Investment Bankers' Conference, a national association with regional committees, is an outgrowth of the Investment Bankers' Code Committee under N R A, and now functions chiefly as a liaison with the S E C on technical problems.

Its entrance into the quotation field for securities not traded on organized exchanges was seen here as an important expansion of the conference activities. Similar plans for providing quotations in other cities were understood to be contemplated.

American Telephone Stock Slump At Midweek Undermines Market But Rally Puts It Again on Even Keel

Improvement in List Follows Lightening of Offering of Communication Issue—Steels and Motors in Setback.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—"Blue chip" leaders yielded to selling pressure in this week's stock market but subsequent rallies put them back on a comparatively even keel.

Mild recovery in early sessions was followed by a mid-week decline as heavy offerings of American Telephone common spread pessimism in board rooms. When offerings of that stock lightened, improvement appeared.

Various reasons were assigned by brokers for the sell-off in "Telephone" but the consensus appeared to be that estate and trust fund liquidation was the prime factor. Steels were pounded down as the slump spread and motors suffered in lesser degree.

The bond market generally followed the pattern traced on the big board, with early strength replaced by weakness and a following mild advance. Secondary rail liens provided the bulk of activity.

The major commodities displayed mixed trends. Steel scrap, rubber, hides, corn, wool, cattle and lambs were lower, while wheat, cotton, rye and hogs turned upward modestly. The Associated Press index of 35 commodities, based on 1926 average prices, dropped to 71.73 from 72.64 the preceding week.

Industrial Activity Declines.

Industrial activity continued its decline. Freight car loadings were down contra-seasonally, automobile production slumped, electric power output touched a new low for 1937-38 and steel mill operations were 30.5 per cent of capacity against 32.7 in the preceding period. Dun & Bradstreet reported retail sales "barely even" with those of the week before, although wholesale distribution improved.

Disappointing were fourth quarter earnings reports of many leading corporation, disclosing profits cut, in some instances, by as much as 50 per cent under the 1936 figures. Net operating income of the nation's most important railroads in 1937 was reported down approximately 12 per cent from the preceding 12 months.

Week's Financing Results.

Traders professed some encouragement of sentiment from the conference of "little" business leaders in Washington, which, it was held, demonstrated unity of sentiment with "big" business on the part of the delegates. Final enactment of the administration's housing bill aided shares of the building material companies.

New financing jumped sharply during the week. U. S. Steel Corporation revealed it had borrowed $50,000,000 short-term money from New York, Pittsburgh and Chicago banks for a program of plant expenditures. An issue of $67,000,000 in bonds and debentures of Appalachian Electric Power Co. was promptly distributed in the biggest offering since last March.

Total stock sales during the week amounted to 4,373,810 shares, compared with 5,520,940 a week ago and 14,399,010 corresponding week a year ago. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were 27,770,841 shares, compared with 73,067,786 a year ago and 83,791,779 two years ago.

Rally Extended at Week-end.

In the Saturday performance leading steels, coppers, chemicals, electrical equipments and specialties extended Friday's rally by 1 to more than 3 points and, despite some profit realizing at the close, were not far from the day's tops.

Contributing to the further upturn on the two-hour jaunt, it was said, was considerable short covering by speculative contingents that were disinclined to be out on a limb over the week-end.

There was also a revival of the armaments theme as the Government despatched a note to Tokio inquiring whether Japan intended to boost battleship construction and intimating the United States was prepared to increase sharply its recently announced naval building program.

"War talk," in addition, became something more than a murmur as new European complications were seen in the latest German military and political upheaval involving the ascendency of Hitler to supreme control and pointing to possible major world-wide developments in the near future.

Turnover Is Light.

Slowness of dealings continued as a fly in the more cheerful trading ointment, transfers amounting to 445,690 shares compared with 434,170 last Saturday. The week's volume was the smallest for any similar period since early September.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced .8 of a point to 43 on top of Friday's recovery of .9. For the week the composite was up .9, although the utilities were off .3.

Among the day's conspicuous gainers were United States Steel at 52¾; Bethlehem 53⅜, Chrysler 53⅝, Anaconda 30½, Kennecott 35⅝, Westinghouse 93½, du Pont 112, Johns-Manville 74⅛, American Telephone 134, Douglas Aircraft 38¼, J. I. Case 88, Sears Roebuck 58⅜, Allied Chemical 163, Eastman Kodak 154 and Santa Fe 34¼.

Most of the recently strong gold mines shifted to lower levels. These included Alaska Juneau at 12⅝, Homestake 61⅝ and McIntyre 43½.

American Telephone started the short day with another dip of more than a point, but soon received sufficient support to cancel this loss and, during the final hour, was well on the upside.

The market was again exceptionally "thin" as was shown at one time by a bid of 73 and an offer of 80 in Johns-Manville. The issue appeared after these figures were printed with a jump of 2¾ points from its previous sale.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY INDEX DIPS SHARPLY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Industrial activity dropped sharply this week, with many important industries slumping to new lows for the current recession.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index broke to 70.2 per cent of the 1929-30 average from 72.2 last week, and compared with 98.9 a year ago.

Every component except cotton manufacturing declined. Automobile output, electric power production, residential building and freight car loadings sank to new low ground for the last two years or more.

For the third consecutive week new car assemblies contracted contra-seasonally. Although scattered reports indicated the effort to cut into burdensome used car stocks was partially successful, inventories of new models in the hands of dealers were said in trade quarters to be excessive on the basis of current demand.

The cut in steel mill operations was understood to have resulted mainly from the failure of demand to follow the previous month's upturn in activity.

	Latest Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.

FREIGHT CAR LOADINGS AT LOWEST LEVEL SINCE 1935

Miscellaneous Group Now Off 35 Per Cent From Peak Level.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—The contra-seasonal decline in railroad freight carloadings during the week ended Jan. 29 carried this barometer of industrial conditions to the lowest level since September, 1935.

The slump in loadings started months before business generally, or the stock market, gave any indication the 1935-37 boom had run its course.

After adjustment for seasonal factors, miscellaneous freight—the principal industrial classification, including such items as petroleum, steel, automobiles and parts, etc.—hit top at approximately the same time, and has since dropped 33 per cent.

In this connection, it is noted the Associated Press industrial activity index declined roughly 35 per cent from its recovery peak in the spring of 1937.

The fact freight shipments turned down almost six months before the peak in industrial output was reached is said by some analysts to mean consumer demand began to weaken at the turn of 1936, while production was maintained on the basis of forward orders placed to avoid expected higher costs. That there is some element of truth in this theory, they say, is indicated by the heavy inventories built up during the early part of 1937 as a result of activity outstripping demand.

FURTHER DECLINE IN COMMODITY PRICES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Commodity prices declined further this week to the lowest levels since June, 1936, despite a relaxation of selling pressure against most important staples.

Livestock and industrial items were among the weakest sections of the list, while agricultural products strengthened moderately.

New Livestock Low.

With steel scrap marked down several times in the Chicago market (although export demand held up the Pittsburgh quotation), raw material for industry gave ground. Hides and rubber were also easier, while turpentine, tin and burlap managed a small advance.

The new low chalked up in livestock resulted from breaks in cattle and lambs, for hogs improved a little. Underlying the setback, commodity men said, was a steady curtailment of consumer demand.

Grains were mixed, wheat and rye gains being balanced by losses in corn and oats. The betterment in wheat stemmed from South American reports of crop damage.

Argentine Currency Falls in Terms of Other World Monies

Drop in Grain Prices Said to Be at Basis of Downward Dribble of Peso.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—The United States dollar pursued an uneven course in the week's foreign exchange dealings.

Monday, most leading European currencies rose in terms of the dollar. No plausible explanation appeared. For lack of any better excuse, traders said reports persisted in European financial centers that the American currency was to be devalued.

Tuesday found the dollar in fine fettle, and it advanced against most currencies. The strength carried over into Wednesday, and again the dollar moved modestly forward.

Thursday the dollar eased a bit. European currencies were generally a little higher in terms of the American unit. Friday the dollar eased again.

The net result of these ups and downs was that the dollar showed no appreciable net change in its relationship with European monies that could not be explained by traders as "technical."

While the dollar, British pound sterling, French franc, Swiss franc and Netherlands guilders shadow-boxed with each other, money watchers turned their eyes to the South American continent, where the Argentine peso was limping badly. Already drastically depreciated, the Argentine currency fell still further in terms of other world monies. The Argentine bank was reported to have ample gold and foreign exchange reserves to support the peso. But it was said the fall in grain prices put the Argentine Government in the position of having to subsidize the farmers or let the peso fall. Letting the peso dribble downward was easier.

The franc slipped .00¾ of a cent. Higher by .01 of a cent were the guilder and belga, while the British pound advanced 1-16 of a cent. The Swiss franc was unchanged. The discount on the 90-day forward French franc widened to .14 of a cent from .12½ of a cent yesterday.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Foreign exchange closing rates were as follows: Great Britain in dollars, others in cents. Great Britain, demand 5.01⅜, cables 5.01⅜, 60-day bills 5.00¾; France, demand 3.28¼, cables 3.28¼; Italy, demand 5.26½, cables 5.26½. WHEAT TRADE QUIET; FINAL PRICES DOWN

Small Speculative Interest in Market Reflected in Lightest Six-Day Turnover in Many Months.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 5.—Bogged down into a narrow rut by lagging speculative buying interest, wheat prices today declined a full cent a bushel from early highs and closed at small net losses for the day.

The market was unable to hold an opening advance of almost a cent although much of the news digested by traders was of a constructive nature. Trading was extremely dull and price fluctuations small. Discouraged by failure of the market to respond to strength in stocks and Liverpool wheat prices together with international political developments and absence of moisture relief southwest, tired owners of contracts sold in the final half hour and the market closed at the day's low.

Wheat was ¼@⅜c lower than Friday's finish, May 94¾@⅞, July 90⅜@½, September 90½@⅝; corn ⅛@⅜c off, May 59¼, July 60⅛@¼, September 60⅞; oats unchanged to ⅛c down, May 31⅛; rye unchanged to ⅜c down, May 75½, and lard 5@10c higher.

The small speculative interest in wheat was indicated by the week's unusually light trade. Volume of wheat futures sold during the week ended Friday totaled only 89,800,000 bushels, the smallest in many months with the exception of the last weeks of December each of which contained only 5 sessions. Volume in wheat last summer was running as high as 250 to 430 million bushels weekly.

The opening upturn apparently was inspired by the ⅝@1c higher close at Liverpool, which was better than due, firmness in stocks and failure of precipitation to appear on the southwestern weather map. Later is was disclosed that overnight export business in North American wheat was quiet. More or less cloudiness was forecast for parts of the winter wheat belt but no definite prediction of moisture was made.

Corn prices were fractionally higher early in the session but later the coarse grain receded with wheat. Primary receipts showed moderate increases but weather was reported to be less favorable for movement of new grain. Overnight export business was estimated at 300,000 bushels.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 18,997,000 bu, corn, 3,230,000. Open interest in wheat was 90,872,000 bu and in corn 49,443,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Feb. 5.—May wheat was offered at 96c at the close. May corn was bid 59½c.

Liverpool wheat opened ¼ to ½d higher and closed ½ to ⅜d up.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was steady. Demand was quiet. Lack of mill buying was reflected in the trading basis. Corn was unchanged. Supply was light, but the demand was only fair and a few cars were carried over. Elevators were the main buyers. A few cars went to mills. Premiums were ¼@½c under the previous day's levels. Oats were unchanged. Receipts were somewhat larger but a good demand cleared the offerings. Mill, elevator and outside order buyers showed interest.

NON-FERROUS METALS SHOW FEW CHANGES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—Non-ferrous metals ended the week with little price variations. A waiting attitude prevailed all around, producers and consumers alike absorbed with trying to gauge the industrial outlook.

The schedule for tin moved irregularly higher, spot ending at 40⅝ cents a pound, but otherwise prices were unchanged. The upturn in tin reflected an unexpected decrease in the visible supply during January, and speculative buying in anticipation of the forthcoming meeting of the International Committee. World supply on Feb. 1, of 27,101 tons compared with 27,044 tons on Jan. 1, the shrinkage being due more to smaller production and light shipments, however, rather than on any increase in consumption.

Domestic copper held at 10 cents a pound, valley, but some doubt existed over the ability of sellers to maintain that level in the absence of a better demand. Export copper was steady on foreign buying against possible franc devaluation and on the war talk in Europe.

AN ADVERTISING AND SALES conference was held Wednesday at the Melbourne Hotel by executives of the B. F. Goodrich Co., including J. A. Hoban, manager of the retail department at Akron, O., and L. L. Sowers, St. Louis district manager. A feature of the meeting was the showing of a new five-reel movie, said to be the most thorough record of tire manufacture and performance ever filmed. Actual action of tire treads on road surfaces were shown in part of the picture, which is to be released for showing throughout the country. The accuracy and detail of the pictures were attained by specialized use of high-speed cameras. Hoban said that the conference was held to outline the company's advertising and merchandising plans for this district for the refainder of the year. Saying that he looked for an increase in the number of tires sold direct to users in 1938, Hoban declared that Goodrich proposed to spend large sums on research and development work, citing as a recent example of this activity the new "hi-flex" cotton cord designed to reduce heat generation at high speeds in truck and bus tires but utilized also in making tires for passenger cars.

HARRY ESCHENROEDER, sales training representative of the St. Louis branch of the Ford Motor Co., has just returned from Dearborn, Mich., where he completed an intensive course in new and used car merchandising at the company's headquarter offices. He also took part in discussions with Ford engineers on modern methods of car design and manufacture, and in inspection tours of the Ford Rouge plant where Ford V-8 cars are made. Eschenroeder will open a series of sales training schools that eventually will reach all salesmen employed by Ford dealers in the St. Louis territory.

APPOINTMENT OF ALLISON Miller as regional manager in the St. Louis area for the Dodge division of the Chrysler Corporation is announced in connection with a number of promotions and transfers. Miller, a West Point graduate and former engineering instructor at the United States Military Academy, has been with Dodge since 1925. He served as field and district representative in various territories, became a regional truck sales manager, and in 1930 went to the company's headquarters advertising and truck sales departments. He came to St. Louis last fall to be assistant regional manager.

THIS WEEK, DISPLAYS OF truck models best suited to the requirements in their territories will be featured by 237 International Harvester truck branches and 5600 of the company's dealers throughout the country. As a part of this countrywide showing, the International Harvester Co. branch here, of which E. A. Dunsmoor is manager, is making a special display at its headquarters, 4010 West Pine boulevard. The International line includes conventional four-wheel units, six-wheelers with both dual drive and trailing axles and cab-over-engine types—24 models in all, on 73 wheelbases, and with vehicle gross weights ranging from 4400 to 62,000 pounds. Dunsmoor said yesterday that official truck registration figures for the year showed that International had more than 36 per cent of the total.

BECAUSE OF THE ADVANCES in design since 1930, today's average used car should give three and one-half times the length of service that could be expected from those available previous to the depression, H. J. Klingler, general manager for Pontiac, declares. "The greatest period of development in design and engineering in this industry took place in the years since the early 1930's," he says. "With the depression restricting the market, engineers were given a free hand in designing new features to bring depression money out of hiding. During this period, vibration—that great destroyer of car life—was largely brought under control. Knee action came into being. Ne lighter and stronger alloys were put to general use. Countless other improvements contributing to the long life of a car were introduced even into the lowest price fields. The sum total of these recent advances was to double the average life of the low priced car. Yet these improvements have not changed the buying habits of those who regularly purchase new cars. They still turn their cars in every year or so on a new model, as they did prior to the depression.

"However, prior to the depression, the average low priced car wouldn't last longer than an average of about 50,000 miles. Today, due to infinitely better materials and engineering, 100,000 miles or better is not uncommon. Assuming that the average new car buyer drives his car 15,000 miles a year and turns it in every two years, it will have been driven 30,000 miles when it reaches the used car lot. Before the depression, when it wouldn't last more than an average of 50,000 miles, it had more than half its normal life expectancy already used up, and the man who bought it as a used car could only expect about 20,000 miles of service out of it. Today's 100,000-mile car, under identical conditions, delivers to the man who buys it as a used car 70,000 miles of unused transportation. Also, most new car dealers now are taking extraordinary pains to recondition their used cars."

APPOINTMENT OF THE MONARK PETROLEUM CO. to handle Socony products, including Mobilgas and Mobiloil, was the occasion of a meeting of 101 Monark dealers and their employes the past week at the Gatesworth Hotel. Talks were made by W. H. Ware, marketing manager for the Socony-Vacuum Oil Co.; C. C. Goller, district manager; Edward R. Sneed, zone manager, and Berney Wides, president of the Monark Co., and Zanders Zwick, its vice-president.

HIS AWARD FOR WINNING THE PRESIDENCY of the Buick Salesmasters' Club for the last quarter of 1937 was presented to E. J. Heiligers, of the South Side Buick Co., recently by M. D. Clements, city manager for Buick. The St. Louis chapter of the club was started Jan. 1, 1936. The officers for each three-month period are the leading Buick salesmen, and the one standing highest is installed as president. Heiligers has been president of the St. Louis zone chapter since it was organized except for one three-month period when he was vice-president.

COMPETING AGAINST MANY OF THE FINEST MAKES of European cars, a Ford V-8, driven by Bakker Schut, won the 1938 running of the annual Monte Carlo Rally, the most taxing of European motor car competitions. Five Fords and Matford cars were among the first seven cars in the contest, and Mme. Roualt, driving a Matford, won the women's cup. Fourteen Fords and the five Matfords entered completed the 4000-mile course. The Matford is a Ford made in France. Starting at the northern tip of Scotland, the rally course ran through Norway, Sweden, Estonia, Germany, France, Roumania, Greece and to Sicily.

A MEETING FOR DEALERS, sales managers and salesmen was held Wednesday at the Coronado Hotel by W. A. Klees, zone manager for Oldsmobile. Selling in 1937 was reviewed and plans for this year outlined by Klees and Regional Manager F. Q. Murphy of Chicago. Murphy noted that in 1937 Oldsmobile cars were fifth in retail sales in St. Louis and St. Louis County and last month were fourth.

THE TUCKER MOTOR CO., headed by Percy Tucker, who has sold Oldsmobile cars here since 1927, has moved into its new building at 3415 South Grand boulevard. The firm now has more than 10,000 square feet of floor space, factory-approved service tools and factory-trained service mechanics. George J. Lake continues as office manager, Jack Phillips as used car manager and Edward M. Conway as service manager.

THREE GENERATIONS OF the family of Charles Good work for the Buick division of General Motors in Flint, Mich. Good, who is 72 years old, is in the engineering experimental department. His son, Melville, 42, is in the same department. The latter's son, Gayl, 21, is in the transmission department. Charles Good's family includes three other sons who work for other General Motors divisions, a son who is an engineering professor at the University of Michigan, a daughter and 18 grandchildren.

MORE THAN 2000 WORKERS will be put back on the Willys-Overland payrolls within two weeks, and the number will be increased thereafter as conditions warrant, David R. Wilson, president of the company, announces.

A GAIN OF 17 PER CENT IN new car deliveries, in the second 10 days of January, and a substantial increase in used car sales by Buick dealers, is reported by W. F. Hufstader, general sales manager. Deliveries of new Buick cars in the period totaled 3033 as compared with 2587 in the first 10 days of the month.

MOUNTAINS of fire, tracks of dinosaurs, an arid, mile-high plateau once a manless tropical paradise . . . Acres of petrified forest, great turtles turned to rock, thousands of gigantic fossil snails . . . Miles of human homes, side by side, blackened by the smoke of countless cooking-fires . . . Paintings old as Tyre . . . A tiny, worn sandal lying where it fell before Christ walked in Galilee . . . Time rolling back for millennia in the turning of a stone, the sifting of a handful of dust.

The story of a new wonderland in the Southwest has been disclosed on the return of an expedition sponsored by the Utah Museum Society and headed by Dr. Russell G. Frazier of Bingham, distinguished explorer of the Colorado River, the San Juan and the Salmon in Idaho, the "River of No Return."

It is an area of 5400 square miles never explored before, the Kaiparowits Plateau, one of the wildest, most beautiful, weirdest and most majestic regions of the West. The white men who have seen it could almost be counted on two hands. Inaccessible to travel and valueless as farm or range land, it has slumbered for countless centuries disturbed but by wind and weather, far gentler than

How a SEA-GOING CARD SHARP NETTED $136,000

William Frad.

NEW YORK.

WILLIAM FRAD is back in a Federal prison again and because he is 55 years old and suffers from a serious form of heart disease he may retire to private life when he emerges a year or so hence. And if he does retire—they say that card sharps are incurable—the law will be able to close the books on one of the suavest, shrewdest game of chance experts ever to infest an ocean liner.

No one has ever been able to match Frad at dealing the "Mississippi Hand" of which more anon. He used it and other means once to separate three prominent tourists from a total of $136,000. Nor have there been more than a few gamblers with his linguistic and social ability. When he struck up an acquaintanceship with his victims his personality so dominated the matter that it was almost a pleasure to lose money to him.

Certain it is that very few of his victims ever squawked and more than one refused point blank to make a complaint. It was, in fact, a suspicious bank cashier who put the most severe crimp in his career and even with Federal agents on the trail two of the prominent tourists insisted they had been taken legitimately. One of them subsequently talked, however, and that is indirectly why Frad is back in prison again.

Frad's loquacity with his victims was not carried into his dealings with Federal authorities, so very little is known of his life. It has been established that he was born at Zanesville, Ohio, of extremely reputable parents, that he left home early in life to follow the call of adventure. From that point his rise to eminence as a card sharp on three continents is veiled in uncertainty.

However he is known to be intensely curious. Thus it may be assumed that this thirst for knowledge led him to acquire a superficial culture, the Oxford accent he now uses, a talent for conservative dress and the ability to speak several languages. No ordinary hoodlum can approach a business man or tycoon on a luxury liner and gain his confidence. Only the underworld aristocracy dares this maneuver.

Frad has been so circumspect in his choice of card opponents that very few times does he appear on police dossiers. One of the cases that came to official attention had its inception on one of the trips of the S. S. Paris to Europe in 1929. Colonel John C. Minor, a consulting engineer, his wife and daughter were aboard. The second day out Minor was taking his morning constitutional when a distinguished looking man walked alongside.

AS THEY walked the stranger said he was Frederick S. Mull, a retired lumber man from the West. Minor was charmed by his new acquaintance and that evening joined him in the lounge. There Minor was introduced by Mull to another man, Fred Gorham. Gorham insinuated that he was one of THE Gorhams of the famous jewelry firm of Black, Starr, Frost and Gorham. In the course of the evening Charles Davis, a Kansas City mule dealer, joined the party.

The night was rather dull and one of the four suggested a game of bridge. With Davis as his partner Colonel Minor won $75 from Mull and Gorham. They resumed the game the next night and this time Gorham suggested that they waive the rules and play "the good old-fashioned game" in which doubling and redoubling could go on indefinitely. Under this system a single trick might run into may thousands of points. The stakes were set at five cents a point.

To bring a long story to its inevitable conclusion, Colonel Minor paid over $500 in money orders and $19,000 by check. At Havre, however, he began to feel the stirrings of suspicion and cabled his sister to find out if there was a Gorham connected with the jewelry firm. She answered in the negative and the engineer notified police after stopping payment on the check. The story he told convinced police that it was a typical Frad job.

While they were searching for Frad (or Mull) that worthy was on the S. S. Europa tutoring one James J. Whitters of Taunton, Massachusetts, in the intricacies of "Red Dog," one of the wildest and most expensive of card games. Whitters' lesson cost him $25,000 and he too went to the United States Attorney.

The quest for Frad extended to every large ship flying the American flag, but finally he was found in New York City in an apartment in the swank Central Park West section. The Government had any number of witnesses ready to testify so Frad took the lesser of two evils—he pleaded guilty of using a passport issued upon false representations and conspiracy to violate the passport law. What Frad had done was to enter this country from abroad with a Canadian passport issued in the name of "Daniel Edward Swift."

He was sentenced to two years in prison, fined $1000 and for the duration of a probationary period of five years he was forbidden to use assumed names or to play cards or engage in any irregular activity. It was violation of these terms that sent him back to the Federal prison.

Little more than a year later he was released—that was 1935—and he led an exemplary life for a while. Last year, however, the cashier of a New York bank handled three checks totaling $136,000. They were signed by John H. Pardee, wealthy utility magnate, Francis L. Landon, banker, and Paul Richter, a rich retired Chicago business man. Each of the checks bore the indorsement "William Frad."

The cashier, for some reason, decided to go to the Federal attorney with the checks—$55,000, $45,000 and $36,000—and there the name of Frad was instantly recognized. The three financiers were sent for and questioned. Pardee and Landon refused to make any complaint and apparently took the stand that the game had been on the level. But Richter went into court under an Illinois statute which permits a loser to sue for recovery of gambling losses. The Chicagoan based his suit on the fact he paid off with a check drawn on the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company.

RICHTER lost his money in "old-fashioned bridge" and although the details were not made public it was assumed he was taken via the "Mississippi Hand" which Frad worked so many times. This hand draws its name from the Father of Waters whose bosom was covered in ante-bellum days by river boats all carrying at least one beaver-hatted gambler.

Despite the fact that the victim has every logical reason to bid a grand slam in hearts, it is impossible for him to take more than his six trump tricks. He goes down seven tricks on a hand containing apparently not a single loser. Regardless of the suit led from the opponents' hands, the victim is lost because of the fact that the swindler holds one more trump than he does, and should trumps be exhausted, the swindler may lead his good clubs and defeat the contract.

Richter's suit to recover his money fell into a lot of legal red tape. After a two-day hearing in Federal Court Frad was ordered to serve out the rest of his term—18 months. He announced he would appeal.

Uncovering a New Wonderland in the Southwest

So it is hoped that Kaiparowits will disclose an unbroken line of archeological and paleontological history from the age of reptiles to 1938. The expedition's discoveries have led to a movement to set aside the area as a national park to protect its scientific treasures and scenic wonders in the inevitable invasion of tourists and exploiters. The report of the expedition and colored films of the finds are now being studied at Washington by Frank A. Kittredge, regional director of the National Park Service, and his associates.

Yet Dr. Frazier insists his expedition was little more than a reconnoitering party. The plateau region, roughly 80 by 90 miles, perches high in the hot, dry air of Southern Utah. More than 50 miles of its length is a table land 7000 feet above sea level. Its highest point is Table Cliff at the northwest, 10,500 feet; its lowest, the Colorado River bed at the southeast, 3120 feet.

The river forms its southeastern border; the Escalante River, its northeastern. The New Mexico line is only a little farther south. All about it on the map are the lines of tourist highways and the boundaries of national parks and monuments; Bryce Canyon on the west, Rainbow Bridge on the southeast, Grand Canyon itself, visited by thousands of tourists every year, is a few hours' drive to the southwest—only there is no road. And the Kaiparowits region itself is bare except for the tenuous lines of little-known canyons and the shelf of the plateau itself rising precipitously from the plain.

In the party were Dr. Frazier and his fellow explorer, William Fahrni; Byron Davies of Brigham Young University and Charles Kelly, archeologists; Thomas W. Smith and Henry Moore, guides. They had but 12 days, after all preparations were made, to spend in the area. They used a dozen pack horses loaded with human necessities and 1200 pounds of oats for the animals. Vegetation is sparse on the plateau and water holes are 40 miles apart.

The veteran of the outfit was Virginia, a burro. In years on the desert Virginia had been made sick many times by drinking from scum-covered water holes. She had reached a point where she wouldn't drink at all unless her lord and master, Tom Smith, cleared off the scum and drank first, to prove it was all right.

"Best water in the whole damn country," Tom would say when the party would reach a fouled water hole and curse, only to see Tom scrape off the scum, stretch out on his belly, drink deep, sigh hugely and smack his lips. . . . And like Virginia they drank, too.

THE explorers could average but 20 to 25 miles a day, which meant every other night a "dry camp." They could not linger to investigate any one find and they merely scratched the surface of dust-filled caves where cliff dwellers lived 2000 to 4000 years ago.

But surface scratching convinced them that treasures lay beneath. Dr. Frazier kicked a heap of dust beneath a primitive pictograph of a square-shouldered warrior in a cave, and his kick uncovered a priceless pair of primitive, grass woven sandals. Another kick and a tiny leather sandal was unearthed. In some places, exposed to wind and weather, it was not necessary to scratch—human bones, fragments of pottery and weapons lay on the surface, uncovered by erosion. There was evidence that the cliff dwellers used shaving brushes and gambled with bits of rock and bone. Remnants of successive cultures were to be measured in tons from basket-makers, through the cliff dwellers, the pottery makers and other civilizations in which man and his works had thrived in the area and then given way before—or perhaps ages before—later waves. What earlier cultures lay beneath could only be conjectured.

Outside the plateau the expedition found a relic of ages later—steps cut in the sandstone banks of the Colorado by the first man to view any portion of Utah, the Reverend Silvestre Velez de Escalante, who forded the river in 1776.

Father Escalante's journal tells how his party cut the steps in order to lead burros down the steep banks and into the torrent. History has popularly placed the crossing a mile farther downstream, and it appears so on the maps.

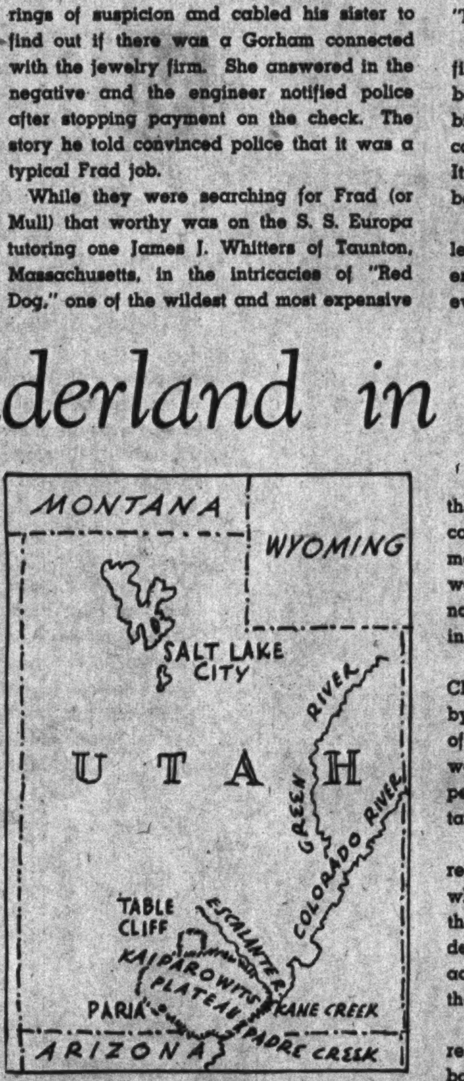
Dr. Frazier's party, noting landmarks and studying the record scrupulously set down by the priest-discoverer 160 years ago, followed his trail for several days, stopping at his camps at night, and they saw where he turned off to skirt the desolate Kaiparowits plateau.

Not far into the plateau they came upon the trace of a mysterious adventure of 100 years later. Here, in a corner of a butte shaped like a skull—or, from the side, strikingly like the Sphinx—a pioneer cattleman named John Kitchen had "holed up" in a cliff-dwelling fortress in the 'Seventies.

He had built thick walls of masonry around the entrance of a prehistoric cliff dwelling, so that his home or hideout was exposed on only two sides. The walls were perforated with bullet holes. Kitchen had drilled a well inside the cave. He could have withstood a long siege.

Bullets did not end his life, but he died, after 1880, under mysterious circumstances. There were rumors of poisoning.

One night the explorers camped below towering vermilion cliffs on Pahreah Creek—the old Piute name, "pah" meaning deer and "reah" meaning water; it's "Paria" on the maps. At the base of the many-colored cliffs were drawings made thousands of years ago by the basket makers in shades of red, brown, yellow, green and orange. One was of a woman kneeling as though in prayer. There were several figures in the shape of the "Iron Cross," made, the explorers estimated, possibly about the time of the fall of Troy.



Location of Kaiparowits Plateau.

Some of the paintings were 60 feet above the base of the cliffs. How they got there remains unexplained. It seemed difficult to suppose that they might have been painted thousands of years before the prehistoric basket-makers—so long before that in the interval slow erosion had eaten the ground to the level of the lower paintings, themselves ancient beyond the memory of man.

Near the abandoned settlement of "Paria"—Pahrea without the "h"—they found thousands of bones on the surface, and above them rose the Calico cliffs.

"Those cliffs," declares Dr. Frazier, "are the most breath-taking examples of natural colors I have ever seen. No matter how many colors and all their resultant blends we could imagine, there were still more nameless shades, dancing and shimmering in the light."

The formation, which geologists call Chinle, was of a banded clay laid down by some ancient sea to a thickness proper of some 700 feet. The forces of erosion at work below it had carved out a nearly perpendicular wall altogether 1200 to 1500 feet tall.

Of only a little later date, as geologists reckon, was the sandstone formation in which the dinosaur tracks were found, on the plateau not far from John Kitchen's desert fortress. There were seven of them across a ripple-marked slab of sandstone that must once have underlain a marsh.

A day's horseback journey from the fortress, Dr. Frazier found a cave stretching back some 300 feet, with a high arched ceiling, from a great opening on a high sandstone ledge. The floor of the cavern was dotted with circular stone structures called "kivas," the ceremonial houses of the Southwest today and from time immemorial.

The walls projected about six feet from the floor. The depth was not learned. One was excavated six feet down without reaching bottom.

In the sand which had filled the kivas were innumerable fragments of pottery and other artifacts. In further search the party found dwelling ruins and pottery—some perfectly preserved, some in fragments—which led them to picture a community peopled by thousands of prehistoric Indians.

Over on the north side of the plateau, in Last Chance Canyon, along a tributary which joins the Colorado about the Garfield-Kane County line, they found thousands of cave dwellings lining the canyon walls for 15 miles. Smoke-blackened walls told of the cooking-fires of generations.

In Last Chance Canyon, too, was the mountain of fire, sighted by white travelers in 1871 and still burning, looking, in fact, after 66 years, as though the internal flames had hardly begun to eat into it. But near it was a mountain already burned out. In the words of Byron Davies:

"We encountered a mountain, at least 1000 feet thick, which has been partly metamorphosed by the burning of coal veins. It was difficult to imagine a temperature from burning coal, without any kind of draft, sufficient to melt such refractory materials as clay and shale, yet here was a sublime example of this unusual occurrence.

"MILLIONS of tons of clay, shale and sandstone have been melted into a maze of the most complex colors imaginable. The hills are cold in the bottom of the canyon, and no one can tell how long this slag cooled, but immediately west, on the other side of the canyon a mountain is still burning."

The sides of that great ridge, "Smoky Mountain," are cool, too, but billows of bluish gray spout from the top near the southern end as if from some hellish furnace beneath. In some places, where veins have burned out and collapsed, the summit has caved in to a depth of 50 to 75 feet.

Smoke shoots out intermittently, in dense puffs, from crevasses three to four feet wide and of unplumbed depth. They are too hot to be measured, explains Dr. Frazier, who says the smoke is hot enough to cook eggs. It has an odor like hot asphalt and deposits a sticky, yellowish soot. Davies describes it as "a sulphurous wrath"—"which caused us all to have a splitting headache."

The fire is eating very slowly toward the north along the high, table-like top of the mountain. And Dr. Frazier estimates it has 25 miles yet to go.

LEARNING 'BLIND FLYING' WITHOUT LEAVING the GROUND

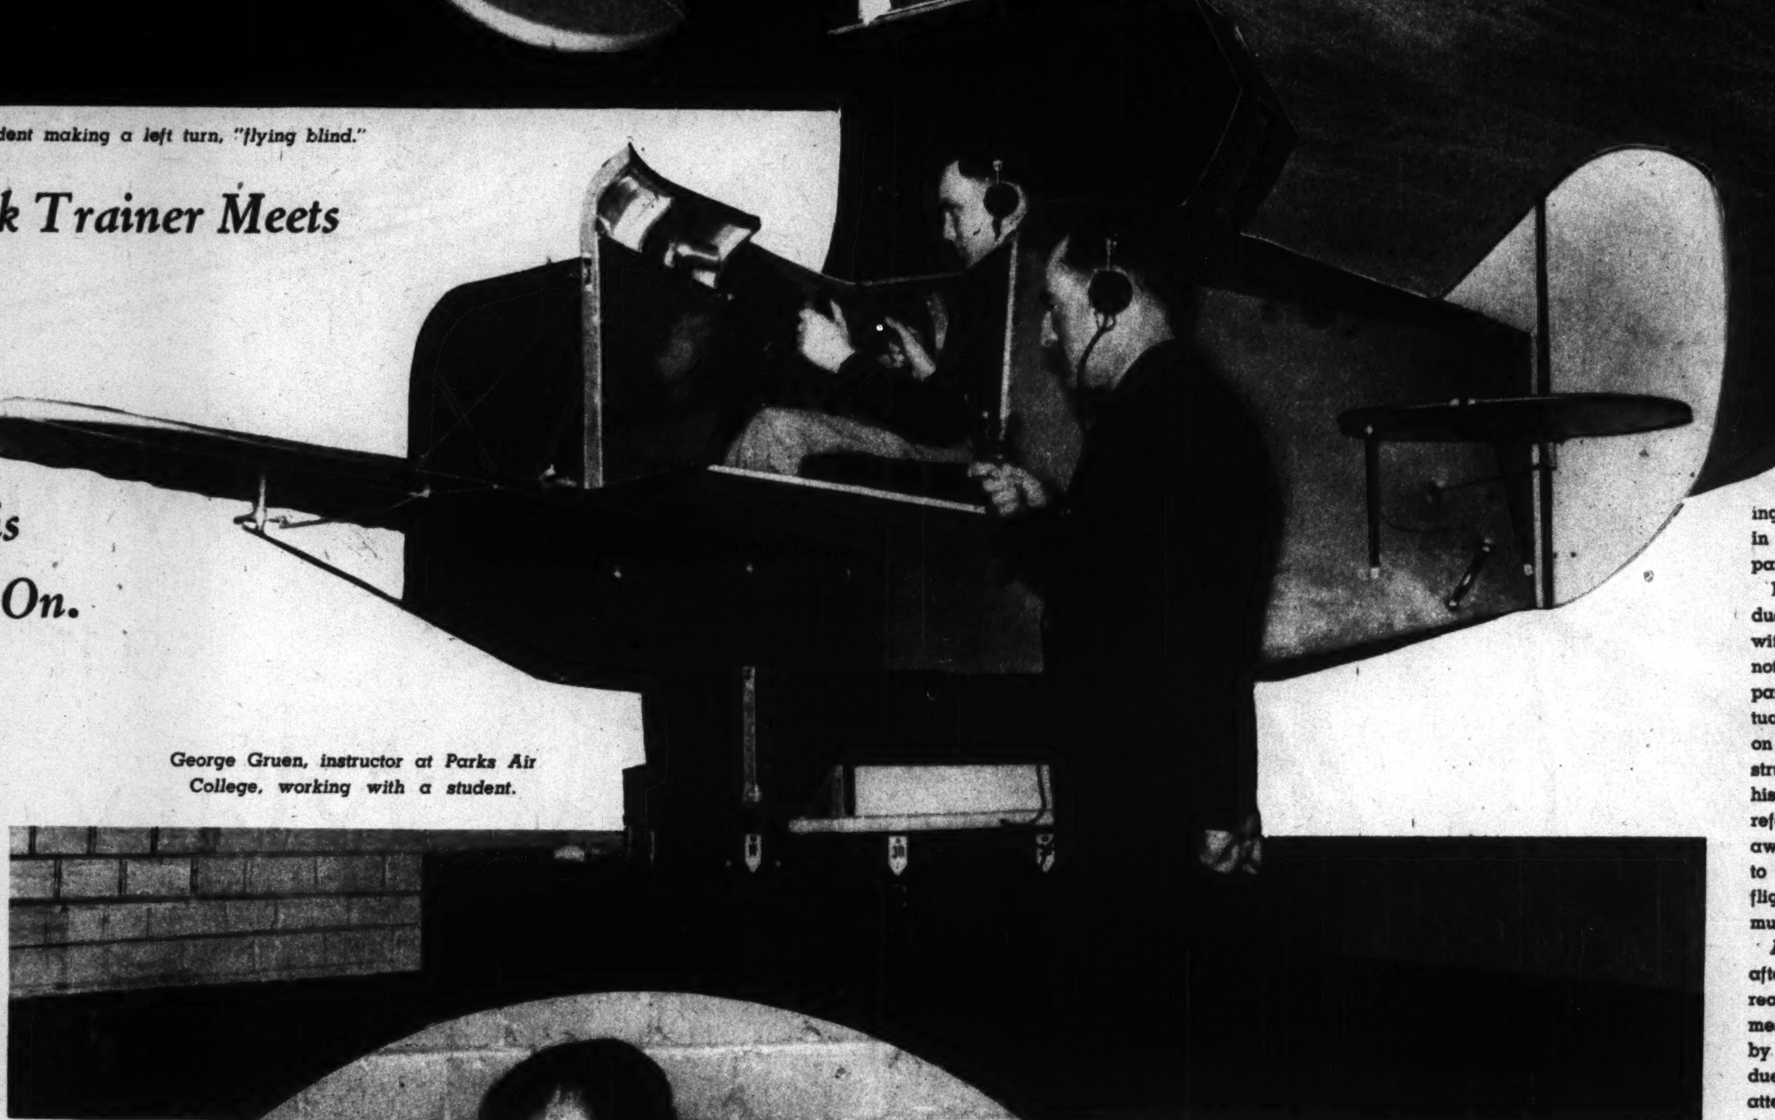
By SAM ARMSTRONG

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff



George Gruen, instructor at Parks Air College, working with a student.

LEARNING to fly an airplane on a straight course and at even keel has some similarity to the old stunt of rubbing one's stomach with one hand while the other pats the top of the head and then suddenly reversing these motions without confusion. Wings must be kept level, the nose of the ship at proper elevation, speed at a point sufficient to insure response of controls—all at the same time. It requires co-ordination.

In further comparison, blind flying, with the hooded cockpit restricting the pilot's view to the lighted instrument panel which contains gadgets more numerous than were obtainable for the model T Fords of another day, is something like the head and stomach trick executed while doing a horn pipe on a tight rope, yodeling Old Black Joe and mentally computing the probable national deficit as of next Fourth of July.

Then, at about this time, some transport pilots have learned, the stewardess sticks her head in and says the big Hollywood producer wants to know what time he thinks they'll make New York.

The writer got some idea of what it's about recently at Parks Air College near East St. Louis. He was handed a weather report which showed a ceiling of 500 feet, visibility of a half mile, temperature of 35 degrees, dew point (when precipitation would begin) of 25 degrees, barometer reading of 30.2 inches, northwest wind at two miles an hour, and told that his problem was to reach Kansas City without peeking. That was no sort of weather to be flying in even with gay Kansas City as a destination. But a problem is a problem and there were the instruments.

He saw, not on the flying line outside, but in the center of an office in the corner of a hangar, $7000 worth of new equipment resembling an airplane, though smaller except as to the cockpit, and climbed over the silver wing and into the single leather-covered seat in the blue fuselage. The safety belt fastened and the roof closed over him he eased forward the throttle at his left and felt a draft about his ankles. Eyes glued on the instrument panel, he advanced the throttle further. Then, gently bringing the stick toward him, he noted the rate of climb indicator with satisfaction.

With the altimeter showing 2000 feet, the stick went forward to level off, the needle stood motionless except for the quivering from vibration, and pressure of the seat back eased. A glance at the bank and turn indicator indicated a low left wing resulting from momentary inattention while putting the ship on a westward compass course until a radio beam could be picked up. He clapped over his head radio ear phones, found on a hook at his right, as he held the stick with his knees.

The tachometer showed propeller revolutions of 1600 a minute, producing an air speed of about 200 miles an hour. No sooner had the radio control been set for the Lambert-St. Louis Field frequency than the strident buzz of dot-dash, dot-dash, indicating a position to the "A" side of the beam, came through the ear phones. Soon it became the steady overlapping Morse code signal of "A" and "N"—a continuous buzzing sound—signifying a position exactly on the beam.

There was a secure feeling of an even keel and that all was well. But what was that altimeter doing? It was edging alarmingly counter-clockwise which meant the ground must be coming up. A moment's distrust and the dinned words of the instructor were recalled.

BRINGING the stick back slowly returned the altimeter needle to its proper position of indicated safety, but the ear phones' cicada-like chorus had become a dash-dot, dash-dot, that meant the "N" side of the beam had been reached, requiring a swing back to the course.

There were unimportant ups and downs and brief lateral excursions before a moment's reference to map and quick mental computation of speed and elapsed time indicated a theoretical position near Columbia where the radio beam from Kansas City should be picked up after a "flight" of 30 minutes. Then the weather conditions previously outlined indicated advisability of obtaining some later information about weather at Kansas City. A request on the microphone in the cockpit brought through the ear phones from the instructor the word that the field there was closed down by fog and that landing there should not be attempted. Likewise, emergency fields nearby were blanketed by mist. The correct answer was a 180-degree turn and a ride back to St. Louis on the beam, ahead of icing conditions shown to be probable by a reported falling temperature at Columbia.

But what had become of the beam during these moments of concern about the weather? And what was that altimeter needle doing down there and that air speed indicator at 250 miles an hour? By the time this situation was remedied, a glance at the compass showed a southerly course. A 180-degree turn after several minutes again located the beam and a 90-degree turn regained the aerial highway. An hour after takeoff the plane was landed at Parks Airport.

The reporter unlatched the hood, cut the switch and stepped on the floor from which he had climbed an hour before, to be greeted by George Gruen, chief pilot and instructor in advanced flying and instrument work.

Gruen still was seated at his desk, but before him was a sheet of paper on which was inscribed a design similar to a 3-year-old child's letter to Santa Claus.

But each curve, tangent, direction and length of line was significant. It told the story of aerial sins of omission and commission on the erratic theoretical flight half way to Kansas City in the new device, the first in this district, although recently put in use elsewhere for training of army flyers. A stylus, actuated by the controls which exactly duplicate those of an airplane, and notes of the instructor had faithfully recorded the flight.

As nearly as the reporter could tell, he had flown under the St. Charles bridge, over the Mineola Valley at a prodigious height, descending while fretting with the radioed Kansas City weather report to knock the statue of Ceres from the dome of the State Capitol, yet lived to blushingly report a happy landing.

The automatically penciled record showed each deviation of direction, and heavy points made by the circular movement of the stylus indicated tail spins in moments when the novice centered attention on what appeared most important at the moment instead of being conscious of other errors indicated within the numerous circles on the instrument panel.

Loss of air speed preceding spin was due to undue elevation of the ship's nose without compensating acceleration, carefully noted by the instructor since the training apparatus is pivoted so that it responds by actual change in its position to each pressure on the controls. With only the lighted instrument board before him, the student loses his sense of balance and, except when he refers to the mechanical indicators, is unaware of deviations from the horizontal as to wings or fuselage. As in actual blind flight, his instincts will betray him. He must put implicit trust in the instruments.

As long as the proper course was kept after the theoretical radio beam was reached, the head phones carried that message. Failure to allow for drift caused by a wind of increased velocity, perhaps due to a change in altitude, was called to attention by the change in the identifying dots and dashes of the beam. The problems which can be improvised by make-believe changes in weather conditions are no more difficult than those created by Mother Nature herself.

IN SHORT, Gruen explained, the new device will simulate actual flying conditions with the advantage that in preliminary instruction in blind flying, particularly, much time in taking off and landing will be saved.

It will be used both for the instruction of seasoned pilots who wish to learn blind flying and radio navigation and for neophytes taking their first lessons in nomenclature and use of the many instruments. Experience elsewhere has indicated advantages in teaching beginners to fly by instrument instead of visual reference early in their courses.

Furthermore, the noise created by the mechanism and the electric fan that circulates air for the comfort of the student in the close confines of the covered cockpit and causes desirable vibration of instruments, is much less than the noise of a motor. This permits intelligent discussion of problems as they occur, whereas in actual blind flying by students, noise prevents correction at the time when visual note of minor error might be taken and the safety of student and instructor might depend in cases of more serious mistakes upon use of the dual controls.

Mutiny on the Mary Russell

By ROBERT RANDOLPH

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

SIX Japanese cruisers were shelling the Dmitri Donskoy quite effectively as they pursued the cruiser from the Straits of Tsushima where most of the Russian fleet had been destroyed by gunfire a few hours before. It was the final naval engagement of the Russo-Japanese War of 1904-5. Despite the hopelessness of the situation, the crew of the Donskoy stuck to their guns. But down in the after section of the birthdeck, there were 200 men who had been pulled out of the water when the Oslyabya sunk. Four hundred of their companions had been killed by shells or drowned. The survivors, having no duties, being in the most unprotected part of the Donskoy, and still shaky from their close call aboard the Oslyabya, became panic-stricken as the first Japanese shells crashed into the cruiser. One shell burst in their section. Several men were killed or wounded. There was a rush for the hatchways leading to the upper decks. Guards turned most of the men back.

Those who broke through spread panic about the Donskoy. The Donskoy's captain, already fighting against terrible odds, had to take time out to subdue the mutineers who were demanding that a white flag be hoisted. Physical force, bullets from small arms and water from fire hose finally drove the mutineers back to their quarters. All the hatches were battened down and more guards posted. As the shellfire became heavier, some of the crazed mutineers crawled through gaping shellholes, made their way to the battery deck and leaped overboard or were shot by the Donskoy men. Twelve mutineers were blown to bits when a Japanese projectile struck an ammunition hoist loaded with shells. More shells fell in their section on the birthdeck. Men groveled on the deck. Others dashed about until they fell. Here and there a man sat composedly awaiting the end.

Night was falling and the Donskoy was in the shadow zone near Matsushima Island. The Japanese were unable to see. The Donskoy, almost riddled, was about to go down, it appeared. The survivors, including the mutineers, made for shore in what lifeboats were left and on pieces of wreckage. The last to leave the cruiser opened the seacocks so the Donskoy would be sure to go down. The next day Japanese landing detachments, backed by cruisers' guns, made prisoners of all the Russians.

Thus ended one of the most unusual mutinies that ever happened on any sea. This incident is only briefly mentioned in Irvin Anthony's "Revolt at Sea," recently published by G. P. Putnam's Sons (New York), the author citing it in support of his statement that "the causes of mutinies are often unbelievably queer and unproportioned." Anthony points out that a ship is a segregated social unit with every sailor living under pressure such as sometimes is found in jails and prisons. The escape mechanisms of a sailor, he says, extend from an extended spree on shore to smashing noses on board ship. When these fail, "irritability is born that may end anywhere."

BUT not all mutinies are so explainable, Anthony adds—his study showing tha some "just happened," others followed grievances real or fancied, many were planned by criminal minds ashore before the ships sailed, and some few were due to men who had lost their minds.

One of the most unusual and terrible crimes that ever happened at sea, according to Anthony, occurred when a captain with an unblemished record went insane and imagined that his crew was planning to mutiny. It occurred on the Mary Russell, one of the many small brigs which carried the trade of the seven seas back in 1828. She left the Barbadoes on May 9 with a cargo of hides and sugar for her home port at Cork, Ireland. Under Captain William Stewart, a most religious man whose faded blue eyes sometimes gleamed with a peculiar light, were Mate Smith, Second Mate Swanson, a jobless mate named Raynes who had begged a passage home, Connell and Keating who had tended mules on the trip to Barbadoes, an 11-year-old boy who was taking a sea voyage for his health, four seamen and three apprentices between 12 and 15 years old. Fourteen persons in all.

Raynes, who was a good seaman but couldn't let whisky alone, occasionally lent a hand with the work when an extra man was needed. It was a fine, quiet ship's company, he thought to himself, save for Stewart. He put the stooped, thin captain down as a queer card. It was strange, he thought, the way the captain left everything to his mates and mooned about the deck, talking for hours to himself. The captain sometimes scowled when he heard Raynes joking in Gaelic with the crew. It did not occur to Raynes that Stewart did not understand Gaelic and might be suspicious of talk in a strange tongue. Neither did it occur to Howes, one of the seamen, that Stewart would take it amiss when Howes asked to be taught navigation.

Stewart concluded that Raynes was resorting to Gaelic so he could preach mutiny and that Howes wanted to learn navigation so he could take the ship over after Stewart was killed. A month out of Barbadoes, after much talking to himself, he called all hands aft and bluntly accused them of planning to take his ship from him. Staring at them through his watery eyes, he demanded a confession. On every face was amazement. There were angry denials. Raynes, speaking gently, explained that he did not know the captain did not understand Gaelic and promised he would use that tongue no more. Stewart dismissed the men and boys, apparently convinced that he had made a mistake. But the brooding continued. He had a vision in which he saw Raynes coming to kill him. He collected a harpoon, crowbar, ax and a grain (murderous five-pronged fish spear) and stowed them by his berth within hand's reach. He tore pages out of the log and threw the charts and a sextant overboard. Captain Stewart would show them. He'd fix them so they couldn't navigate. Secretly, he kept the ship's position on a chart under his bunk.

A day later, on June 19, Stewart, armed with a harpoon, threatened the men, then shook hands with all but Mate Smith, and ordered that Smith be tied. The men refused, saying Smith had done nothing. Then they walked away. Stewart returned to his cabin and got two pistols. He felt he was a match for the mutineers now—yes, they were mutineers for hadn't they refused duty when he ordered them to bind Smith?

On deck, the men persuaded Smith that if he surrendered to the captain it would lay his suspicions at rest. They went to the Captain. Eagerly, the Captain had the mate trussed and thrown in the lazarette just under the cabin. An airhole was cut in the deck. Smith was uncomfortable but he was not discouraged since he had his knife hidden on him. Neither was the Captain discouraged. He felt that he was gaining the upper hand now that he had the arch conspirator safely stowed away.

Calling in the three apprentices and the invalid he told the impressionable boys that they must stand with him against the eight remaining mutinous seamen. The danger was great. Nevertheless, the captain could succeed with them, and Lloyd's, the insurers, would reward them when the brig made port. Open-mouthed, they dramatized everything Stewart told them, seeing themselves as heroic lads standing by their champion in a fight against evil. The Captain saw that he was triumphant and the peculiar light in his eyes danced wildly. He held his peace for two more days.

The Captain then reckoned that he was less than 400 miles from Cork. The weather was ideal and promised to stay so. At four bells in the afternoon watch the crew was astonished by an order to close reef the mainsail and take in all head sails. The Captain had been acting more like his old self the past two days. This taking in sail must be the sign of another queer spell coming on him. But seeing no harm in the order, they obeyed.

Gleefully, the bent figure of the Captain hurried down the steep companionway to his cabin. His plan was on its way to success. Under reduced sail he could handle the ship with the aid of the boys. Nothing more now but to put irons on the eight mutinous dogs. Even while the willing men were laboring with the sail, Stewart ordered Connell to come to his cabin. When Connell appeared he found himself staring into the muzzle of a pistol.

Astounded, Connell could do nothing but blink his eyes in the gloomy cabin. The Captain nodded to two of the apprentices. Anxious to aid in overcoming the wicked crew, the youngsters quickly tied Connell with many turns of the line. Keating, the second mule tender, was called next. He also was easy to handle. The seamen were laying down from aloft. Raynes was next. Then Swanson, Cramer and Sullivan. Howes bolted. The Captain fired and missed. Howes locked himself in the forecastle and told Murley, the only other seaman not tied up, what had happened. Then the Captain came to the door and argued with them. He became hysterical. He couldn't sleep at night unless he knew they were bound. It was terrible not to sleep. They ought to be merciful and let him sleep. He wouldn't hurt them. Had they no mercy?

Howe and Murley finally gave in. They saw no use to be afraid of an old man who was weak in body and mind. Perhaps if they humored him his mind would take a turn for the better. They submitted. The ready apprentices tied up the two powerful men. Then they lugged them to the cabin where the other six men were. Smith was still in the lazarette just beneath. The Captain, after tightening the lashings on each of the men, turned in and slept soundly.

The next morning he drove staples in the deck at the head and feet of each man and rigged nooses about their necks so secured to the staples that any man who moved would be throttled. The lashings already were cutting into swollen flesh but Stewart kept tightening them from time to time. He hovered over the groaning men like a vicious bird of prey. Occasionally he took the wheel for a few minutes but most of the time he spent gloating over the "mutinous men" he had "subdued." They cursed themselves that they had not been mutinous.

THE powerful Howes, struggling in desperation, broke his bonds despite the noose just as Stewart came back from a brief trick at the wheel. Stewart, pistol in hand, told him he must die. Howes tried to pacify the Captain. The Captain fired. The range was point-blank, but he missed. The second shot hit Howes in the thumb. The third grazed his side. Howes fell to the deck, feigning death. Stewart ran on deck for a minute, returned and noticed that Howes' hand had moved. Passing out axes and harpoons to the apprentices, Stewart told them to kill Howes. Howes leaped to his feet, grabbed Stewart's pistol and held the group at bay. But suddenly an apprentice struck him with an ax and the group escaped as Howes stood blinded by blood running into his eyes. Still blinded and stunned, Howes fled from the cabin and hid in the hold instead of freeing his mates.

On deck, Stewart waved frantically at a passing ship but the vessel ignored his signals. He slunk back to the cabin.

"The curse of God!" he screamed, and grabbing up a crowbar he brained the seven pinioned men one after another. Then he seized an ax and strode from one body to another, striking the dying men haphazardly. The blood ran down on Smith in the lazarette as Smith prayed that the mad Captain would forget him. But Stewart remembered.

He thrust through the air hole at Smith. Finding it difficult to reach his victim, he enlarged the hole. Then he stabbed again and again. Smith's head was gashed, an eye gouged out, an ear slit and his side ripped.

"He is dead," Stewart muttered, nailed up the air hole and boasted to the apprentices, "A parcel of dead dogs; I think no more of them."

NEW YORK.

THE Gate Theater in Dublin rates only slightly below the renowned Abbey Theater Group and the young man made it quite clear that this eminence in the world of make-believe was the only reason he had selected it as the scene of his first Irish appearance. The directors were delighted to have the Theater Guild star—for so he described himself—associate himself with their company for a few weeks. He stayed a season and a half and played one performance with the Abbey group—the first American to attain this honor.

Orson Welles likes to think sometimes of what the directors of the Gate Theater would have done to him had they known he was only a brash young American 16 years old, albeit large for his age, whose only dramatic experience had been in a school play and who was, indeed, traveling through the Emerald Isle by donkey cart as a student painter.

They might have taken a shillelah to him then but now they would greet him with arms wide and the welcome mat spread all the way from the port of Cobh to the capital. For in the six years since that audacious day Orson Welles has become one of the most significant forces in the American theater. To quote a famous critic he has: "taken the town by the ears and put new fire into the art of the stage."

Right now his ebullient Mercury Theater is raising the merry Ned with the staid practices of conventional producers. He staged "Julius Caesar" with that ancient Roman in the trappings of a Fascist general and the characteristics of a certain Italian dictator. He produced—or rather he dared to produce—Thomas Dekker's ribald "merrie conceited comedie" "The Shoemaker's Holiday" which gave Queen Elizabeth stitches when it was first performed in the early 1600's.

Welles, with his fine disdain for accepted practice, cut Dekker's 338-year-old masterpiece in half, zipped up the dialogue and had the first nighters gasping. It is not necessary to go into the plot here, but the language used by Dekker's characters is definitely not the kind for polite company. Nevertheless so adroitly was the piece carried out that no one was offended and the critics did nip-ups in the streets to celebrate the premiere.

These are two spectacular items for any producer's biography but they are almost lost in Welles' scintillating record. As a producer for the Federal Theater Project of the W P A he put on that amazing bit of French whimsy "Horse Eats Hat." He laid "Macbeth" in Haiti with Negro actors playing the roles to the beat of primitive music. He staged and starred in "The Tragicall Historie of Dr. Faustus" which used to be a dreary textbook affair but under his touch became the most successful production the Federal Theater Project had to its credit.

He toyed with lights, appearing and disappearing in blinding flashes, in Dr. Faustus. Something of the same technique he carried over into Marc Blitzstein's operetta "The Cradle Will Rock" which concerns itself with labor trouble in a steel mill. The Federal project got itself into a tangle on Blitzstein's opus because of the labor angle and Welles took it over with Sam H. Grisman, producer of the phenomenal "Tobacco Road." The critics covered it with a mantle of reverent superlatives.

This is a record verging on the incredible for a young man of 22 but Welles does not intend to stop. On his schedule for future production are John Webster's horror play "The Duchess of Malfi" and the Shakespearean trilogy "King Henry IV," parts 1 and 2, and "King Henry V." And still later Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest," Shaw's "Heartbreak House" and the William Gillette farce "Too Much Johnson."

These will be for Broadway consumption. As a laboratory for testing his ideas Welles will sponsor Sunday evening "Worklight" performances which will consist of experimental productions of plays, musical pieces, ballets, etc.

Surprisingly little has been written about Welles for he prefers to project himself through his works. He is a tall, soft-looking youth with a high, shining forehead and a head of flowing black hair. His ties are invariably askew and his clothes loose-fitting. He is a dynamic director, flinging himself down the aisle with a shouted "no! no! no!" when a scene displeases him. He uses an amplifier system to carry his voice to all parts of the house during rehearsal. Despite the fact he is the youngest member of his company he gets instantaneuos obedience.

Welles' whole name is George Orson Welles. He was named after George Ade and a man named Orson Wells (no "e"), a friend of the family. Young Orson was born in Kenosha, Wisconsin, where his father was at one time engaged in automobile manufacturing. The elder Welles decided at that time that the automobile was only a fad and gave it up in favor of what seemed like the more permanent pursuit of making bicycle lamps. Mrs. Welles, the former Beatrice Ives, was a member of a Springfield family which had been neighbors and friends of the Abraham Lincolns.

Mrs. Welles died when Orson was a child and his father placed him in a private school at Woodstock, Illinois. The routine of school life was varied by summer trips with his father to various parts of Asia and Africa. It was at this school that Welles staged his first production of "Julius Caesar" in which he played both Cassius and Marc Antony. These days he plays Brutus. While at school he was retained as tutor by Boris Anisfeld, the noted Russian painter, now of Chicago.

Then came the walking trip through Ireland. With the reputation as an actor won there Welles went to London where he found a number of offers awaiting him. The English restrictions on alien actors interfered, however, and he returned to the United States. Somehow New York producers were not too enthusiastic about his services at the time. With leisure heavy on his hands he, as usual, did the unusual.

Loading a trunk with books he set sail for Africa, found himself a home on a mountaintop and spent the next year writing a book on Shakespeare. He called it "Everybody's Shakespeare" and it has enjoyed a remarkable success.

On his return to Chicago Welles met Thornton Wilder, the novelist, who, he found, had heard of his Irish exploits. Wilder told him Katharine Cornell was preparing a company for a tour of the country and sent him to New York with a letter of introduction to Alexander Woollcott who, in turn, presented him to Miss Cornell.

Thus Welles joined Miss Cornell on that tour of the United States which did so much to reopen the road. He played Marchbanks in "Candida," Mercutio in "Romeo and Juliet" and one of the brothers in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." In the New York engagement that followed he played Tybalt in "Romeo and Juliet."

AMONG those who witnessed this performance was John Houseman, young associate professor of drama at Vassar, who had just launched his career in the theater with a production of Archibald MacLeish's "Panic." A professional association soon ripened into a fast friendship and the two began planning a theater.

But they had novel ideas and the commercial theater is a precarious financial adventure.

Their dilemma was solved by the United States Government which obligingly started the Federal Theater Project and invited them to participate. How far they have gone since their W P A days can be seen from the fact that Welles recently gave a party to which he came in a chauffeured automobile with several cases of champagne.

With the Federal experience under their belts they launched the Mercury Theater. They had little financial backing until, one day, the telephone rang and Welles heard a voice saying:

Some say the backer was a well-known financier which would be an intriguing thought since the Mercury Theater is at least revolutionary in concept.

Welles was married in 1934 at a candlelight ceremony to Miss Virginia Nicholson. They expect a child in few months.

That's Welles up to the present. And perhaps this article has cloaked in skin and bones one who has been only a disembodied voice to you before. Oh yes, you've heard Welles' voice—if you've listened to the Chicago radio stations—for he plays that sinister radio character with the horrible laugh:

"The Shadow."

ST. AUGUSTINE, Florida.

A BIT of Neptune's weird underwater kingdom as only the helmeted diver or the bathysphere observer knows it will be placed before the public in March when the world's most unusual aquarium is opened by Marine Studios on a site 18 miles south of here. It will consist of two big tanks, linked by a flume, with portholes scattered along the sides and over the bottoms so the scientist, the schoolchild and the curious may get intimate views of unsegregated marine life in its natural habitat. There will be none of the old familiar aquarium method of displaying each specie in its own small compartment. Instead, a cross-section of uncharted submarine fairyland will be presented with many of the denizens of the deep at large together following nature's scheme of a violent struggle for existence.

Persons watching through the portholes will see such things as sinister-eyed octopi crawling over ebony lava rocks, grotesque crabs waving enormous pincers from behind shimmering purple veils of seafans, schools of multihued fish darting among seaweed fronds in search of algae, mollusks and worms, shark suckers attaching themselves to phlegmatic turtles, eels spawning among beds of polished mussels, and ghostly jellyfish drifting past monoliths of brilliant coral.

The larger of the two tanks is 100 feet long, 40 feet wide and 18 feet deep. The other has a diameter of 75 feet and a depth of 11. Enclosed galleries run at different levels within the walls of the two containers. The portholes in these galleries and in the bottom of the tanks are so placed that the observer can look from four angles: from the bottom, from the sides at a level just above the bottom, from the sides just below the top and at a few intermediate points. There also are walks along the top allowing the observer to look down just as he would at a fishpond in his backyard. By means of moving picture cameras stationed at several of the portholes, it is expected that a complete film record may be obtained of the life of any particular group of fish.

The tanks and the flume, will contain more than 785,000 gallons of water, weighing approximately 6,542,000 pounds. Nearly 5,000,000 gallons of water will be pumped daily through the tanks from the Atlantic ocean, insuring several complete changes of water every 24 hours.

THE pumping system has been designed so that 3600 gallons of water can be pumped every minute, making it possible to fill the tanks in less than four hours. The water from the ocean will enter the tanks 18 inches below the surface of the aquaria through inlets which are designed to create a rotating action on the surface, thus removing any atmospheric precipitation which otherwise would collect on the surface.

A special form of concrete, blown through a "gun," has been applied to the walls of the tanks to protect the steel from the salt water.

Underneath the flume, there will be a complete laboratory where scientists may do research. Here will be the office of Arthur F. McBride, former assistant to Dr. S. K. Noble of the American Museum of Natural History, who has been appointed biologist of the Marine Studios.

Before this whole project was launched, experiments were carried out in capturing and transporting fish of the larger species. Late in 1936, after a summer of intense study and experimentation, success rewarded the efforts of Ilia Tolstoy, grandson of Count Tolstoy, and Dr. G. K. Noble of the American Museum of Natural History. It was reported that the largest fish and aquatic mammals could be put to sleep almost instantaneously by the injection of a drug through a hypodermic needle.

With the reported solution of this problem came the realization that the handling and transportation of the captured specimens meant additional study and testing. The result is a most unusual ocean craft. Ilia Tolstoy conceived it, and E. B. McCrohan, a naval architect, designed the craft. It was built in St. Augustine and christened the "Porpoise" on October 28, 1937, by Mrs. Fred P. Cone, wife of Florida's Governor.

The 48-foot craft, fashioned along the lines of a shrimp boat, has as its distinguishing feature a watertight well at the stern—17 feet long, three and one-half feet wide and three and one-half feet high. The stern is in reality a trap door through which a metal tank, approximately the same size as the well, can be rolled into the water behind the boat. After the sea creatures are quieted by the injection of the drug, they can be maneuvered into the metal tank which will be connected with a watering and aerating system to provide fresh salt water and air during the journey back to shore.

UPON reaching shore this metal tank will be transported by crane and deposited in a special pond until the fish have completely regained consciousness. In this manner it is expected that sharks, porpoises, giant rays and barracuda can be handled.

In charge of the "Porpoise," is youthful Captain Eugene Williams, son of Captain Thad Williams, who for many years piloted Zane Grey, the author, on his trips in Pacific waters and in the South Sea.

Howes, he tumbled into his bunk without another look at the shambles he had created and fell into a deep sleep.

Then Smith, who had escaped a fatal thrust from the harpoon, worked loose his hand lashings, drew his knife and cut the line from his feet. Crawling slowly over the cargo of hides he reached the main hatch. As he lay gasping, he heard Howes groaning. He crawled to him. Howes had found an ax and a pistol. The two men were too weak to do anything.

When Stewart awoke he decided that the apprentices were dangerous. He summoned them from their guard duty and told them they must be bound. Panic stricken, the boys wondered what to do. Their moment of terror was broken by a deep hail: "Mary Russell, ahoy!"

The distress signal that Stewart had hoisted after he had secured all his crew had attracted attention at last. By coincidence, the Mary Stubbs, commanded by Captain Callendar, who long had known Stewart as a God-fearing, able master mariner, had come alongside. Stewart told his tale of mutiny suppressed with the plausibility which sometimes is the gift of the insane. Callendar suggested a search be made for the one man that Stewart said had escaped.

Howes, who also knew Callendar, crawled out with Smith at his heels. The sight of Smith, who Stewart thought was dead, sent Stewart off into violent raving. Callendar thought it was due to the shock he had experienced in subduing the "mutiny." Smith and Howes were in a state of collapse so Stewart's story held. Callendar sent the two wounded men to his own ship and put two of his seamen to help on the Mary Russell.

On the second day, Callender went aboard the Mary Russell to see how things were. Stewart ran to him and began a long tale of how the two men from the Mary Stubbs were planning to kill him. Callendar, beginning to see light, tried to reassure his old friend. Whereupon, Stewart ran forward, climbed the bulwark and leaped into the ocean, crying, "Lord help me!" Callendar's boat picked him up but no sooner was he aboard than over he went again. Callendar took him to the Mary Stubbs.

OFF the Irish coast, Stewart again leaped over and swam to a passing sloop. Off Cape Clear, a few hours later, he again jumped overboard and swam to another fishing smack. Once ashore he was turned over to the police. After trial for murder, he was sent to an asylum where he lived for more than 20 years. His delusions alternated with his sane moments until his death.

In contrast to the unfortunate case of Captain Stewart, there is the story of Captain Samuel Samuels, probably the best clipper captain in the Atlantic ferry during the days that sail was fighting steam. He and his Dreadnaught are famous for the fast passages they made. Samuels, like Stewart, was very religious. He and his mates made the Dreadnaught known as "the wild boat of the Atlantic," a "wild boat" being one in which there was plenty of "belaying pin soup" and "hand spike hash" for the sailor who didn't attend to his business. Samuels always said he didn't care how tough the "packet rats" came—he could make a good crew out of them.

One day in 1859 when Samuels was about to sail from Liverpool with 200 immigrants for New York, Liverpool detectives came aboard and warned him that they had heard the sailors were going to make trouble for him. The port captain told him the same story. Samuels assembled his men, told them what he had learned about them, warned that they would lose out, and had them searched for weapons. A few hours later the ship was at sea.

"Steer steady," Samuels barked at the helmsman.

Samuels knocked the man unconscious. His officers put the man in irons. A few minutes later the crew came aft and demanded that "Mike" be released. Samuels ordered the crew back to work. They refused to go.

FIRST, Samuels went to his cabin and got two pistols. Then he sent the passengers below. But the crew refused to move. They crowded toward Samuels until he drew his pistols and threatened them with death. The passengers begged Samuels to return, but he said his destination was New York and that was where he was going. For 56 hours Samuels and his officers went without sleep and the crew without food.

Finally Samuels assembled 17 passengers, armed them with iron bars taken from the cargo, and advanced on the mutinous sailors. The sailors stood their ground, knives ready. Then both sides rushed and there was short, sharp struggle from which Samuels and his passengers emerged victorious. No one was seriously injured.

Laying his pistols aside, Samuels called on a sailor named Finnegan, who had been the ringleader, to apologize. Finnegan replied that he never asked any man's pardon. Samuels went for him with his fists, beat him into submission. The mutiny ended.

The Dreadnaught was a mess. Samuels set the crew to work cleaning up, polishing brass, scrubbing decks and overhauling rigging. All the way into New York he worked them as they had never worked before. Just before the ship docked, Samuels assembled all hands, forgave the mutineers and preached to them of a better life.

The police came aboard, but Samuels refused to make any charges. From then on, Samuels had little trouble on the Atlantic ferry.

The TALE of CINDERELLA

By WALTER DAHLGREN

Cinderella's Fairy Godmother, having appeared to her in a blaze of light, told the girl to be comforted. "I will make it possible for you to go to the Prince's Ball," she continued. Cinderella sat up in amazement. She dried her eyes and stammered—"B-b-b-b-but how? I have no fine gowns—nor anything that I would need to go!" "Don't worry my child," said the kind old lady, "We have EVERYTHING that's necessary. Then taking a magic wand, which she carried, she touched Cinderella's patched and worn dress—and it became a splendid gown. After that she had the girl fetch a large pumpkin and from a trap, three rats and two mice. These also did she touch with the magic wand—and lo, there stood a handsome coach. It was complete with three little horses and two little men. "Now," said the Fairy Godmother, now you have the grandest gown and the finest coach in all the land—and you can go to the ball."

DIRECTIONS ● Mount the page upon a piece of heavy cardboard and then cut out the parts. Be sure also to cut out the windows and cut on the heavy line around the door. Fold the door back on dotted line to open. Next paste the team together as indicated. Now take some heavy thread and run it from the center of the black circle, at the back of each horse's neck, to the driver's hands. To join last week's Pumpkin Coach to today's Guilded Coach make box as shown in diagram. Next center the box between coaches and paste tabs to inside of each. Be sure the tabs do not show at windows and doors. This completes the Magic Coach.

CAPTAIN CRUNCH

THE CHARACTERS

CAPTAIN CRUNCH—A snowman who has come to life.

BILL BUNNY—A surprised little rabbit.

When Bill Bunny finished making his snowman he stood back to admire him. "Isn't he a dandy?" said Bill. "I'm going to call him Captain Crunch. Gosh, I wish he were alive." And to the little rabbit's surprise Captain Crunch came to life. Poor Bill, he thought he was dreaming when he saw the Captain walk, and he doesn't dare believe his ears when he hears the Captain speaking. Yet the Captain does walk and talk, and we hear him talking as

THE PLAY BEGINS

CAPTAIN CRUNCH — Thank you, pal. You have done me a real kindness. For years I've been fluttering to earth as snowflakes, and then in the spring, I'd melt and run over the stones in Bug Brook to Turtle Creek. Then I'd flow into Roaring River and so on into the sea. Sometimes I'd evaporate and be drawn up into the clouds and come pitter pattering down to earth again and make the flowers grow. Then you came along and made a man of me—a live man. You even gave me a name. You called me Captain Crunch—and Captain Crunch it shall be. Captain Crunch, at your service, sir.

BILL BUNNY—(Bewildered.) I-I-I-I d-don't u-understand.

CAPTAIN CRUNCH—You don't understand? (He looks at Bill's mittens.) Where did you get those mittens? You aren't, by any chance, a witch who changed herself into a rabbit?

BILL BUNNY—No, I always was a rabbit. And I found those mittens.

CAPTAIN CRUNCH—You found them? My, my—what luck. Those are the magic mittens an old witch was wearing when she changed me into a snowman—but I must not think of that. I might cry, and if I do the tears will melt my nose off my face—those mittens are magic. Any wish anyone makes when they are wearing them comes true. If they were big enough I'd put them on and wish I was my old self again.

BILL BUNNY—Maybe I can wish it for you.

CAPTAIN CRUNCH—(Sadly.) No, no, old man, that won't work. You get but one wish on any one subject. Now, let me think. (Suddenly he has an idea. He kneels down behind Bill and holds tightly to Bill's legs.) Wish that we were in Magic Land. I'll find someone there who can make me myself again. Hurry, before I melt. (Bill looks doubtfully at his mittens, then he makes the wish. Instantly the magic mittens pull them through the air at a terrible speed. Poor Bill, he is very frightened and almost wishes he were back in Hickory Hollow again. But he doesn't.)

Drogheda, Ireland;
Jan. 3, 1905.

Unearned increment got him in the movies (and curiously) but he couldn't stay put; it took marksmanship, three Atlantic crossings, a Hollywood gas station and a Paramount scout to land him a steady job. Used his late aunt's $17,000 to see the world; his last $50 to dine a London star, who got him a movie job at $6 a day (for three weeks). Toured villages; another picture job as marksman, offstage, shooting a mirror from Lya de Putti's hand; learned tap dancing; caught movie scout's eye in London revue but couldn't stick at Hollywood; followed the three crossings, at last a contract, release as a dud, and the filling station job. There a scout found him after searching for days; the studio wanted him for "The Gilded Lily," opposite Claudette Colbert, and since then he's been busy. Right name, Jack Millane; married Muriel Webber of Hollywood, 1931.

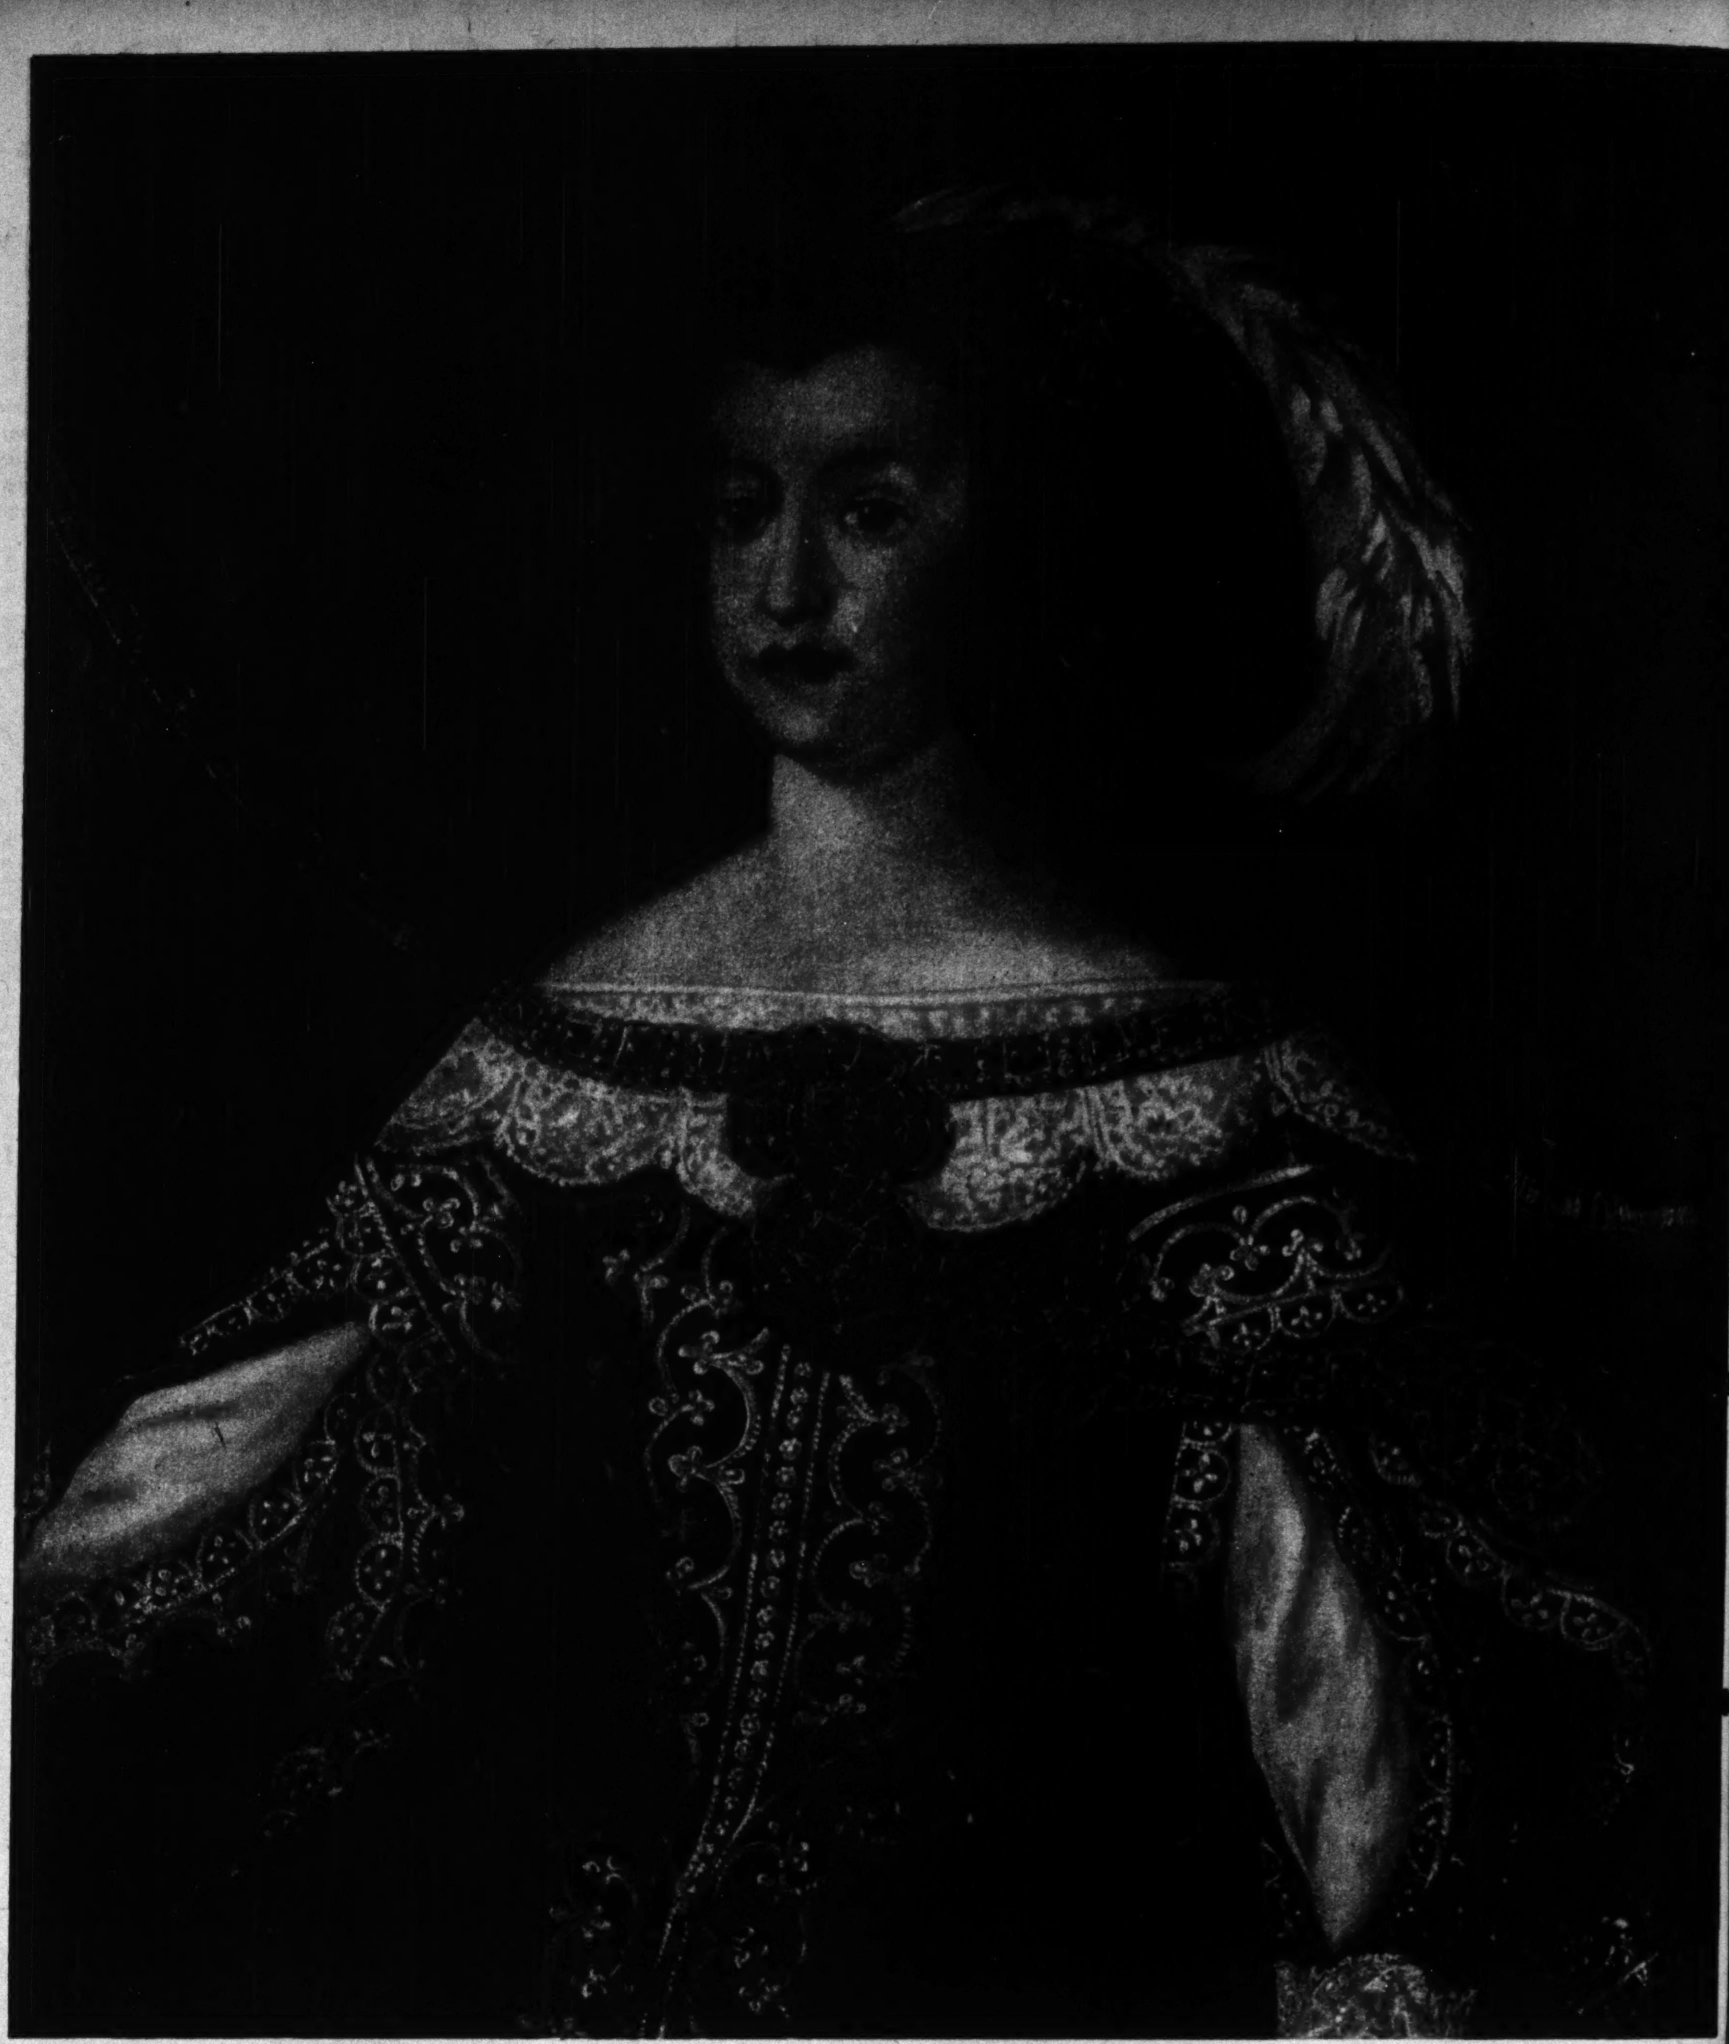
Controversy Over MILWAUKEE'S $20 'VELASQUEZ'



The "Mariana" by "Velasquez."

MILWAUKEE, Wisconsin.

THE Philips of Spain, like any other batch of rulers, were a very, very assorted lot. One of them, the fifth, had the conceivably debatable honor of founding the recently deposed Bourbon dynasty. The top of the heap according to the books was Philip II, a famously tough hombre. But far better known today is his grandson, Philip IV—curiously, but significantly not without parallel, for no works of his own.

Under his own name this Philip achieves a lone paragraph in the Encylopedia Brittanica, and even that could be compressed with little loss to his dates, 1605-65, and two sentences: "His reign . . . was a long story of political and military decay and disaster. . . . His court was grossly vicious."

There is his own poor bid for immortality. But at his court, dependent on his favor for food, lodging, medical attention and a wage of $44.50 a month (raised to $150 in 25 years) lived and worked a painter, Velasquez. Under the painter's name, Philip, so curtly dismissed under his own, figures largely in two full pages of the reference work; through that connection Philip's dull eyes, curling mustaches and Hapsburg under lip are more widely known now than when he lived, 300 years ago; and certainly but for that his reign, his wives, the shape of his last queen's brows, her habits of dress and even the way she wore her hair would not be the concerns of table talk and even heated debate here in Milwaukee, as they are today.

It began, this new interest in the heavy lipped Philip and his girl queen, Mariana, at an auction last October. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson Kemper had died childless; Mrs. Kemper's will failed to dispose of the household goods, and so they were being sold to settle the estate. A good many of the nicer things in the long drawing room had been sold and the gathered women, dealers and addicts were impatiently waiting for the auctioneer to get on to more attractive bait when his assistant held up a grimy portrait in a massive, tarnished frame.

SOMEBODY in the back of the room bid $3. The crowd laughed. The frame might be worth it, as the auctioneer pointed out. But the painting—. About all you could make out was a red something-or-other in the lady's hair, and a discolored plume in her headdress.

"Three, am I bid four? Three am I bid four? . . . Four, am I bid five? Five, say six; I have six, say seven . . ," sang the auctioneer. Perhaps someone had recognized the bidder and raised, after the manner of auction addicts, on suspicion. Whatever the cause, the bid had risen to the amazing sum of $20 when Auctioneer Donald Wall announced, "The beautiful portrait of Madame X has gone to the lady in the red hat in the back of the room."

The lady in the red hat was Mrs. George Raab, whose husband, for 20 years curator of the Layton Art Gallery here and adviser to its donor, Frederick Layton, returned to live in Milwaukee last summer after several years in charge of museums at Springfield and Decatur, Illinois. It was a little "on suspicion" that she had bid; she believed the painting might be a valuable copy of an old master.

She took it home in her car and that night Raab went to work cleaning it, a slow, painstaking task. And, on suspicion, he was inclined to think it might be a thankless task. It looked to him like a poor copy. But as the lights and contours came out under his work, he was struck by a sudden wild idea. It couldn't be true, he thought. But could it?

He went on, stopping now and then to step back for another view, to change the light and look again. And when the job was finished he was convinced that the painting was a Velasquez.

For a crude indication of what that means, it is only necessary to cite that one famous Velasquez was purchased by popular subscription for the national gallery in England in 1905 for $225,000.

The portrait was put on exhibition at the Milwaukee Art Institute. Opinions began to fly—"Velasquez" . . . "Velasquez school" . . . "Not Velasquez." There was no denial that it was an old painting, perhaps contemporary with the works of the Spanish master. Most of the professional persons who have scrutinized it at first hand are inclined to attribute it to the Velasquez studio, if not altogether to Velasquez himself.

And then arose the question of how a painting of the importance indicated could have lain hidden for many years in an American house. Such episodes, of course, are not unknown. Less than 15 years ago Viennese experts announced the discovery in a garret of a Velasquez portrait of the Infanta Margarita lost for two centuries or more.

Inquiry at first indicated that the portrait might have come down to the late Mr. Kemper from his grandfather, Jackson Kemper, known as first missionary bishop of the Episcopal Church in America. The bishop's home, on a country road between Delafield and the Nashotah Mission in Waukesha County, had held family heirlooms dating back a century or so. Ancestral Von Kempers had fought in the wars of the Spanish succession, and one of his forbears in another line, Sylvester Salisbury, English Governor at Albany, had been sent to Spain as a prisoner when the Dutch took Fort Orange. An original Holbein is still owned by the Salisburys.

LATER, however, a relative of Mrs. Kemper discounted these possibilities. This relative said that the portrait had never belonged to the bishop, but that Mrs. Kemper had bought it not many years ago in Florence and hung it in a small sitting room in the Kempers' house in Milwaukee.

Raab, who is now engaged in making linoleum cuts of Milwaukee scenes, printing at the Art Institute, was convinced the portrait was the work of Velasquez before he could identify its subject. In student days he had made a particular study of the Spanish artist, spent long hours before the Velasquez paintings in the great European collections and copied the portrait of the Infanta Margarita in the Louvre.

At first he was inclined to call his find a portrait of the Infanta, oldest daughter of Philip II and his second wife, Mariana of Austria, who was married to him at 14. Later study and further comparison with known portraits, however, have convinced him it is Mariana. He finds a great deal of similarity in the matter, if not altogether in the manner, of his portrait and the Mariana at the Metropolitan Museum in New York, which is believed to have come from the studio of Velasquez with perhaps some collaboration by the favored pupil, Bautista del Mazo, who married the master's eldest daughter, Francisca, and followed a step behind him in his career at court.

Prof. Oskar Hagen, historian of the art faculty in the University of Wisconsin and author of a book on Spanish art, agreed after a study of a photograph that the compositional type was that of the portraits of Mariana.

"Full length portraits of Mariana are in the Prado and at Schoenbrunn," said Prof. Hagen. "A reduced version is in the Metropolitan and sketches are in the collection of the New York Historical Society, in private collections in New York and in the collection of Sir George Drummond in Montreal.

"An opinion on the authenticity of this picture is impossible without having seen the painting itself. I would like to say, however, that one unusual trait is apparent. For some reason or other, Velasquez used to place the curtain which he so often combined with female portraits always on the left of the canvas, whereas here it is on the right. I know of only one exception to this placing. This is in the portrait of Isabella of Bourbon (Philip's first queen, who died in 1644) in a London collection."

Alfred G. Pelikan, director of the Art Institute, where the Raab portrait was shown, said he was convinced that it was of the school of Velasquez. Some students in other cities, tentatively and on what could be judged from photographs only, have noted details of method which, in the lack of a first-hand examination of the portrait itself, they hesitated to ascribe to Velasquez.

In this connection they pointed out a contrast in the handling of the bodice and the jewels, pure decoration in the Mariana at the Metropolitan, hard and infinitely detailed in the Mariana at Milwaukee.

Velasquez, they explained, had learned to subordinate such material, to squeeze the one drop of artistic essence out of it and let only that appear on his canvas. On the other hand, design of the sort was a preoccupation of provincial artists at the time. Suppose, now, a provincial family wanted a portrait of the sovereign, admired those of the court painter but could not afford them . . . Both to their taste and their artist's, the fresh detail of an elaborate costume would add to it greatly; both would feel that the master's oversight showed, if anything, a shocking indifference.

These conjectures were advanced, of course, with the weighty reservation that a great deal more might be obvious in the original than was apparent in a photograph.

"It is undoubtedly from the Velasquez studio," declares Dudley Crafts Watson of the Chicago Art Institute, who has seen the original, visiting the Milwaukee Institute to do so. He does not call himself an expert, but he has made a particular study of the Spanish school.

"The work seems to have been outlined by Velasquez and completed by himself and Mazo. It is impossible to see the exact point where the master left off and the student began. I should say, from something about the eyes and the colors in the shadow side of the face, that this portion was probably the work of Mazo.

"The detail of the gown and certain other qualities not quite so readily defined indicate that it came from the Velasquez studio very early, soon after Mazo entered the studio; probably some time between 1630 and 1638. It is quite unlike the treatment of such material in later portraits by Velasquez, but there is one in Chicago from this earlier period—a portrait of Isabella in the Max Epstein collection—in which the gown and other features are handled in precisely the same fashion."

Was the Portrait Which Turned Up at Auction Painted by the Spanish Master, by a Pupil, or by a Country Town Copyist?

When they viewed this head of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, two New York art critics said it was one of the best they had seen. The work of New Hampshire-born W. Stanley Martineau, a former pupil of the late Frederick Mac Monnies, it was modeled during many days as Mr. Roosevelt sat in the executive offices, writing, smoking, talking to visitors and members of his administrative staff, and musing on problems presented by his secretaries. The sculptor was permitted to remain in the executive offices day in and day out to study the President in his most natural moods.

"Ordinary cleansing methods, which merely polish the exposed surfaces of your teeth, fail to remove the decaying food deposits in hidden crevices between your teeth. And these deposits, tests indicate, are the source of most bad breath . . . of dull, dingy teeth . . . and of much tooth decay.

"But Colgate Dental Cream has a special penetrating foam which gets into these tiny hidden crevices—emulsifies and washes away the decaying food deposits that cause bad breath. And at the same time, Colgate's soft, safe polishing agent thoroughly cleans the enamel—makes your teeth sparkle—gives new brilliance to your smile.

"So brush your teeth, gums, tongue with Colgate's at least twice daily and have cleaner, brighter teeth—sweeter, purer breath."

THE SAME THING THAT MAKES THE LITTLE VALLEYS BETWEEN THEM.
THAT AIN'T GETTIN' YOU ANYWHERE.
ALL RIGHT, THEN MAYBE IT IS THE WIND.
NOW WE'RE PLUNGING INTO THE SUBJECT. WHAT MAKES THE WIND?
FROM WHAT DIRECTION WOULD YOU SAY?
WELL, I WASN'T THINKIN' ABOUT THE DIRECTION.
YES, BUT WIND HAS TO HAVE A DIRECTION.
I HARDLY GET UP AN GET A CUP OF COFFEE IN ME WHEN I MEET YOU. WE WAS TALKIN' ABOUT THE WIND.
NO, DIRECTION. I ASKED YOU VERY PLAINLY WHAT IS DIRECTION?
ALL RIGHT, I'M TALKIN' TO YOU AN' MY FINGER IS LIKE THIS. THAT MEANS DIRECTION.
AND WHEN I ZIGZAG MY HAND LIKE THIS, THAT MEANS THERE'S NO DIRECTION TO WHAT YOU'RE SAYIN'!
AN' IF I DON'T ADMIT THAT AN' STILL KEEP MY FINGER POINTIN' TO YOU STANDIN' THERE, THAT MEANS DIRECTION.
AN' IF I TAKE MY LEFT LIKE THAT AN' WAVE IT ASIDE, THAT MEANS YOU DON'T GET IN ON ME AN' THERE'S NO DIRECTION.

CREAM OF WHEAT
1/2 ¢

Spends more than his father! Yes, each day a little chap spends more bodily energy in proportion to his weight than an adult. So every meal is vital—breakfast particularly. It must stoke him up well to see him through the action-crammed morning hours. That's one reason hot Cream of Wheat is so popular. It's fairly brimming with the food energy that play and growth require.

Less than ½¢ a serving! Over 50 generous helpings are in each large package. Enjoy it plain, or with dates, raisins, or brown sugar added. Any way you serve it, it's delicious. For Cream of Wheat is a blend from the best hard wheats sun-ripened in favored growing areas. Heat-treated and purified. 3½ million bowls are eaten daily!

For 43 years this tempting hot cereal has been a recognized factor in speeding natural weight gains. Your doctor will undoubtedly tell you of its muscle-building protein and its carbohydrate charged with food energy. Cream of Wheat is simplicity itself for young systems to handle. Digestion begins right in the mouth.

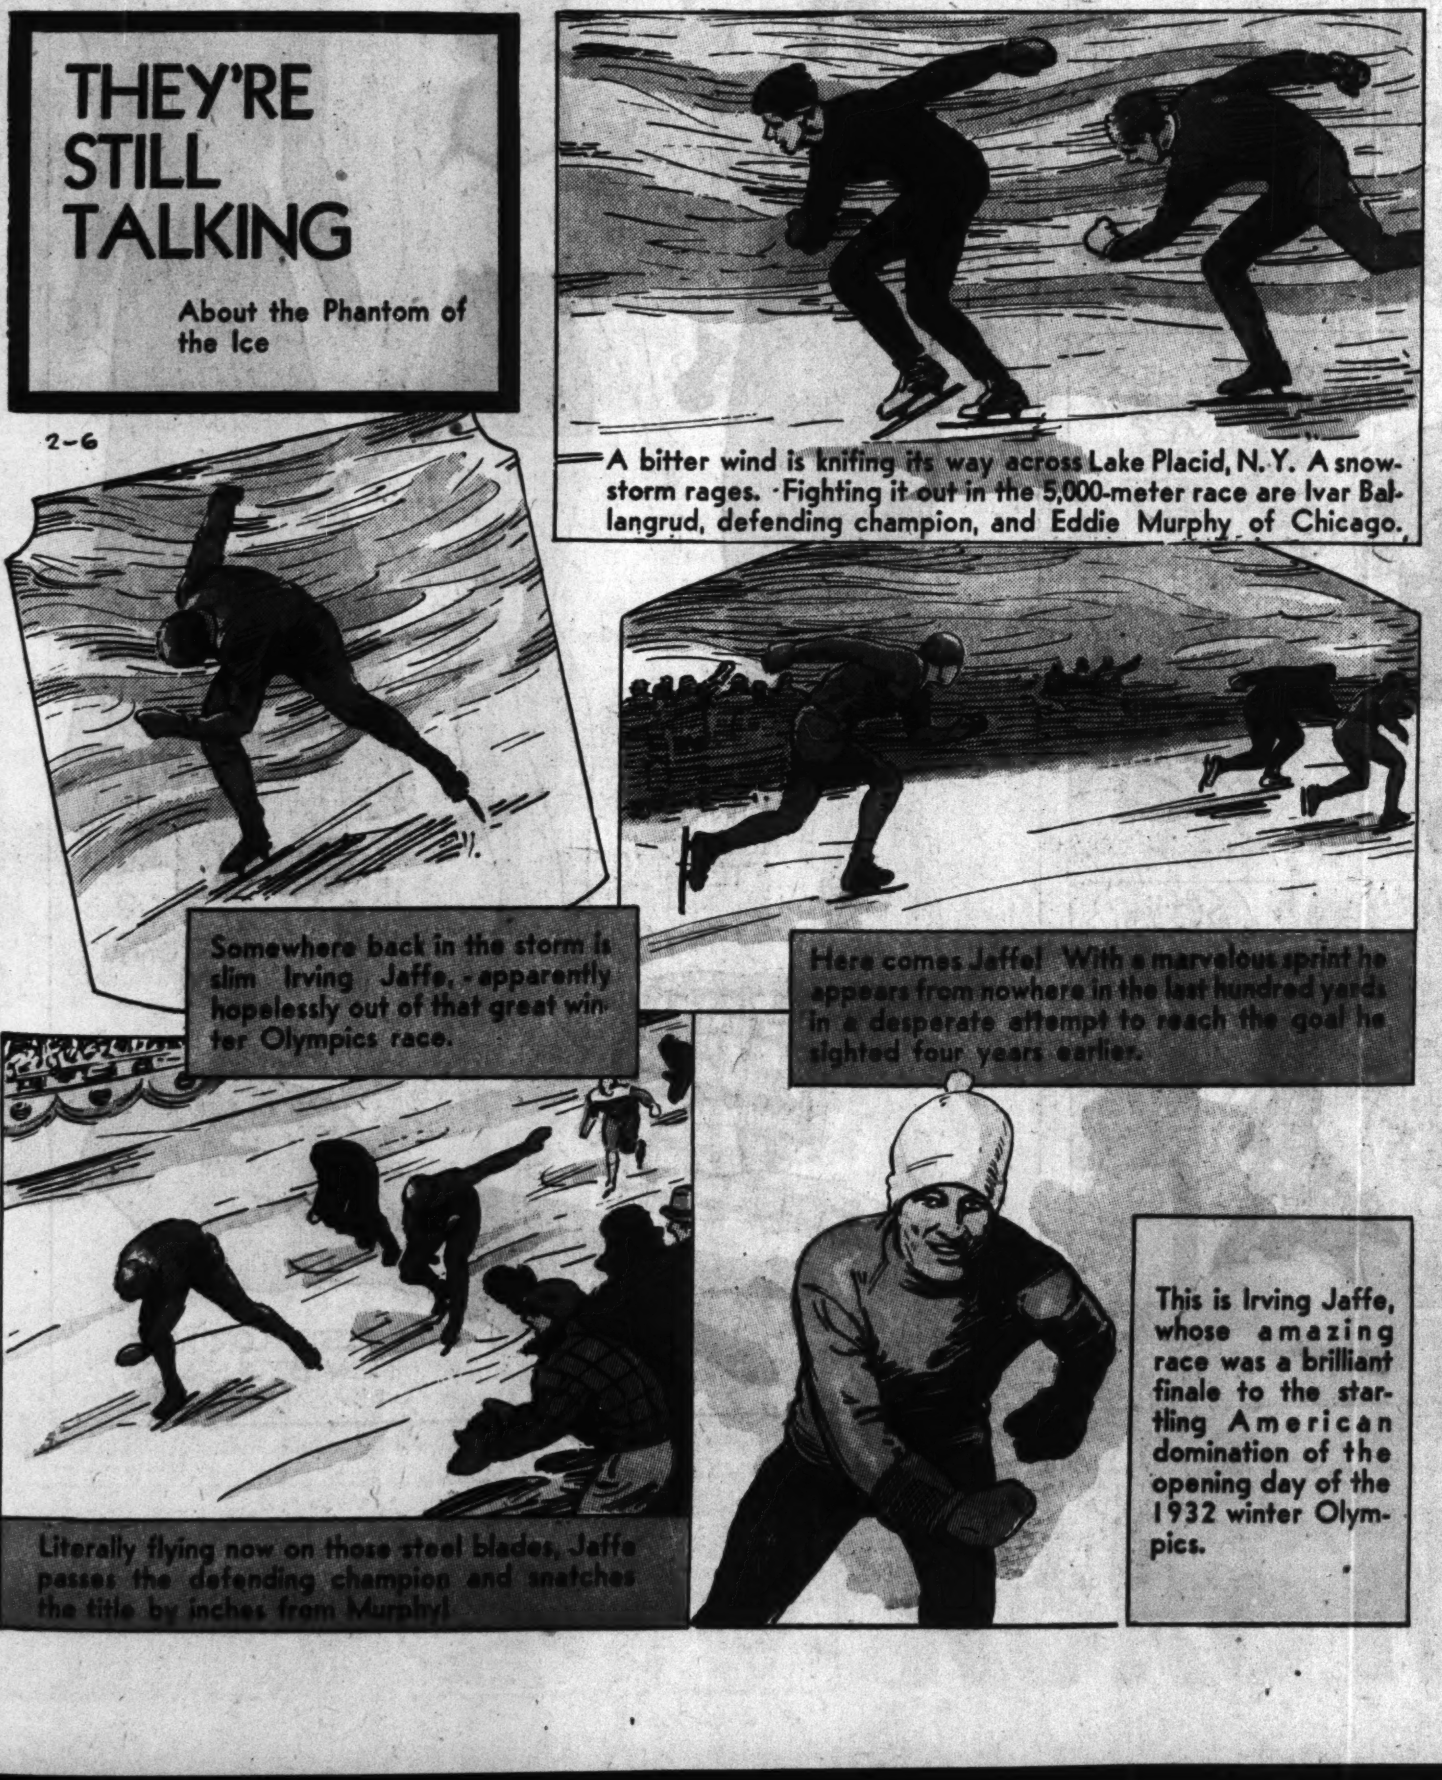
THEY'RE STILL TALKING

About the Phantom of the Ice



A bitter wind is knifing its way across Lake Placid, N.Y. A snowstorm rages. Fighting it out in the 5,000-meter race are Ivar Ballangrud, defending champion, and Eddie Murphy of Chicago.

Somewhere back in the storm is slim Irving Jaffe, - apparently hopelessly out of that great winter Olympics race.

Here comes Jaffe! With a marvelous sprint he appears from nowhere in the last hundred yards in a desperate attempt to reach the goal he sighted four years earlier.

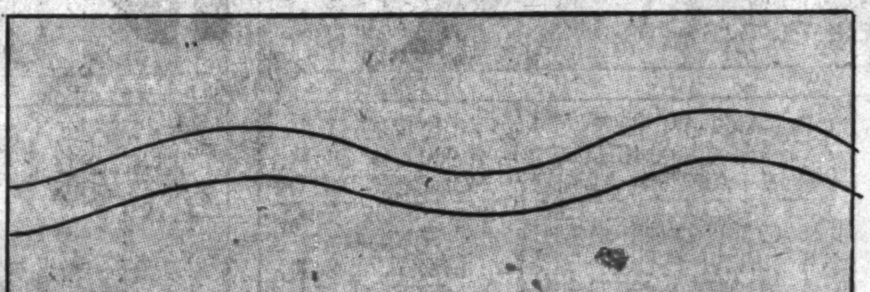
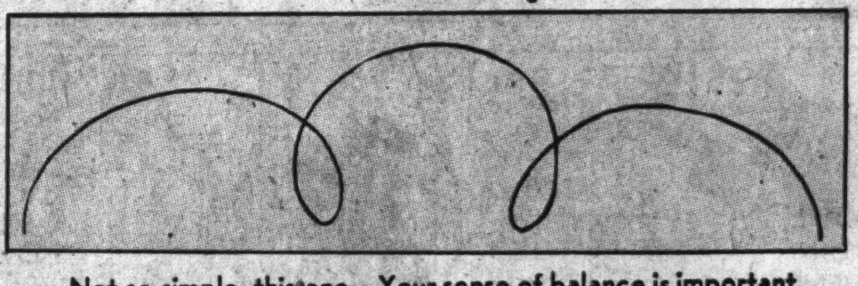
The Serpent.



A comparatively simple figure, yet one which affords a fine opportunity to practice. Moving forward with a few natural skating strokes, place the feet together, lean to the left riding the outside edge of the left skate and the inside edge of the right skate. Then sway the body to the right, riding the outside edge of the right skate and the inside edge of the left skate.

Loops



Not so simple, this one. Your sense of balance is important. Pushing forward on the right foot, riding the outside edge, accomplish the loops by swinging the free foot forward vigorously. The motion, after you have completed the loop, will send you forward again toward the second loop.

JUDGE STEPHENS WAS MURDERED BEFORE HE COULD READ THE LOVAT WILL—THE WILL IS MISSING—KAREN LOVAT WAS STABBED—AND ARCHY LOVAT ADMITS TRYING TO STAB BOOTH WHOM HE ACCUSES OF THE OTHER CRIMES.—
THE WILL WAS THE MOTIVE—ONE OF THE HEIRS KNEW HE WAS LEFT OUT SO HE KILLED THE JUDGE, THE ONLY ONE WHO KNEW ABOUT IT, AND DESTROYED THE WILL!
OH, I'M SURE ARCHY IS THE ONE—HE ACCUSED BOOTH TO SAVE HIS OWN NECK!
EXCEPT THAT HIS EFFORT TO STAB BOOTH WAS SO CLUMSY—THERE WERE NO CLUES LEFT AT THE OTHER CRIMES—NOT EVEN FINGERPRINTS!
INSPECTOR, THAT'S A HUNCH—NO FINGERPRINTS—THAT MEANS GLOVES—AND WHO WAS WEARING GLOVES WHEN KAREN WAS STABBED?
I REMEMBER—BUT I CAN'T PROVE MY CASE UNTIL WE FIND THAT WILL!
WHAT HAVE YOU DONE WITH ARCHY, INSPECTOR?
HE'S IN JAIL, OF COURSE!
YOU DON'T ACTUALLY THINK HE COMMITTED THE MURDER?
THE ONLY WAY TO PROVE THAT IS TO FIND YOUR UNCLE'S WILL—THE ONE OF YOU WHO WAS LEFT OUT OF IT IS GUILTY!
IT'S PROBABLY DESTROYED—WE'LL NEVER FIND IT!
I DON'T THINK SO—THE MURDERER DIDN'T HAVE TIME—IT'S HIDDEN SOMEWHERE NEAR THE SCENE OF THE CRIME!
BUT THE PLACE WAS SEARCHED!
JANE'S RIGHT! THAT WILL MUST BE NEAR THE SCENE OF THE CRIME—I'LL FIND IT IF I HAVE TO TAKE EVERY TREE AND SHRUB APART!
YOU ALL PLAYED HERE AS CHILDREN—IF YOU KNOW OF A PLACE DISCOVERED YEARS AGO, WHERE IT MIGHT NOW BE HIDDEN, WE'LL SEARCH THERE TOMORROW!
HERE'S WHERE THE BODY WAS FOUND—NOW THEY KNOW WE'RE GOING TO TURN THESE GROUNDS INSIDE OUT TOMORROW—IF IT'S HIDDEN HERE, THE MURDERER WILL TRY TO DESTROY IT TONIGHT!
WE'LL SLIP INTO THE TOOL-HOUSE AND WATCH, EH?

— THEN SUE DISCOVERED A WAY TO GET "JUNE-DAY" WASHES, EVEN WHEN CLOTHES ARE BASEMENT-DRIED
IF I COULD ONLY HANG THESE CLOTHES OUT IN THE SUN JUST ONCE! UGH! THEY ACTUALLY SMELL MUSTY!
BUT, SUE, WHY DON'T YOU TRY THAT WHITER-WASHING, GRANULATED SOAP EVERYONE'S RAVING ABOUT THESE DAYS?
THAT'S JUST THE POINT, MARY! I'M USING A GRANULATED SOAP ALREADY — AND EVERYTHING IS STILL FULL OF THAT AWFUL "WINTER GRAY!"
BUT THAT'S ONE OF THOSE "HALF-WAY" GRANULATED SOAPS! WHAT YOU NEED IS THE NEW, "NO-SCRUB" OXYDOL — THAT SOAKS CLOTHES 4 TO 5 SHADES WHITER ... WAIT, I'LL GET MY PACKAGE...
A FEW MINUTES AFTER MARY'S RETURN
BUT, IF OXYDOL SOAKS WHITE CLOTHES SO MUCH WHITER, ARE YOU SURE IT'S SAFE FOR COLORED THINGS?
ABSOLUTELY! I'VE WASHED THIS PRINT DRESS IN OXYDOL SCORES OF TIMES — AND IT'S STILL BRIGHT AS A NEW DOLLAR!
HONESTLY, IT'S A MIRACLE! ONLY 15 MINUTES' SOAKING — AND THEY SPARKLE AS IF THEY'D HUNG IN THE SUMMER SUN FOR HOURS!

LATER
SUE, I CAN'T UNDERSTAND HOW YOU GET YOUR LINENS SO WHITE! MINE ALWAYS LOOK SO GRAY THIS TIME OF YEAR.
IT'S BECAUSE I'VE DISCOVERED A NEW SOAP CALLED OXYDOL — THAT GIVES YOU "JUNE-DAY" WASHES EVEN WHEN CLOTHES HANG INSIDE ALL WINTER LONG.

AMAZING NEW "NO-SCRUB" SOAP

Banishes Winter-Gray Almost Like Magic

● Now—say good-bye to unsightly "winter gray," even though clothes must hang in the basement all winter long. See shirts, sheets, linens—everything you wash—come sparkling fresh and white as a "day in June!"

A remarkable new laundry soap called OXYDOL produces this amazing result. For it works on an entirely new principle—combining speed and safety in a way no single soap has ever done before.

OXYDOL was developed by the makers of gentle Ivory soap at a cost of over $1,000,000. It is the result of a patented process to make soap far faster acting . . . an astonishing new formula that makes mild, gentle soap 2 to 3 times whiter washing. Thus it does these 4 amazing things:

(1) Soaks out dirt in 15 minutes, without scrubbing or boiling. Even cuffs and "grimy" spots come snowy white with a few quick rubs. (2) Cuts washing time 25% to 40% in tub or machine. (3) Gets white clothes 4 to 5 shades whiter as proved by scientific Tintometer tests. (4) Yet so safe that every washable color comes out dazzling, brilliant, fresh!

OXYDOL is economical, too. Tests against popular package soaps show that, cup for cup, OXYDOL gives 28% to 60% MORE SUDS. And one package often goes one-third to one-half again as far as even the most modern flakes!

So—for "June day" washes even in the dead of winter, try OXYDOL. At all dealers. Get a package todav! Procter & Gamble.

TESTED AND APPROVED BY GOOD HOUSEKEEPING INSTITUTE

Her Neighbors Marvel At Whiteness Of "Basement-Dried" Clothes

"I want you to know how very much I like OXYDOL for washing clothes.

"I dry clothes in the basement—so my white things are without benefit of the sun much of the time. Yet, when I do hang them outside my neighbors remark about their whiteness. In the winter when my clothes are dried in the basement every washday, I marvel that they can stay so white without the bleaching effect of the sun or without any so-called whitening solution.
